We read Kimball's words only a couple of days after talking with a farmer spokesman for the state and national beef industry. That gentleman emphasized that it is necessary for "special interest" groups to organize and present a united front. He said he learned that fact a long time ago and it was reaffirmed in his talks with elected officials.

It isn't enough to be pro-agriculture or supportive of farming, he explained. Grain producers like high grain prices; livestock producers like cheap feed grain. Legume growers like high hay prices; dairy farmers do not. Cotton growers want import restrictions to protect their market; wheat producers want liberal trade to dispose of surpluses. Soybean producers push margarine sales; dairymen promote butter. And so it goes.

To get the most out of their market potential and to exert the most political pressure for their causes, agricultural interests are organizing. They are contributing to promotional funds and attempting to influence consumers, politicians, exporters and others. While all would say they are pro-farm, they are more specifically pro-milk, or pro-beef, or pro-turkey, or pro-citrus fruit, or pro-wheat or whatever.

So Kimball's assessment is both right and wrong. Indeed, there is strength in unity. But one can not reasonably expect everyone interested in any phase of activity in the name of conservation to be equally supportive of all.

It would be better to encourage everyone interested in specific interest areas to join others with similar interests in providing a united front. More will be accomplished by such active groups in the overall picture than by an umbrella organization promoting only general interest.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"He doesn't look so good," the horse dealer said in making the sale, "but he's strong and affectionate." The next day the farmer was back with the horse. "How come you sold me a horse that's stone blind?" he demanded. "Well," the salesman said defensively, "I told you he didn't look so good."

Waiting at the bus stop, the man appeared apprehensive of a poodle frisking about his feet. "Don't be afraid of Pierre," the highbrow owner soothed, "he won't bite you." "I wasn't afraid he'd bite," the man said "but I noticed him lifting a hind leg and I thought he was going to kick me."

George Washington himself paid the salaries of his entire Presidential staff: one part-time, one full-time aide. Not until 1857 did Congress appropriate funds for a Presidential clerk!

Every American President through Herbert Hoover set aside days each week to meet the public. Grover Cleveland personally answered the White House phone!

cancer answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Dear Cancer Answers:

I have a lump in my neck, just below my ear. My doctor checked it and said it is a swollen lymph gland and nothing to be concerned about. I'm still worried that it might be cancer.

P.L.

Dear P.L.:

Swollen lymph nodes in the neck usually mean that there is an infection of some sort in the head or neck. People who have earaches or sore throats often will have swollen glands. As the infection clears up, these enlarged lymph nodes should return to normal size.

You were wise to see your doctor promptly when you noticed this lump. If it persists for longer than two weeks you should check with the doctor again.

Dear Cancer Answers:

I recently saw a movie about a woman dying of cancer of the ovary. I am 44 (she was about my age) and would like to know more about this disease. Is it rare? Are there any symptoms that I should watch for? Is it ever successfully treated? What treatment works best?

Mrs. W.

Dear Mrs. W.:

Ovarian cancer, which occurs chiefly between the ages of 40 and 60, is uncommon, accounting for only about four per cent of cancers in women. According to the statistics of the American Cancer Society, approximately 17,000 women will develop ovarian cancer in 1980. Also, about 11,000 women will die of this disease.

The most frequent symptom associated with ovarian cancer is enlargement of the abdomen; this is generally due to fluid that accumulates with cancer of the ovary. Less often, this enlargement may be due to the tumor itself. Abnormal vaginal bleeding is another sign associated with ovarian cancer. Occasionally, abdominal pain and a feeling of indigestion occur. Remember, though, that any of these signs can indicate other problems which are less serious than ovarian cancer. Only after thorough examination will your doctor be able to tell you what these warning signals indicate.

The best way to detect cancer of the ovaries before symptoms appear is to have regular check-ups by your family doctor or gynecologist (a doctor who specializes in women's diseases). He or she would perform a pelvic examination. This involves feeling the lower abdomen carefully, both through the skin and the vagina and rectum, to try to detect any mass that may be present. If a tumor is suspected, an ultrasound examination and x-rays of the colon and kidneys might be ordered (because pressure from an ovarian tumor can cause changes in the normal shape and position of these organs).

Cancer of the ovaries is usually treated by surgical removal. The exact kind of surgery varies according to the age of the patient, the size of the tumor, and the extent to which it has spread. After surgery, radiation therapy or chemotherapy may be given to treat any remaining cancer. Both are often used.

There has been some improvement in the survival rate for women with ovarian cancer, which is encouraging. In the 1970's about 1 in 3 ovarian cancer patients lived at least five years after diagnosis, and the likelihood of the disease recurring after that period of time drops significantly.

Dear Cancer Answers:

My mother and I would like you to settle a disagreement we've had. Mother says that a Pap smear can detect cancer in any of the female reproductive organs. I've always thought it was only used to detect cancer of the cervix. Who is right?

Mother and Daughter

Dear Mother and Daughter:

The Pap smear is generally considered to be 90 per cent effective in detecting cervical cancer even at its earliest stages when the disease can nearly always be cured. It is, however, only about 60 per cent effective in detecting cancer of the uterus and is not useful in diagnosing cancer of the ovary.

Like the skin, the lining of the uterus and the cervix continually sheds cells. These loose cells collect in the vagina and are expelled by the normal discharge of vaginal fluid. A doctor does a Pap smear by gently scraping loose cells from the cervix and vagina and examining them with a microscope to look for any abnormal cells.

As you know, a Pap smear is only part of a complete pelvic examination. The doctor also feels for any abnormalities in the uterus and ovaries by pressing on the outside of the abdomen and on the inside through the vagina and rectum. The doctor may recommend further diagnostic tests, like x-rays, ultrasound, or surgical exploration, if the examination reveals any abnormalities.

Dear Cancer Answers:

"I'm 45 years old and have been smoking a pack of cigarettes a day since I was 20. I've read all the reports about smoking and lung cancer, but it seems a little late in the game for me to quit after I've been smoking for 25 years. Besides, my 90-year-old uncle is healthy as a horse and has smoked all his life. Still, I'm worried. Would it help to quit after all these years?

Paul R.

Dear Paul:

Indeed it would. The rate of lung cancer in ex-smokers gradually decreases with each year of non-smoking, until it approaches that of people who have never smoked. And the risk begins to drop much more quickly than you might expect — probably within two years and certainly within five.

If you stop smoking tomorrow, by the time you are 65 years old your risk of getting lung cancer should be about one-seventh of the risk of other men your age who have continued smoking a pack a day.

Your uncle has been lucky. Although scientists are finding that some people are more inclined to develop cancer than others, so far there is no way to identify ahead of time who fits into that category. In a sense, your uncle has played "Russian roulette" and won.

The death rate for those who smoke a pack or more a day is about double that of non-smokers. So by quitting you have everything to gain.

D-Day (Don't Smoke Day) is coming up soon for Minnesotans. This might give you just the incentive you need to stop smoking for good and multiply your chances of escaping lung cancer by seven. On January 24, 1980, thousands of Minnesotans will join together in a massive anti-smoking campaign. For the next few weeks, smokers who would like to kick the habit will be signing pledge cards agreeing to abstain from smoking on January 24. They are being encouraged to make D-Day the date for ditching the smoking habit for good.

If you would like a D-Day pledge card, check with some of the local groups promoting D-Day in your area or call the Minnesota Cancer Information Service at 1-800-582-5262.

Dear Cancer Answers:

I recently donated blood to help a child with leukemia. I wonder if people are aware of the need for blood in cancer treatment?

B.W.

Dear B.W.:

Blood component therapy is an important part of current methods of treating leukemia. Leukemia is cancer of the blood and blood-forming tissues. Hemorrhage and infection are two serious complications of leukemia which can be eased by transfusions of blood components. The use of blood components also can offset dangerous side effects of anticancer drugs. Blood from a healthy donor is essential, so your special "gift" was a valuable one indeed.

Dear Cancer Answers:

What are the symptoms of lung cancer? How much can a doctor tell from a chest x-ray?

M.A.

Dear M.A.:

The symptoms of lung cancer usually are not severe enough to cause concern, so people who have symptoms rarely think they are serious enough to require examination by a doctor. Most lung cancer patients have a cough or a change in a chronic cough at some time during the course of the disease. A tumor seems to act like a foreign body in the lung, and one will cough in an attempt to expel it. Another symptom is chest pain, usually experienced as a persistent ache not related to the cough. There also may be some wheezing. Sometimes, but rarely, blood-streaked sputum is the first symptom.

An expert can tell quite a bit about a tumor from an x-ray of the chest. While several kinds of lung disease, including cancer, can be detected with chest x-ray, each disease shows characteristic signs on x-ray. From a chest x-ray, the doctor usually can determine the need for further tests, detect the presence of a suspicious lesion (tumor), estimate its size, and look for signs that it has spread. If a tumor is present, a biopsy may be necessary to insure proper diagnosis and treatment.

Dear Cancer Answers:

My mother recently had a mastectomy for breast cancer and she's now taking chemotherapy. I've noticed that she seems to be gaining quite a bit of weight. Is this normal for people on chemotherapy or is it something we should be concerned about?

A.S.

Dear A.S.:

Many breast cancer patients who are taking prednisone as part of their chemotherapy experience a temporary weight gain. This is due to a combination of factors.

Prednisone seems to create a sense of false appetite which makes the patient want to eat more frequently. Because the drug also tends to irritate the lining of the stomach, the patient may be encouraged by her doctor to drink more milk or to try to eat smaller, more frequent meals. The milk or food helps to protect the stomach lining from the irritating effects of the prednisone. Patients taking this drug also seem to retain more fluid than normal causing them to feel slightly puffy or bloated.

Although the weight gain may be bothersome for your mother, it should last only as long as her course of chemotherapy. In the meantime she might try eating foods that are lower in calories.

Your mother's doctor undoubtedly is monitoring her weight. You or your mother should discuss your concerns with the doctor who may be able to offer other suggestions to help keep her weight under control.

More than 200,000 Americans, aged 65 years or younger, are among the nearly one million deaths from heart disease, stroke, and related disorders each year, according to the American Heart Association.

Hints for HOMEMAKERS

The eclectic approach to home decor—that is, the intermingling of various styles or periods of furnishings—is more popular than ever. The key to successful eclecticism is to keep the same general feeling throughout the room. Mix formal styles together—or informal ones. And choose furnishings predominantly in the same scale.

Don't hesitate to mix your contemporary furnishings with traditional pieces. This drop-leaf cocktail table will lend warmth and interest to an otherwise contemporary room. Made by American Drew, a company that specializes in traditional furniture, it is timeless in style—a piece that could become a treasured heirloom for future generations.

• • •

New patterns in fabric can change the entire atmosphere of a room. In combining several patterns of different personalities, use a common color bond.

Habit Change Required For Winter Driving

Experienced drivers familiar with the cold, snowy winters in the Midwest have their cars prepared well in advance and realize that winter driving requires a change in motoring habits.

Driving on snow, sleet or icy roads is far more difficult than driving on dry pavement. Minnesota State automobile association (AAA) points out that observance of the following rules can help prevent accidents during the winter months:

—Drivers are advised to leave for their destinations earlier on cold and snowy days. Traffic moves much more slowly under adverse weather conditions. Leaving earlier also will give the driver adequate time to get the car started and clean the windows before leaving. Ice scrapers and snow brushes should be standard equipment in the car.

—Become accustomed to driving at the slower speeds adverse weather conditions demand. Safe, steady speeds, especially on snow packed or icy roads, should be maintained. Avoid sudden starts and stops.

—Allow a greater distance when following. Be alert to traffic ahead. A vehicle in front of you may stop just beyond an icy patch; the extra distance you maintain will enable you to come to a safe stop.

—If your car starts to skid, turn your front wheels in the direction of the slide. This is instinctive with most motorists, but new drivers and motorists encountering a new season sometimes confuse the proper procedures.

—Don't oversteer. Sudden sharp twists of the steering wheel can result in a skid on slippery roads.

—Don't overbrake. Apply brakes sooner on snow or ice, but more gently and with a pumping rhythm. If the car wheels lock during braking, release the brake pedal for an instant, then apply gradual, light pressure.

—When the temperature hovers around 32 degrees, exercise special caution. Braking distances on ice are twice as great at this temperature as at zero. Treacherous, invisible sleet-ice coatings form under these conditions.

—When going over the crest of a hill and starting down, reduce speed. If necessary, put the car in second gear or low and pump the brakes to keep the speed down under severe icy conditions.

—When parking, think in advance about a way to get out of the space. Leave ample room both in front and behind your car if possible, and beware of snow around the curb that may prevent you from getting traction when pulling out.

—If you do get stuck, a bucket of sand and rock salt or cinders kept in the trunk will be helpful. These abrasives along with a shovel to throw them under the rear tires might save waiting for a service vehicle.

—Drivers should be constantly on the lookout for chuckholes. Snow, sleet, salt and sand take a heavy toll on streets and highways during the winter months.

IT'S A FACT!

The largest Catholic church in the United States and the seventh largest church in the world is the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception in Washington, D.C. Built for the whole Catholic community of the U.S., its architecture, sculpture, windows, inscriptions, mosaics, even its smallest ornaments, are primarily the fruit of American imagination, skill, contributions and devotion.

Construction of the shrine became something of a legend among construction workers because no lives were lost, and no serious accident occurred. Only the most skilled were hired, and no one was allowed to work when conditions became hazardous. It is estimated that work on the tower, where high winds posed special danger, was stopped for one hour of every four.

Governor Proposes Spending Limits

Governor Al Quie is proposing that a constitutional limit be imposed on state government spending. State spending has increased much more rapidly during the past several years than personal income. During the last 10 years general fund state spending increased by 200 per cent while Minnesota personal income went up only 106 per cent.

"State spending relative to personal income should not be allowed to continue to grow. Government, like individuals and business, should operate under strict budget controls," Gov. Quie said.

The governor's proposal ties the spending limit to the increase in personal income in Minnesota. Such a limit does not completely restrict state government growth, but would constrain the growth rate to stay within the taxpayer's ability to finance that growth. Tieing the state spending limit to personal income will allow the state budget to increase with increases in the labor force, salary increases and growth in Minnesota's economy.

"The proposed limit will allow us to continue to pay for existing state programs. When new programs are posposed, state decision-makers will have to take a hard look at their desirability, and if they determine that new programs are important to Minnesotans, they would have to look carefully at existing programs to see if they are still needed. A spending limit thus forces a critical evaluation of the manner in which the state spends taxpayer money," Gov. Quie said.

"Of course, any increase in state spending above present levels but under the spending limit would be subject to the availability of sufficient tax revenues.

The spending limit proposed by Governor Quie is believed not so restrictive that essential services would be cut or endangered. The most recent approved two-year budget contained an 18 per cent increase over the previous budget in state general fund appropriations which would be subject to the limit. The personal income figure that would have been used increased approximately 23 per cent. State spending during this biennium would therefore not have been affected had a constitutional spending limit been in effect.

The governor's proposal covers what is called the "general fund", making up approximately 57 per cent of the state operating budget. Federal funds, which make up 17 per cent of the state budget, are not included under the limit. The remaining portion of the state budget, make up primarily of user charge type funds and tax refunds, is not included under the limit.

The spending limit proposal provides for an emergency over ride of the approved limit in the event of an emergency declared by the governor and approved by the legislature with a two-third vote inboth houses.

The governor's proposal for a spending limit is being authored in the Senate by Senator Dave Rued and in the House of Representatives by Representative Charles Halberg. The legislature must act on these proposals during the 1980 legislative session in order to provide the voters the opportunity at the 1980 general election to decide for themselves whether the constitution should be amended.

Six states now have limitations tieing increases in state taxes or spending to increases in personal income, including the State of Washington, where the voters in November 1979 approved "Initiative 62" by a vote of 68 per cent in favor to 32 per cent against.

In addition, six states limit increases in state spending to the rate of growth in the economy, including the state of California where the voters last November approved Proposition 4 by a margin of 74 per cent to 26 per cent.

"Too often, state government has imposed mandates on local government without providing the means to pay for the additional costs which result from these mandates," Quie said. The governor's constitutional amendment proposal for a spending limit would require that the state fund any new state mandate to local government. If the state wishes to accomplish certain goals on a local level, the state should provide the funding mechanism necessary to accomplish those goals.

The governor's proposal also provides that revenue surpluses which exceed the spending limit, beyond that necessary to provide for emergencies, be returned to the taxpayers through refunds or reductions in taxes. The state should not be allowed to accumulate large surpluses which exceed the spending limit and which are not needed to provide essential services.

If you have any questions regarding Governor Quie's proposal for a spending limit for state government, please write the Governor's Office, Room 130, State Capitol Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.

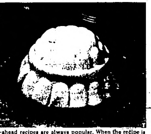
AN OLD FAVORITE REVISED



Do-ahead recipes are always popular. When the recipe is easy, good tasting, low in calories and nutritious it's even better. Spanish Cream is an old recipe dating back to grandmother's day. It's a simple, yet elegant, gelatinized dessert garnished with your favorite fruit. The new twist to this old recipe is that it's flavored with McCormick/Schilling Imitation Vanilla Extract, a new high quality imitation vanilla which tastes like pure vanilla and is easy on your budget.

SPANISH CREAM

2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
1 quart milk
3 eggs, separated
Dash salt
1/2 cup sugar
1 tablespoon McCormick/Schilling Imitation Vanilla Extract

Dissolve gelatine in 1/2 cup of the milk. Beat egg yolks, salt and 1/4 cup of the sugar and stir into remaining milk. Heat mixture until it comes almost to a boil. Add softened gelatine and stir until dissolved. Remove from heat; add vanilla. Cool. Beat egg whites until foamy. Continue beating, slowly adding remaining sugar. Fold into milk mixture. Pour into 2-quart mold and refrigerate until set. Remove from mold. This will have separated into two layers. Garnish with orange slices, tangerine slices, sliced peaches, raspberries or blueberries.

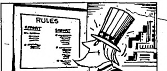
WHAT'S IN IT FOR YOU?

Increased Exports Means More Jobs



The rules of professional sports like football, basketball and tennis keep changing. So do the rules of international trade.

"Free trade" isn't what it used to be. More and more countries have been limiting imports and encouraging exports. At the same time, the number of government-owned businesses abroad has multiplied—even in Western industrial nations, and governments don't play by the same rules as private enterprise. For example, a government-owned company might sell at a loss in order to be paid in a strong foreign currency.

While the rules are changing, the U.S. needs to win more than ever before. Our trade deficit has soared to $28.5 billion, hurting the dollar and making inflation worse. We sell only 18 percent of our manufactured goods overseas, while West Germany exports 55 percent of its goods.

We can't win by staying at home. We need vital resources from around the world, and eight million American workers depend on trade with other countries for their jobs. But if we sold more goods abroad, we could help wipe out the trade deficit and also ease unemployment by creating new jobs for Americans.

In some important industries, we do export more than we import. One example is the chemical industry, which in 1978 made a positive contribution of more than $5 billion to the U.S. balance of payments. And that means jobs. At one chemical company, Union Carbide, one worker out of every eight in its U.S. plants and offices is working to send exports abroad.

How can the U.S. turn its trade deficit into a surplus? The answers aren't easy, but both business and government can help solve the problem.

To get business overseas, American businessmen have to go after it. We have to work hard, following some of the rules of aggressive competition that the Japanese have played by so well. If we "think exports"—if we are ready, for instance, to customize products to meet the special needs of foreign customers, we will sell more.

Washington also has an important role to play in ensuring that the rules are as favorable as possible to U.S. business. Government regulation now costs far more in the U.S. than in other countries and makes American exports more expensive. Finding ways to cut unnecessary red tape would make life easier for U.S. exporters.

Set Principles To Guide In College tests

Representatives of five organizations responsible for major national testing programs have announced a set of public interest principles to guide future developments in their standardized tests used for admissions.

Leaders of the college board, the graduate record examinations board, the graduate management admission council, the law school admission council, and educational testing service (ETS) have joined in developing general guidelines and some specific operational proposals for the testing programs for which they are responsible.

Guidelines include increased publication of the content of the tests, publicly visible procedures for eliminating test bias, and procedures to enable test takers to have their scores verified. They also call for procedures to increase the appropriate use of scores and to discourage misuse, for giving the test takers as much useful information as possible about their performance on the tests, and for giving them a voice in the design of the programs.

Result of months of discussion, these public interest principles will provide a basis for further discussion by the constituencies of each organization and also by educational and student groups concerned with testing. Many of the principles have been cornerstones of some testing programs, and the statement calls for renewed emphasis on them. As further agreements are reached, each sponsoring organization will work with ETS on how to move the guidelines into operation. Changes must be developed by each organization separately because the testing programs differ substantially in accordance with the purposes of the different institutions that use them.

Public interest principles are consistent with some of the goals of testing laws enacted in California and New York, as well as legislation proposed elsewhere. Principles, however, apply to all the admissions testing programs of the sponsoring groups whether or not they are covered by present laws.

Test sponsors are concerned, moreover, that such laws often do not take into consideration the diverse needs of test takers who need to be examined at different times of the year and for whom the added costs of the specific changes proposed in some legislation would be burdensome. Sponsors are also concerned that any changes in the programs not impair the quality of the tests or their comparability, which makes them fair for students tested on different dates.

ETS develops, administers and scores the tests under policies set by the testing sponsors. Tests covered are: the admissions testing program of the college board, including the scholastic aptitude test (SAT) and achievement tests, and the preliminary scholastic aptitude test-national scholarship merit qualifying test; the graduate record examinations (GRE) aptitude and advanced tests; the law school admission test (LSAT); and the graduate management admission-test (GMAT).

Exercise Slows Down Body's Aging Process

"Use it or you'll lose it," is a warning all persons over 60 should heed about their bodies. Regular, planned exercise can slow down the natural aging process, say geriatric specialists.

Fitness programs have been held in St. Paul high rises for the elderly and the results have been profound, according to a St. Paul hospital's community health education director, Don Kirchner. People confined to wheelchairs now walk with walkers, diabetics have reduced insulin intake, blood pressure has dropped and, for many, confidence has increased.

Most older persons are aware of the body changes that occur with aging. Bones become brittle, the blood supply has more difficulty reaching vital organs and muscles lose their flexibility.

Degenerative process can be slowed down, however, through regular, planned exercise. Exercise helps reverse these changes by increasing blood flow to all organs of the body as well as the muscles. By increasing the respiration rate, the amount of oxygen that reaches the brain is also increased.

When an older person is unfit, the muscles that support the body and strengthen the joints weaken. Results are a humpbacked appearance and poor posture, conditions that limit activity even more.

"Even when these conditions have occurred, loss of muscle strength can be regained if a person participates in a supervised program over an extended period of time," Kirchner said.

Some older persons don't exercise because they fear an accident will permanently lay them up. But the fact is you don't have to run marathons, race bicycles or perform 100 situps to tune up your body, say exercise specialists who work with high-rise residents.

Classes they conduct consist of moderate exercises, often done to music. Process is slow and gradual and elderly participants are reminded to take it easy and only do what feels comfortable. Some yoga and dancing are also included.

The key is regularity—in the high rises classes meet weekly for an hour and a half. Many of the core exercises for the face, head and neck, shoulders, torso and feet are done while seated in a straight-backed chair. Face muscles are firmed and circulation is improved by puckering up and stretching out facial skin, opening and closing the eyes and making faces. Eye muscles are exercised by moving the eyes up, down, from side to side and in a circle. Chins and necks are firmed by looking up while slowly opening and closing the mouth.

Knee lifts to benefit hip joints and abdominal muscles are done from a sitting position. The "torso twist," a slow rotation of the trunk from side to side, is also done while seated in a chair.

"Reaching for the ceiling" is a standing exercise that benefits the torso. The person stands with arms extended overhead and reaches first through one side, then the other. Using a chair back for balance, participants exercise their legs by lifting one leg and then the other.

Physical gains experienced by participants have increased their ability to manage their daily activities, Kirchner said. Confidence has increased and life is more fun. One 75-year-old woman, who was confined for 20 years first to a cane and then a walker by arthritis, now does her own shopping and says she hasn't felt so good since she was 25.

Another 78-year-old, who couldn't get up from her wheelchair when she joined the class, now walks in, wheeling her chair beside her. Another reports she can once again kneel in church, something she hasn't done for five years.

These persons are typical of those who have found that exercise makes them feel more alive, more able to play an active role in their communities.

Driver Speed Will Affect Road Projects

Unless at least 40 per cent of Minnesota's drivers consistently obey the 55 mile per hour speed limit throughout 1980 it could mean a five per cent penalty on federal aid highway funding, reports Minnesota department of public safety commissioner John P. Sopsic.

Highway safety act of 1978 provides for such sanctions against states failing to meet predetermined levels of compliance with the uniform national 55 mile per hour speed limit.

Under the act, each state is required to submit annually to the secretary of transportation data on the percentage of motor vehicles exceeding 55 mph for the 12-month period ending September 30.

"Though five per cent or even 10 per cent penalties may not seem like an excessive amount, such sanctions could hurt planned state highway construction and safety maintenance budgets beyond the face value of the penalty," warns Sopsic.

Minnesota department of transportation director of financial management Ed Cohoon similarly claims that "given the present financial situation a 10 per cent penalty would have a devastating affect on the state's construction goals. We would have to put on hold or even cancel up to 25 per cent of our primary, secondary and urban projects. As it currently stands we only have enough money to match our federal aid projects and nothing extra to cover a penalty."

On most highway construction projects the federal money represents a much larger share of the cost than does the state's. Generally Minnesota's primary secondary and urban highway projects are funded on a 75-25 basis with the federal government supplying the 75 per cent share of the money and Minnesota supplying the remainder.

Because the federal government's share in a matched fund situation will generally be from three times or more larger than Minnesota's financial share, any penalty imposed on the state while being based on the federal's larger portion will have a disproportionate affect on Minnesota's budget.

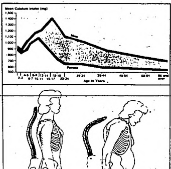
This difference in portions paid brings a "multiplier effect" to any state penalties. If, for example, a 10 per cent penalty was imposed on a 75 per cent-25 per cent proposed matching fund project of $10 million, Minnesota would be expected to pay its originally planned for $2.5 million, plus an additional $750,000 of what was previously federal money, representing a 10 per cent penalty. So instead of the figure around which the original budget was planned, the state is suddenly responsible for $3.25 million, just to qualify for the federal assistance.

Since this difference must come from state generated funds, Minnesota would need to take money from another project (robbing Peter to pay Paul) or it would have to sacrifice the potential funding because of the inability to meet their match fund share.

Fifty-five mile per hour enforcement program and these mandated compliance levels and sanctions are not just another form of bureaucratic excess and intervention. Minnesota department of public safety's director of traffic safety, Tom Boerner, explains that "the efforts to enforce the 55 mile per hour national speed limit are not just another 'big brother' government activity. The 55 limit is a law passed by the elected representatives of the people, fulfilling the wishes of the people through legislation. A strong majority of Americans favor the 55 mph speed limit."

Because 55 is a law, the driver traveling 60 miles per hour is legally wrong. Increasing the awareness that 55 means 55 is what Project 20, the Minnesota state patrol's special 55 enforcement team, is primarily aimed at.

Calcium: A Mineral Crisis In America??



The chart above shows how calcium intake for females and males declines with age. The picture below shows the effects of osteoporosis on the spine.

Of all the minerals found in the human body, calcium may be the one in which Americans are most deficient, according to Dr. Louis Avioli, noted endocrinologist and bone specialist.

Dr. Avioli, Director of the Division of Bone and Mineral Metabolism at Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis, said most people believe iron is the most important mineral in the body.

"This is because iron deficiencies are easily detected and there are definite recognizable symptoms," he said. "Calcium deficiencies, on the other hand, are not as easily detected and there are usually no symptoms until later in life."

The U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance for calcium is 1,000 milligrams per day, yet the average adult female in the United States ingests only 500 to 600 milligrams per day and as noted in the diagram this intake may prevail for 30 years.

"This means most people are at least 500 to 600 milligrams deficient in calcium per day," Dr. Avioli said. "High calcium content foods such as milk products or vegetables like spinach and asparagus are simply not what most people want to eat and the result is that each day we fall a little bit further behind."

Dr. Avioli said the effects of a long-term calcium deficiency can be quite severe. The primary function of calcium in the body is the development of strong bones and teeth. There are, however, other important roles of which few people are aware. They are: maintenance of normal rhythm of the heart and aiding in blood clotting.

"It is the lack of calcium in the blood which ultimately causes problems," Dr. Avioli said. "If the blood does not get the proper amount of calcium from a person's diet, calcium is then taken from the bones. Over a period of 20 to 30 years this drain results in a decrease in the amount of bone, and fractures of the arms, legs and spine; a disease we refer to as "osteoporosis."

Dr. Avioli said the long-term dietary calcium deficiency contributes to curvature of the spine and "dowager's hump," common among many older adult females. "Most people don't worry about something that won't occur until later in life," Dr. Avioli noted, ". . . a paradox since we all want our later years to be healthy so that we can enjoy them more fully."

New methods are being developed to help diagnose osteoporosis in its early stages. However, Dr. Avioli said until these techniques are developed the best way to prevent the bone loss is to establish a routine of supplementing calcium intake. "Most people should be taking at least 500 milligrams of supplemental calcium per day in addition to the diet," Dr. Avioli emphasized.

"There are several quality brands of calcium supplements available over the counter at local drugstores," Dr. Avioli said. "I recommend Os-Cal® 500 to my patients because it offers the greatest amount of usable calcium in the fewest tablets. The best thing is to ask the pharmacist for assistance."

Dr. Avioli points out supplements are especially important for women because their calcium intake is generally less than males, as shown in the diagrams. Men apparently have a tendency to eat more vegetables and use more milk products than women.

"I cannot overemphasize the importance for young women to get in the habit of supplementing their daily calcium intake with at least one 500 milligram tablet of calcium," Dr. Avioli said. "The alternative can be devastating and in my opinion is simply not worth the risk." This is probably a good example of the old saying "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Board Opposes New Policy On Public Housing

A new housing and urban development (HUD) policy for filling vacancies in low income public housing may cause the poorest housing applicants to be refused public housing and may mean that those who have been waiting for public housing and may mean that those who have been waiting for public housing vacancies the longest will be bypassed in favor of others with higher incomes.

After studying the problem for several months, the Minnesota board on aging has asked HUD and Minnesota's congressmen to exempt low income public housing for the elderly from the policy.

In the past local public housing authorities could fill vacancies by considering a number of factors including the date and time of applications (first come first served), displacement of persons from their home due to natural disaster or urban renewal, or removal of individuals from unsafe and substandard housing.

The new HUD policy will put an end to this, requiring instead that local housing authorities review their present tenants, compare them with persons on their waiting lists and in the community, and then determine how many persons are in various income groups (0 — $3,999, $4,000 — $5,999, $6,000 — $7,999, etc.). Once the statistics are gathered, the new policy requires that the incomes of persons in public housing and on housing waiting lists match the incomes of persons in the community.

For example, if a housing authortiy finds that 40 per cent of its public housing tenants have yearly incomes between 0 and $3,999 but only 20 per cent of people in the community have similar incomes, HUD will say that low-income persons are "overrepresented" in public housing and require the local housing authority to give vacancies to persons with incomes over $4,000.

HUD claims its new policy will help people with a broad range of incomes find housing and says it is necessary to avoid concentrations of families with serious social problems. The general accounting office, basing its recommendations on studies in large eastern cities, says the policy is necessary if the federal government is to receive more rental income from low income public housing.

Several housing authorities in the state report that their tenants are currently overrepresented in the $0 to $3,999 category but that this group is also the largest group on their waiting lists. These are also the people the HUD policy may leave out in the cold. The authorities also note that the social problems HUD is trying to avoid with the new policy do not exist in elderly low income public housing in Minnesota and that previous selection policies also allowed persons of varying income levels to enter public housing.

According to the federal office of management and budget, federal law will now allow elderly housing to be exempted from this policy and the Carter administration is not proposing a change in the law.

ENERGY SAVERS

It's logical in these times to think of heating fuels and electricity when energy conservation is mentioned, but there's also human energy saving to consider — ways of doing things efficiently with less physical effort. Cooper The Toolmaker offers these hints, using common tools seen at any hardware store.

A wood screw is easier to turn if the threads are first rubbed with soap, and if the screwdriver has an extra-large and non-slip handle. A Cushion Grip by Crescent makes turning a cinch. And a stubborn rusted screw can be removed if the head is first heated with a soldering gun. It'll turn easily when cool. With that same gun, if it's a Weller, vinyl floor tiles can be cut smoothly and accurately with a knife-like cutting tip.

Do you have some more-than-arms-length measuring to do? A Mezurlok automatic rewind tape has an end hook on the blade that makes one-hand use possible. There's also one with an inch-wide blade that will extend at least 8-feet without collapsing.

Metal cutting can be a snap with a pair of lever-action snips — a MetalWizz cuts with half the muscle of conventional snips.

These are just a handful of the modern tools at your hardware store — take a look and save energy!

Urban Open Space Takes Many Forms

by David M. Mafield
Smithsonian News Service

The universe is architect-visionary Buckminster Fuller's favorite open space; the sea, author John Hersey's. Humorist Art Buchwald perversely picks the South Bronx.

In a nation where pioneers once felt overcrowded when they could see a neighbor's house in the distant horizon, the concept of open space — elbow room — has become fixed in the American mind and culture.

But the American dream of rolling hills stretching into the distance has shrunk for the most part to the neighborhood park, the corner playground or even the rooftop garden.

Urban planners, sensing the inherent yearning of city residents for some kind of open space, are re-examining the future needs of cities and towns — home now to 70 per cent of all Americans. "This seems an appropriate moment to analyze such spaces — to show the immense variety available, the problems concerning their management and use and the possibilities for improving them," says Lisa Taylor, director of the Cooper-Hewitt museum, the Smithsonian's national museum of design in New York city.

What is needed? According to one federal study, 77 per cent or urban residents surveyed expressed dissatisfaction with available recreation areas, and in low-income neighborhoods the discontent reached 100 per cent.

At the same time, the study revealed that 20 per cent of all urban land is either underdeveloped or uncommitted, potentially available to recreation needs. Much of this space is surplus military propoerty, abandoned or derelect land found around waterfronts and other underutilized areas — streets, alleys, reservoirs, even rooftops.

Creation of short-term open space is another alternative considered by urban planners: transforming vacant lots in interim playgrounds of gardens, for example, and creating temporary bike paths and walkways on closed streets. "Enjoyable open spaces need not be green or permanent," Taylor says.

In Chicago, during the winter, snow banks were piled high around baseball diamonds, which are then flooded for skating. In Atlanta, Dallas, Kansas City, Los Angeles, New York and Washington, miles of streets have been blocked in recent years for jogging marathons, and the roller skating fever that swept the country last summer has turned other urban avenues into short-term, weekend rinks.

Public spaces long have been part of the American landscape. Early Spanish Settlements were organized around community plazas and colonnaded streets, such as still exist in Sante Fe, N.M. In the East, open space was provided initially by bucolic village greens or residential squares first laid out in Philadelphia and Savannah.

But the onset of the industrial revolution at the beginning of the 1800s marked a change in attitudes. "For a while, urban open space was treated as a frivolity that people could do without," according to urban history professor Dora Polk Crouch. By the 1830s, the pedulum had swung back as a strong reform movement emerged, culminating late in the century in the development of the great urban parks of Boston, Kansas City, New York, Chicago and San Francisco.

Urban open space continues to be important today, of course, but its concept has expanded from three forms traditionally found in cities and towns streets and sidewalks created mainly for access, vacant land not yet developed but used informally by the public, and parks and playgrounds built and maintained with tax dollars.

Today sophisticated urban regulation and zoning are generating a variety of new open spaces arcades, pedestrian malls, covered plazas, esplanades, decks, loggias and enclosed spaces.

But public reaction to some has been ambivalent. In 1961, for example, New York city approved zoning regulations allowing a developer 20 per cent more floor space if a plaza were designed around a proposed building project. The results, however, have led to high-speed footpaths where pedestrians are not exactly encouraged to linger. "Walking across those expanses of hot, glaring concrete is one of the most alienating things imaginable," one urban resident, the editor of Architectural digest complained.

"We are pleased they have been build, glad they are with us," preservation architect Robert Jensen adds, "but from the criticism by planners and writers and from the simpler judgements of pedestrians and those who use them, recent plazas do not meet our expectations."

On the other hand, some new urban spaces, such as small parks created from mini-size parcels of land wedged between high-rise buildings, have found favor with the public and critics alike. So, too, have new paths laid out in urban areas for jogging, riding, skating and cycling.

What other spaces might be successfully converted for recreation? Rooftops are one possibility. For years they have been underutilized, sometimes reserved for gardens or athletic facilities, more often abandoned to mechanical equipment. Design critic C. Ray Smith sees new potential: for urban residents, they could become an "instant trip into wide open spaces" giving the "freshness and liberated feeling of fetting away to the country for the weekend."

Industrial and military sites as well as abandoned rail and power rights-of-way already are being adopted for use as recreation areas. And as shipping in New York, Baltimore, San Francisco and other harbors diminishes, waterfronts are becoming available for new uses.

Should these projects seem meager compared with vast new urban construction projects, editor E.B. White's observation about the city experience might be kept in mind: "The city is the place for people who like life in tablet form, concentrated: a forest resolved into a single tree, a lake distilled into a fountain, and all the birds of the air embodied in one transient thrush in a small garden."

Agencies Join In Watershed Plan

Progress toward more comprehensive planning and county government input in resolving surface water management problems was achieved at a meeting held in Thief River Falls last Tuesday.

The meeting was attended by representatives of county government and public agencies from Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake, East and West Polk, Clearwater and Beltrami counties who have interest and responsibility in surface water management affairs.

Discussion centered around the potential benefits that could be derived by a more frequent opportunity to review projects and programs of mutual benefit and concern to residents of the Red Lake watershed district. Calvin Kolling, speaking in behalf of the watershed district, expressed the desire and readiness of that organization to provide a forum for discussion and review of various projects being planned by different agencies in the district.

"This would tend to avoid duplication of effort and enhance the potential for cooperative projects to an even greater extent than we are already involved in," he said.

Arnold Person, Oklee, president of the Red Lake watershed district board of managers, said he was most pleased at the interest shown by county boards of commissioners to meet on a regular basis and review areas of possible cooperation and coordination of standards in county and area projects.

"With the increasing demands for watershed district action in various parts of the watershed, the role of county government and its support has taken on renewed importance, Person stated.

It was announced at the meeting that the Minnesota department of natural resources has hired a civil engineer to be stationed at the Bemidji office. He will work with county and watershed engineers to coordinate standards and efforts.

A steering committee is being formed which will provide the opportunity for county government to have regular dialogue with watershed district and other agencies such as SCS, ASCS, FmHA, DNR, ag extension and soil and water conservation districts.

One example cited of an area in which significant progress has been made by cooperating agencies is the Wild Rice watershed district which has headquarters at Ada and has a number of joint projects in progress.

First meeting of the Red Lake Watershed steering committee is scheduled for Tuesday, February 19 at 9:30 a.m. in the watershed district headquarters at 103 North LaBree avenue in Thief River Falls.

Peat Meet At Court House Here Jan. 24

Peat scientists from throughout the state will meet in the court house meeting room in Thief River Falls Thursday, January 24, at 7 p.m. to discuss and debate alternative development strategies for Minnesota's peatlands.

Topics to be considered include the economic and environmental impacts of various utilization strategies, as well as peat's effect on area hydology and its efficacy as an energy source.

The program organized by the University of Minnesota peat education project, is part of a continuing effort to involve the public in this major resource allocation problem facing the state of Minnesota.

"Minnesotans 'own' nearly 3.6 million acres of peatland," according to Rebecca Judge, peat education project director. "There are public lands, controlled by the state. We should all be concerned with finding the best way to develop and manage this abundant resource."

Area residents are encouraged to bring their questions and concerns regarding peat development to the meeting. Those who attend Thursday's meeting are invited to attend a second meeting in Duluth February 16, where they can present their opinions regarding peat utilization options to a panel of area legislators and agency personnel. Transportation to the Duluth meeting will be provided, free of charge, by the peat education project.

Building Permits Hit $5.5 Million

More than $5.5 million in building permits for the city of Thief River Falls were issued during 1979 — a substantial amount of construction but next to the last lowest total in the past five years, according to Bob Bregler, city building inspector.

The 269 permits issued and construction costs projected at $5,505,596 last year were far from the record $8,357,202 on 337 permits issued in 1976. The 1979 total also trailed the $5,577,171 figure for 1977 and the $7,570,972 mark for 1075 but surpassed the $3,084,685 total for 1976.

Inflation in the building business is evident in the average cost of new dwellings constructed in hhe past 10 years. Bregler's compilations show that in 1970 the average house built in Thief River Falls cost $21,385, exclusive of the lot on which the house is to be built. Last year the cost of building materials and construction for the average house built in the city was $45,412.

Three times during the past 10 years the average value has declined from one year to the next, but the general spiral has been ever upward. From 1970 to 1971 average cost dropped from $21,385 to $18,667; from 1973 to 1974 the average declined from $27,849 to $26,635; and from 1976 to 1977 the average permit decreased from $33,314 to $34,821. The 1979 average of $45,412 was the largest jump from the previous year during the 10-year period — increasing from $37,837 in 1978.

Largest building permit issued during 1979 was to Twin City Construction company for the six story elderly housing project at an estimated $1,666,882. Other large permits were to Julian Gunderson for apartments, $454,000; Zion Lutheran church for addition and remodeling, $400,000; Thief River Falls raquetball club, $210,000; Redeemer Lutheran church for addition and remodeling, $187,000; Hardee's, $177,000; and James Winjum Jr., $175,000.

In 1978 the major construction project was the area vocational technical institute which had a building permit for $2,202,000.

Affects of inflation and interest may have been reflected in numbers of building and remodeling projects in the past two years. In 1979 there were 145 permits for remodeling and repairing houses, only slightly fewer than the 169 issued in 1978. Only 21 permits were issued for new single family dwellings in 1979, however, compared with 74 the previous year.

Summary of 1979 construction permits showed the following by categories: 21 permits for single family dwellings, $953,650; 145 permits for remodeling and repairing houses, $349,383; 44 permits for new residential garages, $160,100; 10 permits for new non-residential buildings, $749,800; 44 permits for remodeling non-residential buildings, $1,094,981; two permits for apartment buildings, $2,120,882; one permit for a skyway, $60,000; and two permits for signs, $16,800.

Aspen Comes Into Prominence As Harvestable Crop For Area

MATURE ASPEN may be up to 60 years old, reaching more than a foot in diameter, depending upon the soil conditions where it grows. Commercial raising of aspen for the production of waferboard may be economically feasible in some areas with relatively short rotations of about 25 years. Soil surveys are now being conducted to learn more about soil properties and how they influence aspen growth

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

While land developers and farmers have been busy the past decade clearing land of trees for grain crop production, demand has been increasing for the very product being dozed off the land. Aspen is now being looked at with growing interest as a harvestable crop.

Because of the abundance of aspen — more commonly known as "popple" — and seemingly small demand except for occasional rough lumber or firewood, most area residents have been unable to "see the forest for the trees". The development of waferboard plants in the area, however, is now making the lowly aspen tree a subject of intense interest.

Although aspen is considered a fast-growing species, approximately 25 years is required to grow a crop to harvestable size. With properly managed area and sufficient acreage devoted to aspen as a crop, an adequate sustained annual yield would be possible throughout the northern part of the state.

Don Barron, soil scientist with the U.S. soil conservation service at Thief River Falls, notes that the increased demand for aspen in the Bemidji area means that landowners will need more information about the soil that supports the increasingly valuable resource.

"Soil properties affect growth rates of trees and determine the production potential of various sites," he said. "Knowledge of the basic properties of the soil will help land owners select the most suitable growing sites, harvest time and best size tree for that type of soil, therefore marketing aspen more efficiently."

To date in Minnesota there has been no pressing need for managers and owners of hardwood forestland to manage intensively. With few processing plants there has been only minimal demand for their product. Only about 40 per cent of Minnesota's harvestable aspen is being cut, compared to nearly 100 per cent in Wisconsin and Michigan. Northern Minnesota has 5.4 million acres of aspen to be utilized.

Trees that are as small as four inches in diameter can be used for waferboard — panels made from wafers or flakes chipped from the aspen stock. The flakes are about 1.5 inches long, half an inch wide and two-thousandths of an inch thick. They are larger than particles used in the manufacture of particleboard. Chipped flakes are taken in the direction of the grain of the wood rather than from the end

THE OLD SAYING that a person "can't see the forest for the trees" may be true in regard to aspen as a crop in northern Minnesota. Development of waferboard plants in the northern part of the state is creating a greater demand for the ubiquitous "popple". Stands of aspen like the one above could be clear-cut and left to regenerate new stands which could be harvestable again in as little as 25 years. While the procedure might not be feasible on most private lands, it has implications for large areas of public lands where rotation cuttings would have a marked impact on wildlife

Drinking Age Is Discussed By Wyandotte Club

Drinking age law was discussed at the meeting of the Wyandotte Homemakers club held Tuesday at the Linda Conley home. Marlo Solberg led the discussion.

Members agreed that the law should be reversed making the drinking age 21 years in place of 18 years, now allowed. In an effort to reverse the law, members were urged to write their state representatives before January 22.

Mrs. Conley and Mrs. Solberg served as hostesses and presented the lesson "A Woman's Guide to Financial Planning." They also gave reports on the County Home Councilor meeting which included brief resumes of the Children and Parents Learning Together program; a legislative study on Family Living; and a discussion on the lessons to be studied in 1980-81. They announced that the Achievement day has been set for March 1 at the city auditorium. It was noted crafts will be on display, beginning at 1:30 p.m.; and a style show is scheduled to begin at 2:30. Members wishing to display their crafts are asked to bring them to the February meeting.

A report was given on the Christmas dinner party held at Brooks with Kathy Carlson demonstrating the making of a bib from a towel. She stated that 11 members had attended the party. She also read the thank-you note from the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital, expressing appreciation for the bibs donated to the unit before Christmas.

President Kathy Carlson presided at the meeting and Naomi Peterson read the Homemakers creed. Members attending signed a get-well card for Hazel Jesperson.

Reports Given At Recent Legion Auxiliary Meet

Reports on donations were given at the meeting of the American Legion auxiliary held January 8 at the Post club rooms.

It was noted that at the Christmas party, in place of the gift exchange, members had donated money towards the purchase of needy items for the Veterans at the VA hospital in Fargo. Items, totaling $46 had been bought and sent to the hospital.

In addition to remembering the veterans at Fargo, 48 baskets of fruit had been made and delivered to those in this area.

Children and Youth chairman Mrs. Bern Loe stated that a jacket has been bought and a basket of groceries had been given at Christmas to a needy family. The unit also hosted a Christmas dinner for members of the Friendship club, according to the report given by rehabilitation chairman Lyla Quam.

Adding to the public service donations was the decision made at the January meeting to donate $35 to the Red River Valley Senior Citizen day to be held at Crookston.

Other reports included an account by Avis Odegaard, membership chairman. She stated that at preesent there are 574 members in the local unit.

Members were asked to assist at the bingo games which are held monthly at Oakland Park Nursing home. Those willing to donate their time were asked to contact Mrs. Ed Quam. A call was also made for paper back books, mysteries or Westerns for the VA hospitals. Those having books are asked to contact Mrs. Marilyn Winters or Mrs. Val Chommie.

Of special interest was the presentation to the unit of a ring for the flag staff. The ring was presented by Annabelle Cuppett who had carried the flag at the National convention in Texas. Also marching in that parade and carrying the colors for the post and auxiliary were her husband, Jim, daughter, Marchelle, and son, Paul.

The American Legion auxiliary Emergency fund bulletin was read and discussed. Those wishing further information on the issue were asked to contact Marilyn Winters.

Energy Forum Conducted At Northland CC

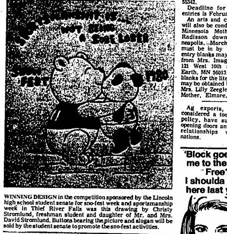
Public discussion forum entitled "Energy and The Way We Live" will be sponsored by the Phi Theta Kappa honorary society of Northland community college as a two part program to be conducted January 23 and 24 beginning at 7 p.m. in room A16 on the Northland campus with the public invited at no charge.

This public discussion is designed to provide citizens with the opportunity to better understand the energy public policy choices we face and the implications that these choices hold for our way of life and that of future generations. "Energy and The Way We Live" program intends to stimulate and air multiple perspectives and viewpoints, thereby providing a broad base for understanding the complex choices before us.

At the first forum session Wednesday, January 23 an exceptional informative film entitled, "The Forgotten Fundamentals of the Energy Crisis" will be shown followed by a reaction to the film by members of the community and how the energy information in the film will effect city planning, school planning, state planning, agriculture and industry. Members who will address themselves to those pressing issues are: Bob Carlson, mayor, Thief River Falls; Ed Elterman, Red Lake Electric; William Ness, Arctic Enterprises; Don Grabanski, Pennington County board; LeRoy Stumpf, farmer; and William Moeglein, Northland college instructor.

After these members have reacted to the film and the contemporary issues involved, persons attending this national issues forum will be provided an opportunity for a public discussion on the energy crisis.

"This forum is designed to permit area citizens to enter into a serious and thoughtful examination of past, present and future dimensions of the energy issue", said James Dalager, science instructor at Northland community college and coordinator of the energy forum.



WINNING DESIGN in the competition sponsored by the Lincoln high school student senate for sno-fest week and sportsmanship week in Thief River Falls was this drawing by Christy Stromlund, freshman student and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Stromlund. Buttons bearing the picture and slogan will be sold by the student senate to promote the sno-fest activities.

U of M Researchers Predict '80 Events

by Mark E. Canney
'U' M News Service

Science and technology in the 1970's gave us our first look at the surface of Mars and the moons of Jupiter. They brought us a test tube baby, and tried to tell us where Skylab would fall. Through them we discovered both the usefulness and the fallibility of nuclear power. Terms like quark, quasar, black hole, recombinant DNA, silicon chip, and meltdown found their way into the popular press and everyday language.

No one knows what the 1980s will bring, in new discoveries and scientific jargon, but the scientific and technological inroads made during the past decade can provide us with clues to what the next decade holds in store for us.

The following is a composite of what major events University of Minnesota researchers predict for their respective fields in the 1980s.

J. Edward Anderson, professor of electrical engineering with special research interests in transportation:

"All of the action in mass transportation research will occur in Japan and Germany." Anderson blames institutional structures within the federal government for the clear lack of U.S. research on mass transport systems.

Germany and Japan have made great strides in the area of electrically powered mass transit systems, he said, and if the United States plans mass transit systems for its cities, it will have to import the hardware from Japan, Germany, or perhaps Canada.

Type of mass transit system Anderson envisions is a narrow, electrically powered monorail system that will work like an elevator — the passenger will be delivered to a destination selected with the push of a botton.

Lawrence Rudnick, astronomy professor:

"There are a couple of events that will be important to astronomers in the '80s. One very important event will be the launching of the space shuttle." The space shuttle will enable astronomers to run on-board experiments that should yield a greater understanding of the universe, Rudnick said.

Astronomers will also get a better look at the universe after the planned launching of an orbiting telescope, its range unhindered by earth's atmosphere.

Kenneth Keller, head of chemical engineering and materials science:

"The most exciting advances of the '80s will be the use of hybrid organs in humans." A combination of natural tissue and mechanical devices to protect the tissue from rejection will make up the hybrid organ of the future, Keller said.

Natural tissue will supply the patient with the products necessary for normal functioning — products such as hormones — and the mechanical device will provide protection for the tissue against natural rejection forces present in the body.

Research on hybrid organs is now being done with animals, but Keller predicts the implanting of hybrid organs in humans during the next decade.

Douglas Pratt, head of the botany department, with research interests in the use of biomass for energy:

"The '80s should show a gradual move towards the decentralization of energy in the United States." Citing examples of the growing use of regional energy sources such as wood, wind and solar energy, Pratt said recognition that use of a single, national source is inefficient will soon make regional sources of energy more feasible.

Total decentralization of energy will not happen during the '80s, but use of regional energy sources will gain a foothold, he said.

Raymond Sterling, director of the Underground Space Center:

"I see a rapid increase in the number of earth-sheltered buildings in the '80s. The fact that earth-sheltered buildings have little environmental or visual impact combined with the fact that they are cost-effective should give earth-sheltered housing a boost," Sterling said.

"I don't think earth-sheltered houses will take a pole position in the housing industry of the '80s, but there will be an increase in the number of such houses built, he said.

George Freier, physics professor and meteorology researcher:

"Plans for investigating the effects of solar winds on our atmosphere will have a great impact on our ability to forecast the weather in the '80s." Better knowledge of the atmospheric effects of solar winds will improve long-range weather forecasting and yield a more detailed synopsis of weather effects, Freier said.

"This type of weather forecasting will have an immense impact on the agricultural industry in the next decade," he said.

Cecil Waddington, professor of physics, who has done research for NASA:

"The launching of the shuttlecraft will have a tremendous impact on the U.S. space program." Waddington predicts that the United States will no longer launch satellites from the surface of the earth, but from the space shuttle.

"Russia sends 10 satellites into orbit for every one the United States sends," he said. "The space shuttle should increase the amount of satellite launching the United States can undertake."

William Munro, professor of computer science:

"Home computers will be as commonplace as the television."

Munro sees the home computer being used for cooking, balancing the budget, shopping, and keeping track of daily responsibilities for the owner.

Michael Hoffmann, professor of environmental engineering:

"The technology will be available for alleviating many of the pollution problems in the world. The question is whether or not it will be applied." The social, economic, and political structure of the '80s will determine whether the available technology is used, Hoffman said.

"The biggest concerns in the field of environmental protection will have to be hazardous waste storage and the protection of water resources in the '80s," Hoffmann said.

WAFERBOARD, a product created with the use of wood chipped from the aspen tree and an epoxy type finish, is being used extensively in the building trades. It has the advantage of being used indoors or outdoors because of its weatherproof finish but probably lacks the strength of conventional plywood, particularly in the smaller thicknesses. One of the brand names of the product is marked on the side of a pile at Peterson Lumber company (above) and clearly indicates the type of wood used in making up the product. Chips in the 4x8 panels are shown in the bottom photo. Development of this type of material has created an increased demand for aspen to supply waferboard plants.

Invite Artists To Enter Camp Courage Event

Artists and photographers are encouraged to enter the 1980 Courage Christmas cards competition. Deadline for submitting entries is March 1. Income from the sale of the cards helps Courage center provide services to persons with disabilities and those with speech, hearing and visual impairments.

Themes can include winter scenes, nature, children, brotherhood and others. Volunteer art selection committee is especially seeking bright holiday designs and art depicting the religious significance of Christmas. Paintings, drawings, photography, needle work, batik, collage, sculpture and other forms of art may be submitted. Art by handicapped artists and by children is particularly welcomed.

Persons interested in entering the Christmas card competition should contact Courage center to request the application form. Artists lend the use of their work for the project, and gain recognition from the wide distribution of the cards.

Artists should send or bring color slides or photos of their work, or the original work, to Courage Center, 3915 Golden Valley Road, Golden Valley, Minnesota, 55422 by March 1. For more information, phone (612) 588-0811.

Courage center services include recreation, education, rehabilitation and employment, and are available to children and adults with disabilities throughout the Upper Midwest, regardless of their ability to pay. Headquarters for Courage center, a United Way organization, is in Golden Valley, a suburb of Minneapolis.

Clinic For Handicapped February 14

Aspen Gains Prominence As Potential Crop

grain, adding to the strength of the completed panels.

Wayne Hanson, supervisor of the forest resources and products section of the Minnesota department of natural resources, says northern Minnesota's new waferboard plants will create a good market for the private land owner and the state. The new plants are expected to buy about 350,000 cords per year — more than half of the total amount of aspen presently being cut in Minnesota annually.

Lloyd Wagner, a department of natural resources forester in St. Paul, said foresters have not put much emphasis on soil previously because soils information has not been as available as it has for cropland.

"They have made management decisions by looking at what's above the ground," he said. "But you can't determine all there is to know about the quality of a site just by looking at the trees, because you don't know the past history. What looks like a bad stand may actually be a good site. It may have been grazed heavily or burned, or the best trees may have been logged off, or there might have been too much competition from brush or shade, or the trees may have a genetic problem. Soil information is really the only reliable indicator of a site's production potential."

Medium and heavy loamy soil produces the best aspen. Lighter, sandy soil generally does not, although sandy soil that has loamy material within four feet of the surface will produce good aspen. The trees grow well in fairly wet conditions as long as the water table is not too high or permeability of the soil so slow that water stands on the surface most of the year.

Research conducted by SCS soil scientist Paul Nyberg with foresters in private industry suggests that if lime is not present in the root zone, aspen deteriorates before reaching maturity. The research also makes him suspect that dense subsoil causes the trunks of aspen to grow crooked, making poor pulpwood and saw logs.

One of the features of a soil survey is that it projects what the size of various species of trees will be in 50 years on the different kinds of soil in a county. It groups similar soil types into categories called "woodland suitability groups" to help foresters and woodlot owners understand how various species would grow on a particular site.

On certain soils, aspen will grow well for 60 years, reaching diameters of more than a foot before they mature. On poorer sites the trees may mature twice as fast but reach much smaller diameters. On the better sites it may be more profitable to let the trees grow until they are 50 to 60 years old and then harvest them as high quality saw logs.

On other sites it would be more economical for the owner to harvest the aspen for the waferboard market because the trees will deteriorate before they have grown large enough for higher quality wood.

"Aspen that is raised specifically for waferboard production can be harvested in relatively short rotations of about 25 years," states SCS soil scientist Ray Diedrick. "Shorter rotations will require much more intensive management. Soil properties affect growth rates and the amount of wood that will be produced on a specific site. They also influence how easy it will be to harvest the trees and to determine what kind of erosion hazards will result from cutting an area, and what kind of regrowth might be expected."

Major interest in aspen development is presently centered in the counties of Beltrami, Clearwater, Cass, Hubbard, Lake of the Woods, Itasca and Koochiching. Companies owning waferboard plants have indicated a need for approximately 130,000 cords annually — a portion coming from company-owned lands or contracts with private land owners, but most from county or state lands.

Figures on allowable annual cut for each of the seven counties have been prepared by the department of natural resources but do not reflect the backlog or surplus that is immediately available in addition to the annual sustained yield. On a county-by-county basis, the allowable annual cut is believed to be as follows on county-managed or state land combined:

Beltrami — 63,254 cords; Clearwater, 28,180 cords; Cass, 29,637 cords; Hubbard, 43,544 cords; Itasca, 54,636 cords; Lake of the Woods, 25,928 cords; and Koochiching, approximately 162,000 cords.

In addition, the DNR estimates the following amounts of allowable annual harvest of aspen: Red Lake Indian reservation, Beltrami county, 76,150 cords; Red Lake Indian reservation, Clearwater county, 30,503 cords; White Earth Indian reservation, Clearwater county, 17,098 cords; Chippewa national forest, Beltrami, Cass and Itasca counties, 27,657 cords.

It may require some changed thinking to consider the common popple grove as a unit of cropland, but the possibilities are certainly there. If the practice is generally accepted, it would have a major positive effect on the northern Minnesota economy and native wildlife, particularly ruffed grouse, moose and whitetail deer.

Travel Centers Provide Road, Weather Info

Road conditions and weather information is now available to the public through cathode ray tube (CRT) computer terminals at Minnesota's Moorhead, Thompson Hill, Albert Lea and Dresbach travel information centers, according to Commissioner Richard P. Braun, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Mn-DOT's 16 statewide maintenance districts have CRT computer terminals and send road conditions reports direct to the travel information centers. Weather and road conditions information is also supplied to the centers by Mn-DOT's centralized road information unit in St. Paul.

Motorists who stop at travel information center desks are personally supplied with road conditions and weather information. This information is also posted as the situation changes when information center employees are on duty (9 a.m. to 5 p.m. seven days a week).

Travelers can push a button at a travel information center and get the latest weather conditions and forecasts through a radio hookup to the National weather service too.

Telephone calls concerning road conditions and weather information are personally answered by information center employees during normal working hours.

The CRT terminals replace teletype receivers and each cost $2,000 a year less to operate. They have the capability to transmit as well as receive information, Braun said.

Moorhead center is off eastbound I-94, 1.5 miles east of Moorhead, and the Thompson Hill center is at the I-35 — US 2 junction, west limits of Duluth. Albert Lea center is off northbound I-35, one mile north of the Iowa state line, and the Dresbach center is off westbound I-90, 2.5 miles north of La Crescent.

158 Attend Cub Scout Caber Day

"This was the first time that Cub Scouts within the whole district have done something together," stated Louise McLean, chairman of the Cub Scout Caber day conducted Saturday afternoon in the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

Caber day was conducted recently in the Many Waters district for the first time and Saturday's Caber day in Thief River Falls was the first one conducted in District 12, Mrs. McLean said.

Boys participating in the afternoon activities ranged in ages from eight to 10. Three co-chairman also helped organize the afternoon events for the boys, including Mr. and Mrs. Paul Morkassel of Warren, and Michael McLean, Louise McLean's son.

"We feel the day was a success," Mrs. McLean said. "We thought we'd be lucky if we got 100 Cub Scouts to participate — since this was a first for the event, but 158 boys attended to participate in the activities."

Parents, of the Cub Scouts helped run the various 14 stations set up throughout the auditorium. Each boy was given a caber stick in which his point record was written after completing an activity. The total for all events was then marked at the bottom of the stick.

"We call it a physical activity day," Mrs. McLean said. "The boys do not compete against anyone else but themselves. The activities they perform and the points they receive let them know what condition they are in."

All the activities the boys had to complete throughout the day are things they will all have to be able to do later as Boy scouts, she said. Each boy will receive a patch for his participation Caber day.

The 14 events that were situated throughout the auditorium included a basketball throw using a football; putting, using a baseball bat for a putter and a baseball in place of a golf ball; tire obstacle, where the boys jumped in a series of five car tires without stopping or falling over; archery, using a bow and a plunger for an arrow; swimming, using a creeper to "swim" approximately 15 feet; field goal, using a basketball thrown backwards over the head to try and make a field goal by standing eight to 10 feet away from the goal; driving skill, in which the boys rolled a tire from a jump four inches high between two rows of boxes without knocking them over.

The high jump and broad jump activities involved wearing men's overshoes to jump as far as possible; a bean bag toss; a rope climb in which the boys were instructed to climb the rope to their height three times; an obstacle course, which involved a pyramid of baled straw with tunnels through the bales where the boys had to crawl through two times; a log walk; and a television star platform in which each Cub Scout was to pretend he was on television to repeat the Cub Scout promise. Each boy would earn up to a total of 50 points for satisfactorily completing each activity.

A special thank you is extended to all those who participated in the event, and to those who helped to make the first Cub Scout Caber Day in District 12 a success, Mrs. McLean concluded. (Additional photos of Caber Day activities will be included in Wednesday's edition of the Times).

The author Robert Louis Stevenson, offered this formula: "Make up your mind to be happy. Find pleasure in simple things. Make the best of your circumstances. Everyone has something of sorrow intermingled with the gladness of life. The trick is to make laughter outweigh the tears."

Respectfully,

THIEF RIVER FALLS

VAN WILCOX, International Falls, and president of the Minnesota state Elks Bowling association, warmed up before the 1980 Elks Bowling tournaments which began Saturday at the Family Bowl in Thief River Falls. Tournaments will run for five consecutive weekends through February 16-17, with Elks members from throughout the state competing in team, singles and doubles events.

VARIOUS "HELPERS" aided young cub Scouts Saturday afternoon as they participated in Caber Day conducted at the Thief River Falls city auditorium. One of the 14 events that had to be completed before points were totaled on a caber stick, was archery — using a plunger for an arrow.

DR. ROBERT APPLEMAN, extension dairyman at the University of Minnesota in St. Paul (right), discusses diary management problems with Larry Ankrum, Angus, who is involved with the Milo Carlson dairy operation east of Angus. Dr. Appleman was on the program at the Northwest experiment station's dairy day at Crookston.

Dairymen Learn At Experiment Station

Dairy farmers in northwestern Minnesota, from Roseau on the north, to Pelican Rapids in the south, attended the annual dairy day events at the Northwest experiment station, Crookston, January 15.

The group heard Gene Miller, agricultural engineer at the experiment station, report on three years of solar heating activity. In sharing the results of the instrumentation and records of the project, Miller encouraged dairy farmers to utilize solar systems on their farms and indicated that in many cases farmers could construct their own units.

Metered solar inputs were shown that indicate that vertical mounting or sidewall mounting may be most effective in absorbing solar energy for heating during the northwest Minnesota winters. Miller stressed that the amount of energy absorbed by a flat-plate collector depended to a large extent on the size or number of square feet of collector exposed to the sun.

Canadian researcher Dr. J. Ray Ingalls, University of Manitoba, gave the dairymen a report on nutrition research being conducted there. Dr. Ingalls related the Canadian experience with fababeans and showed their increasing importance to the nutrition of dairy herds in Canada. Manitoba research on the manner in which protein is utilized by the dairy cow was also reported.

Dr. Ralph J. Farnsworth, college of veterinary medicine, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, presented information on the relationship of the milking machine to mastitis. He said that clinical mastitis that the farmer usually sees is only the tip of the iceberg as far as the total mastitis loss to the dairyman is concerned. Specific reference to the fit of milking machines and to other mechanical milking problems was discussed by Farnsworth.

A very specific and detailed pictorial analysis of a milking machine system was presented by Dr. Robert D. Appleman, extension dairyman in the department of animal science, University of Minnesota, St. Paul. He spoke on specific vacuum capacity, relation of pipeline height to vacuum available at the milking unit, and the relationships of equipment to milk volume capabilities of systems. Appleman recommended specific maintenance items on regulators and showed versions of homemade testing equipment that a farmer might utilize for checking his system.

Sheldon Erickson, dairyman from Badger, was the producer selected this year to present his version of breeding and management of successful dairy herd. Erickson showed pictures of various parts of his enterprise and related the results of feeding high moisture barley to his dairy herd. Erickson said that he found no problem with ensiling high moisture barley (at 20 per cent moisture) in a conventional stave silo when rolling it before ensiling.

Erickson stated that he was able to get his high producing cows to eat more pounds of the high moisture grain than other grain rations and that increased production resulted. He indicated that cold calf confinement areas was his idea of best management but that often dairy helpers do not like this system. He conceded that he probably uses too many bull selections but he related that highly touted bulls do not always produce the best results in a specific dairyman's line.

Dairymen were reminded during the course of the program that the entire report of the diary research by the University of Minnesota is available in a 1980 Minnesota dairy report. Persons interested in more detail on checking out their milking units should refer to extension bulletin 434 which has been just recently revised and is available at all county extension offices.

Snake River Watershed Is Given Okay

Congressman Arlan Stangeland announced today that the soil conservation service will authorize assistance to local organizations in preparing a watershed plan for the Snake river watershed. The assistance is provided under authority of the watershed protection and flood prevention act.

Snake river watershed is located in Marshall, Pennington and Polk Counties and covers an area of 52,000 acres. Sponsoring local organizations are the Middle river — Snake river watershed district board of managers, Marshall county soil and water conservation district, Pennington county soil and water conservation district, West Polk soil and water conservation district, Warren city council and Polk county board of commissioners. The application was approved the Minnesota state soil and water conservation board.

Carter Okays Northern Tier Pipeline Plan

President Carter has approved the recommendation of interior secretary Cecil Andurs that the Northern tier pipeline be designated as the route to carry Alaskan crude oil from the west coast to refineries in northern Minnesota, Congressman Arlan Stangeland has announced.

"Approval of the Northern tier pipeline will be a big boost for the state of Minnesota and the entire midwest by improving greatly the nation's ability to transport needed energy supplies. I am pleased with the President's decision because the Northern tier is the most attractive alternative. It offers the greatest transportation capacity and possibly provides the largest incentive to increase exploration and production," Stangeland said.

Under this plan oil would be transported from Valdez, Alaska, to Port Angeles, Washington, by tanker. From this point, the crude would begin a 1,568-mile journey by pipeline to Clearbrook. The project involves a new deep water port and terminal facility in Puget Sound at Port Angeles and a pipeline with a potential capacity of 933 million barrels of oil per day.

Officials estimate construction will take two years at an estimated cost of $1.4 billion. Potential production capacity in Alaska has been estimated at two million barrels per day and possibly as high as four million, if there are additional discoveries.

"Midwest refineries have historically been dependent on Canadian oil imports, but due to Canada's decision to export fewer barrels of oil the security of midwest energy supplies is threatened. However, with the Northern tier pipeline, refineries in Minnesota will be assured greater energy security by providing improved access to secure domestic crude oil," said Stangeland.

County NFO Hears About Moratorium

Two week moratorium on grain sales was set by the National Farmers organization recently with information on the moratorium presented at the annual meeting of the Pennington county NFO by Tom Feigen, new NFO grain coordinator for the Bemidji marketing area.

The moratorium is in response to President Carter's embargo of grain sales to the Soviet Union. Feigen encouraged all members to read "Merchants of Grain" by Dan Morgan, a book which tells how grain companies operate.

At the annual meeting in the Hanging Gardens restaurant there were reports given on the national convention, mention made of the forthcoming beef referendum and an extended discussion held on the feasibility of building an alcohol plant in the area.

Officers elected were as follows: Merle Lundeen, Trail, chairman; Albert Mehrkens, Thief River Falls, vice chairman; Karen Peterson, Trail, secretary; Ellie Horachek, Goodridge, treasurer; Edward Stucy, Goodridge, delegate; Clair Larson of Thief River Falls, Shirley Lundeen of Trail and Robert Parnow of Goodridge, trustees; Adeline Hanson of Trail and Bernice Johnson of Goodridge, publicity; and Lauretta Stucy of Goodridge and Gertrude Carpenter of Thief River Falls, women's activity coordinators.

Not A Special Interest Group

Writer of the following item is unknown:

We are not a special interest group. We are simply your mothers, fathers and grandparents. We are not asking for a handout.

We ran the world until you came along. Operated the factories. Tilled the soil. Bore the children. Taught them. Tended the sick. Built the freeways and railroads, dug the subways.

We are simply the generation or two that preceded you.

When we are gone, you will move up to the vanguard and another generation will wonder what to do with you short of pushing you off a cliff.

We are asking you, our children and grandchildren, for nothing that isn't due to us. . .Millions of us fought all our lives for a peaceful world. We did not achieve it. Do not indict us for our failure. We leave it to you to wage that struggle, not in millions but in tens of millions.

When we ask for a chance to live our old age in comfort, creativity and usefulness, we ask it not for ourselves, but for you.

We are not a special interest group. We are your parents and grandparents. We are your roots. You are our continuity. What we gain is your inheritance.

Cost Containment

Following editorial is from the Association of Minnesota Counties publication:

The county government response to the increased costs of doing business and continuing inflation can't always be to ask for "more"! This asking from local taxpayers of other levels of government has been the single-minded traditional governmental way of responding to increased needs far too long.

It's time to inject the idea of cost containment measures into the delivery of all county services. This is especially true with regard to health, welfare, and corrections services which form the bulk of most county budgets. However, cost containment is not merely hacking and slashing away at government costs without regard to human and economic consequences. Penny-wise and pound-foolish decisions are not cost containment!

Unfortunately, there is not yet a solid body of knowledge about effective cost containment actions which can be taken in local government. At present, elected officials and professionals who are interested in developing responsible cost controls can only look to the medical field in Minnesota for examples of formalized efforts.

One such approach is that greater utilization of existing hospital facilities is being encouraged by actions of health systems planning agencies. Physicians themselves — often through Health Maintenance Organizations — are using peer review of hospital usage and surgical necessity as a way of controlling the most expensive medical costs. Nationally, cost containment of medical costs is a major political issue. Cost containment of all governmental services may soon become an equally important issue.

It would also be desirable if solid, "Hard" data were available on the costs and effectiveness of each county service. That is some time away. However, under the current circumstances, we cannot sit on or throw up our hands and wait for a yet-to-be-invented information system and still emerging cost analysts' expertise to point the way toward cost containment. Officials in 87 counties need to begin thinking in cost containment terms — and asking thoughtful questions about the quality and effectiveness of service delivery.

Counties should be asking whether professionals in people-helping services can begin to develop consensus agreement upon standards of service. What is an adequate level - too little or too much? When are you just "going through the motions" or having a program "only on paper"? County boards should ask whether public services should be provided if they cannot be provided at an effective level. The "way we have done it for years" needs to be re-examined in the courthouse, the law enforcement center, the highway building, the family service building, and everywhere in the courthouse.

This is a fact of human nature and life! It will take longer to get all decision-makers in county government thinking and acting in cost effectiveness terms that it will to generate "hard data" about service effectiveness. So, let's get on with redirecting our thinking now. At the same time, let's begin a search for a long-range strategy that can provide an on-going monitoring of government service costs as a guide to elected and appointed officials at local, state and federal levels of government.

The Association of Minnesota Counties intends to be a catalyst and proponent in the development of cost containment measures for public services. It hopes that other government agencies and organizations will develop a similar interest and commitment.

Leave It To Children!

Ken Wilson, an elementary school teacher in Missouri, writes about some of the thoughts produced by his students during discussion of the European Economic community and study of the European common market. Here are some of the thoughts which came to light:

"When they first started the common market, the men who started it had to work around the clock, 12 days a week."

"The common market started in the pre-me times."

"The common market is a market of a bigly size."

"The common market is even more important than its name sounds."

"Did I pass that test about the common market and why not?"

"One say we could be sure that the common market countries would always be happy and never poor is oh I forgot what I started to say."

"At one time back in the past Europe was all one big country. Yes it was. I can show where it says."

"Jean Monnet was one of the four fathers of the common market. Both sides of Jean Monnet were well educated."

"It is always a few hours later in Europe than it is here in America because people have not lived here as long."

"France has pyrites. Pyrites are something that only encyclopedias know for sure."

"Pyrites are one of two things. One, they are minerals. Or two, I don't know."

"Belgium also grows hops. Hops can't really do what their name says they do."

"I read somewhere that Belgium is the most densely populated country in Europe. But just because Belgium's population is dense does not mean its people are."

"One thing I don't know about Belgium's industries is plenty."

"I was thinking Belgium was north of the Netherlands. When I learned different, all the thoughts I was going to say went in a swallow down my throat."

"They have found a lot of petroleum under this country (Netherlands). So far, petroleum is the most valuable thing on which the hand of man has ever set foot."

"Boo! I did not mean to scare you so bad but that is how I feel every time I think about so many people living below sea level."

"Most of the Netherlands is definitely more or less above sea level except for the northern nine tenths."

"Luxembourg could just as well be called something else if they could only think of a simpler name for it."

"That country will be completely under water in a few hundred years. Just wait and see."

"More people live there than is possible."

Question: "Why is much of the soil in Germany not naturally fertile?"

Answer: "Because you say so."

"Hybred poultry people there have learned not to cross their chickens until they are hatched."

"Someone in here once said they have a lot of volcanos in Italy. Is that so? I think it is because I believe I was the one that said it."

"When I learned we were going to watch a movie about Mount Vesuvius erupting, I told my feet to quiet down but they felt too Saturday to listen."

"Volcanos give us hot java."

"The Apennines mountains have been there forever and maybe even longer."

"When people first came there, trying to cross over those mountains was a very exciting way of getting killed."

Question: "The highest peak in the Apennines is 9,560 feet. In a free fall, how long would it take to reach the ground from a height of 9,560 feet?"

Answer: "I have never performed this experiment."

Farmer Plight In Embargo Is Major Concern

Minnesota Congressman Arlan Stangeland joined other congressmen and senators from grain producing states at the White House Tuesday night and encouraged President Carter to increase and improve his efforts to protect the American farmer from undue economic stress as a result of the Russian embargo.

"The needs of the American farmer are not hard to understand," said Stangeland. "Farmers are patriotic and will support the embargo, but all they are asking is for the President to make sure the American taxpayer will share the economic burden and that they will not have to face it alone. I don't think that's too much to ask."

Stangeland says he has tried to impress on the President that the actions taken are not adequate for the farmers, but he adds President Carter reinterated several times that he doesn't want the farmers to profit excessively from the Russian attack on Afghanistan.

"We tried to point out the farmers do not want to profit from this unfortunate situation, but there merely want protection from bearing greater economic hardship than is necessary," Stangeland said.

The President has announced a 15 cent increase in support prices for wheat and a 10 cent increase for corn, and, in addition, he says he's planning on increased storage payments for farmers, but Congressman Stangeland says these increases are "not adequate and ought to be higher in order to really protect the American farmer.

"One of the problems I don't think the Carter administration has addressed is that we're going to be over producing if we're not able to sell grain to the Soviets. Something more must be done and it is for this reason I will continue to urge the President and agriculture secretary Bob Bergland to immediately institute a minimum set-aside program on wheat and other grain of 20 per cent," Stangeland concluded.

St. Paul Winter Carnival Is Set Feb. 1-10

Activities ranging from snow fun to serious national indoor and outdoor competitions launch the 94th anniversary Saint Paul winter carnival, the nation's largest winter festival. Scheduled for February 1-10, The "Jest Fest" theme commemorates the international Shrine clown mid-winter convention.

Saint Paul winter carnival was founded in 1886 when an eastern journalist's challenge that "St. Paul is another Siberia — unfit for human habitation," was taken up by civic leaders. They wanted to prove that the winter climate was brisk and vigorous, and that snow and ice were assets.

King Boreas and his Queen of Snows rule over the winter realm until arch-rival Vulcanus Rex, King of Fire, overthrows Boreas at Carnival's close.

This year's edition features over 100 events. The carnival park family activity center features mini-boggan sliding, major snow sculptures, a larger-than-life sculpture, free sleigh rides, a keg-put contest and a kik sled race.

World's largest pancake breakfast sponsored as a Lions club benefit for the Lions eye bank, U of M hearing center and Camp New Hope, will have pancakes served all day at the civic center starting at 8 a.m. through the grande day parade February 2.

Land O' Lakes, Inc., will bring the most prestigious invitational ice carving contest to carnival in decades with $2,000 in awards. Viewing will take place throughout the week at the Minnesota Federal plaza downtown.

King Boreas grande day parade February 2 will feature over 500 Shrine clowns. Sports grand marshal Rick Mears, 1979 Indy "500" champion racer, will appear on his "Gould Charge" racing car. The civic center pre-parade show will feature band competition and variety acts, with spectacular new floats. The torchlight parade follows February 9.

Food tastes can be satisfied at a taco-eating contest or outdoor ice cream social. Cross country skiing, ski jumping, ice fishing, speedskating, winterized volleyball in the snow, softball on ice, or bocce ball on ice await winter enthusiasts. Pageantry and color surround the coronations of Kong Boreas, the lovely Queen of Snows and the junior as well as senior citizen royal court.

Spirit of fun and excitement generated during the 1880's has been carried along to present ways, annually transforming Saint Paul into the winter fun capital of the world.

A complete schedule is available by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Saint Paul Winter Carnival Association, Bremer Building, 98 E. 7th Street, Saint Paul, Minnesota 55101.

Churches Note 200th Year Of Sunday School

Local Lutheran church will be joining congregations throughout the world in observing the two-hundredth anniversary of the Sunday school in 1980. Along with extensive plans by the National council and World council of church for conferences and variety of materials on the Sunday school, an international inter-Lutheran committee is developing ways and means of renewing and strengthening the Sunday school as part of a broader educational ministry for congregations and their communities.

Lutheran church in America, along with churches of the American Lutheran church and the Lutheran church-Missouri synod, is arranging area and regional inter-church celebrations through the the United States and Canada. Posters and other materials for local observances of the bicentennial are being sent to local churches in March. Among the resources will be a brochure on how the event could be locally celebrated.

Present-day Sunday schools are very different from those established by Robert Raikes and others late in the eighteenth century. In the early days during the industrial revolution in England, Sunday classes combined reading and religious instruction for the children who worked long hours in shops and factories. Today Sunday schools have generally become church schools with more direct religious objectives, and in America they usually serve all ages.

Although the Sunday church school has grown up and changed over the years, churches in all parts of the world will be celebrating the two-hundredth anniversary of that first beginning of the Sunday school movement by Robert Raikes in 1780. For many it will be a year of rethinking the nature and place of the Sunday school in a much enlarged parish program. Attention will also be on ways of improving the Sunday school as a means for Christian religious and moral education for all ages.

Those who think the present Sunday church school of 45 to 75 minutes is too long will be amazed at the original time plan. Classes were held from 10 a.m. to 12 noon then the children were expected back at 1 p.m. for church worship, after which classes continued till 5:30 p.m. Teachers were paid one shilling a Sunday.

One rule Raikes emphasized was that all must come with clean hands and face and with hair combed. To encourage learning Raikes gave gifts of Bibles and other books, combs, shoes and articles of clothing to those who did well.

Even these simple and rather moralistic beginnings produced remarkably good results. Raikes wrote in a letter, "A woman who lived in a lane where I had fixed a school told me that the place was quite a heaven on Sundays compared with what it used to be."

Raikes also quoted the testimony of a Mr. Church, a manufacturer of hemp and flax, who employed a great number of children: "Since the establishment of the Sunday schools they have seemed anxious to show that they are not the ignorant, illiterate creatures that they were before. . . I never conceived that a reformation so singular could have been effected amongst the set of untutored beings I employ."

When Sunday schools and later Sabbath evening schools became popular in England, Scotland and Wales, many clergy and lay people opposed them because, they said, children should be taught by their parents and because results might lead to the overturn of social classes and the government. Some clergy wanted all to attend the church services twice a day and called Sunday Schools the work of the devil.

But in spite of their opposition, the idea of Sunday schools spread rapidly. It was imported first to Philadelphia, Boston and New York, and in 1824 the American Sunday school union was organized in Philadelphia to help spread Sunday schools westward with the nation. From the outset Sunday schools were mainly an endeavor of lay church members.

For two centuries a huge number of Sunday school leaders and teachers have helped develop the faith and life of millions of church members, though at times they were criticized and unappreciated, and usually worked with no pay. Today, in spite of many disputes over what it should be teaching and the methods being employed, the Sunday school continues to the largest, most widely used educational agency and program of the Protestant church in America.

From Great Britain and the United States the Sunday school idea has spread also into other parts of the world. It is estimated that enrollments exceed 50 million. Latest report of Lutheran churches in North America indicate a membership of about two million in their Sunday school classes or groups.

ROBERT RAIKES, founder of Sunday schools, was a printer in Gloucester, England, and owner of the Gloucester Journal. He started a Sunday school in 1780 to provide some instruction for the many uneducated children on the streets of Gloucester on Sundays. During the week the children worked in shops and factories. Raikes called his schools "my little project for civilizing the rising generation of the poor." The schools Raikes started were not the first of their kind, but they attracted general attention throughout England and were the beginning of a world wide Sunday school movement that has continued for 200 years. In this year 1980 church groups throughout the world will be celebrating the part Sunday church schools have had in the life and work of the Christian church. Churches also will be evaluating the present state of their Sunday schools in terms of future purposes, directions and values.

Aliens Must Report Address Or Pay Penalty

Gerald L. Coyle, district director of the immigration and naturalization service, St. Paul, urges all aliens who have not reported their address to the government to do so no later than January 31 and to avoid possible penalties.

Law requires that every alien except those having diplomatic status and representatives of certain international organizations must file the address report during January of each year. Forms with which to make the reports are available at all post offices and immigration and naturalization services offices. It is an easy matter to fill out one of these cards, Form I-53, and then just place a postage stamp on the reverse of this card and drop the card in the mail box.

Social security numbers should be shown on the registration card. Aliens and employers are advised that the possession of a social security card does not entitle aliens to work in the United States. Only aliens admitted for permanent residence or certain classes of nonresident aliens authorized to do so by the Immigration and Naturalization service, may take employment. Violators of this restriction are subject to certain penalties.

To answer a question most Thief River Falls hockey fans were asking Saturday night after goalie Bill Jury and his Lincoln high school teammates shut out Roseau 4-0, it was the first time the Prowlers shut out the Rams since the 1964-65 season.

Goalie Jeff Noel blanked the Rams 1-0 at Roseau in the second game of the 1964-65 season between the two hockey rivals who had skated to a 2-2 tie here earlier in the year. Noel stopped 27 shots that night for his fourth shutout of the season. Only goal of the game was scored by Merle Sampson in the opening minutes of the first period on a long slap shot from the blue line that beat Roseau goalie Jim Nelson, now an assistant coach at the University of Minnesota after success as a high school coach at Grand Rapids.

And the last time Thief River Falls shut out Roseau was also the last year the Prowlers appeared in a Minnesota state high school hockey tournament. Although the Rams beat the Prowlers 3-1 in the 1965 Region 8 championship game played at Roseau, Thief River Falls came back to beat the Region 7 representative Duluth East 2-1 at Hibbing for the back door Region 3 crown.

Diane Fisher Near 1,000 Points

Her home town fans will have the opportunity to watch Diane Fisher join the 1,000-point basketball scoring club Tuesday when Plummer hosts Oslo in a girls high school basketball game.

Fisher, a four-year starter for the Cardinals, will start the game with 996 points. She could have had her 1,000 by now, but after a 17-point first half performance at Red Lake Falls Thursday, Plummer coach Rick Koivisto told her to "cool it." They wanted Diane to accomplish the feat at home.

And with a 52-29 third quarter lead, there apparently was no reason for Fisher to score any more points. And while not scoring, she picked up five fouls "screwing around," mused Koivisto.

So what happens? Plummer was out-scored 26-4 in the fourth quarter before escaping with a 56-55 win.

"It was a bizzare game," confessed Koivisto. "With a 52-29 lead, I figured it was pretty safe."

Going into the 1979-80 season, there were 30 Minnesota high school girls listed in the 1,000-point club, an unofficial listing of the top boys and girls high school basketball scorers updated annually by the West Central Daily Tribune in Willmar.

New York Mills star Janet Karvonen heads the list of girls, entering the current season with 2,284 points. She is now well within striking distance of the recognized all-time Minnesota high school career scoring record of 2,852 points by Norm Grow of Foley, a 4½-year scoring binge that ended in 1958. Karvonen has already passed Bob Bruggers for second place on the all-time scoring list. Bruggers, who graduated from Danube in 1962, scored 2,364 points.

On Tuesday Fisher will become only the third Region 8A girl in the state 1,000-point club. Shelly Oistad of Fertile-Beltrami graduated last spring with 1,287 points and Georgine Troska of Goodridge scored 1,148 points by the time she graduated in 1977.

Troska then scored a school-record 732 points while playing two years of basketball at Northland community college before joining the North Dakota State University basketball team this winter. With the Bison, Troska sees plenty of playing time off the bench for a team that has Oistad as its leading scorer.

Swede Lund To Call Section 8 Tournament

Derwood (Swede) Lund of Effie, a former Lincoln high school hockey standout and one-time Northland community college hockey coach, will be one of eight officials who will work the 1980 Section 8 high school hockey tournament scheduled to be played in the Thief River Falls sports arena February 29, March 1, 3, 4, 7.

Rest of the officiating crew selected to work the Section 8 tournament will include Mike Tok and Bob Zuelke, Coleraine; John Bymark, Grand Rapids; Darrell Gilbertson, Grand Forks; Pat Cullen and Jim Thompson, International Falls; and Bob Tok, Bovey.

An all-region selection when he was co-captain of the Prowlers in 1947-48, Lund went on to play at the University of North Dakota, scoring 36 goals, 33 points and 69 points in 63 games for the Sioux from 1950-53.

Lund was Northland's first hockey coach when the school began the sport in 1970-71. The Northmen enjoyed their greatest hockey success in Lund's five years here, earning a pair of runner-up finishes in the MJCAA state hockey tournament in 1973 and 1974; MJCAA consolation champions in 1972 and 1975; and consolation champion in the NJCAA national tournament hosted by Thief River Falls in 1974.

Miscellaneous

• Defending Region 8AA basketball champion Brainerd received a recent setback when Dave Nord, who was benched during a Jan. 8 game against Alexandria for disciplinary reasons, promptly quit the team. Nord was averaging 19.8 points per game for the Warriors who lost their next start 103-64 to St. Cloud Apollo.

• In a 46-34 dual meet victory over Detroit Lakes Jan. 10, Bemidji swimming coach Gary Mullranin withdrew his Lumberjacks from competition in the final three events to give the Lakers three victories instead of racking up a lopsided win. "Bemidji has a real good team, one of the strongest in our region," Detroit Lakes coach Mike Sheldon told Ralph Anderson of the Detroit Lakes Tribune, "and it was kind of them to win the last three events as exhibitions."

• Detroit Lakes committed 50 turnovers in a 62-41 girls high school basketball loss to Moorhead last week. It was the first loss of the year to a Region 8AA team for the Lakers. The game was touted as the game that would probably decide which team receives the No. 1 seed when the North Half Region 8AA tournament gets underway next month at Detroit Lakes. Moorhead, a 52-45 winner over Thief River Falls a week earlier when the Spuds pulled away from the upset-minded Prowlers at the end used a full court press to force the Lakers into the turnovers.

Jury, Prowlers Post 4-0 Shutout Over Rams

Goalie Bill Jury, benefiting from strong play in front of him from his Thief River Falls teammates, shut out Roseau 4-0 Saturday as the Prowlers picked up a satisfying Section 8 high school hockey win over the host Rams.

It was the first win over Roseau in nine tries for Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand, in his fourth season with the Prowlers — a fact that he was quick to point out in post-game conversation.

"Beating Roseau in Roseau's rink is the supreme accomplishment," glowed Grand who also knew the last time the Prowlers won at Roseau was during the 1975-76 season when Thief River Falls goalie Terry Sullivan kicked out 53 shots in a 3-2 come-from-behind victory for the visitors.

Jury did not have to make nearly that many saves because the Prowlers controlled most of the play. And his 20 saves did not include many of the spectacular stops he so often comes up with.

"Our forwards helped out tremendously in our end of the rink," explained Grand, "and consequently Jury didn't have to make those seven-eight tough saves. It was a good all-around game for us. We had a real good effort from every kid who put their skates on the rink."

Thief River Falls didn't waste any time getting on the scoreboard, getting a 1-0 jump just 3:24 into the game on a beautiful Wade Hoppe-Jeff Ulrich combination. Hoppe passed the puck out front from behind the net and Ulrich wasted no motion as he rammed it home quickly. Defenseman Steve Olson also picked up an assist on the play.

That 1-0 score, and several near misses on both sides, kept the large crowd on edge until Thief River Falls' Bob Fitzgerald scored in the final minute of the second period. On a power play, the Prowlers came in on Roseau goalie Mark Tangen with three players, the goal coming on a 12-foot backhand by Fitzgerald at 14:28.

In game time the next goal came just 41 seconds later as Jim Thompson scored a quick nine seconds into the third period. Standing at the edge of the crease, Thompson's unassisted goal made a mountain out of a mole hill as far as the score was concerned.

Hoppe completed the scoring at 2:45 when he found the corner from in front.

Jury, notching his first shutout since stopping Indus 10-0 as a sophomore in the 1978 Sub Section 8 tournement at Roseau, received his most severe test during a Roseau surge midway through the second period that included several bouncing pucks in front during a power play by the Rams. The senior netminder stopped Erick Grafstrom with a sprawling save that covered the goal mouth at 7:53 of the period.

Tangen, with 30 saves through the first two periods, finished with 36 stops as the Prowlers doubled the Rams' shots on goal, 40-20.

The shutout didn't surprise Grand, but he wasn't expecting one. "I feel we're capable of beating teams 4-0 if everybody plays well, but I'm not going to predict something like that," he said.

Thief River Falls, now 7-3, hosts Warroad Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

GOALIE BILL JURY of Thief River Falls kicked aside a Roseau shot in the first period of Saturday's Section 8 high school hockey game played at Roseau. Defenseman Dave Geatz (4) of the Prowlers tied up a Roseau player who was looking for a rebound on the play. Jury kicked out 20 shots to shut out the Rams 4-0. Thief River Falls, now 7-3, hosts Warroad in another key Section 8 game Tuesday in the sports arena. Bemidji will be here Friday.

Prowlers Lead In Section 8 Hockey Race

Thief River Falls' 4-0 Saturday night win at Roseau, combined with a pair of upset losses Friday by East Grand Forks and Crookston, moved the Prowlers atop the Section 8 high school hockey point standings announced today.

The Green Wave and Pirates were both jolted from the ranks of the unbeaten in Section 8 play Friday when Fergus Falls surprised East Grand Forks 3-1 and Lake of the Woods stunned Crookston 4-3 in a four-point game. Since the Green Wave and Otters meet twice this winter, they game was worth two points in the Section 8 standings that determine post-season tournament seeding.

Thief River Falls faces a pair of Section 8 challenges this week when the Prowlers host talent-rich Warroad Tuesday and entertain an improved Bemidji team Friday in the sports arena.

"We can enjoy this one tommorrow," said Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand after Saturday's big win at Roseau, "but we have to be ready Monday. We've got four hit points coming up next week."

Beat Vikings 108-65, Cardinals 109-89 . . .

Northmen Sweep Itasca, Hibbing

Asked to sum up a weekend performance that featured a home court MJCAA sweep over Itasca 108-65 Friday night and over Hibbing 109-89 Saturday afternoon, Northland community college basketball coach Chet Engelman simply said, "It was enjoyable."

The two wins over the Northeast Division opponents brought Northland's Northwest Division record to 2-2 and kept the Northmen in the thick of the four-team title chase where Fergus Falls, Crookston, Brainerd and Northland have all tasted defeat already this season in a quest for one of the two available MJCAA state tournament spots.

"We finally played a couple of games that were good for the home town fans," said Engelman. "We've had a problem in that we've been playing well on the road but not so well at home."

Engelman hopes the Northmen can perform well on the road again Wednesday when they visit Fergus Falls for an 8 p.m. showdown between the two teams who shared the Northwest Division title a year ago. Northland hosts Rainy River Friday at 8.

Northland 108
Itasca 65

Domination on the boards enabled Northland to outdistance Itasca 108-65 Friday.

The Northmen outrebounded the Vikings 72-48 as Terry Harris grabbed 14 caroms, Chris Kneen 13 and Tony Smith 11. And Harris put a lot of those balls back into the basket for a 29-point night that was complemented by a 21-point performance out of Mike Carriere.

Northland had it won by halftime when the Northmen were ahead 48-23.

To get their 108 points, the Northmen shot 46-for-102 for 45 per cent from the field and 16-for-23 at the free throw line. Itasca was 27-for-76 for 36 per cent from the floor and 11-for-16 at the line.

Northland 109
Hibbing 89

Forty minutes of basketball was decided during a five-minute stretch midway through the first half Saturday when Northland scored 13 straight points en route to a 109-89 win over Hibbing.

Northland took a 14-12 edge and turned it into a 27-12 cushion at the 10-minute mark of the first half. Hibbing never recovered. Although the Cardinals came back to within 50-43 at halftime on a fast break lay-up by guard Marv Vulcich with just three seconds left.

But that's as close as they got. Those 13 unanswered points represented the difference when Northland had an 84-71 lead with five minutes to go.

Terry Harris, the second-leading scorer in the MJCAA at the start of the weekend, with a 28.5 average, followed Friday's 29-point scoring performance with 35 against Hibbing whose Gene Giles had 32. Vince Parker added 26 to the Northland total and Chris Kneen, whose 6-7 height was to add rebound strength, got 19 points.

Northland shot 47 per cent from the field, hitting 41 of 87 shots. But it was at the free throw line where the Northmen were impressive as they sank 27 of 33 chances. Hibbing shot 45 per cent from the field, making 35 of 78 attempts, and went 18-for-21 at the free throw line in the roughly played contest against the taller Northmen.

Defensive Player Stars In Pirates' 55-49 Win

Tim Knotek, the recognized star, scored 15 points and looked good doing it. John Erie, the shooter, scored a game-high 22 points and had a spectacular 18-point first half. But Brent Weiss, who scored just two points all night, was awarded hero status by Crookston coach Marshall Olson Friday as the Pirates defeated Thief River Falls 55-49 in a Northwest Athletic Conference high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym.

Weiss received his post-game plaudits for his defensive work. The 5-10 junior spent his night defending against Thief River Falls' Kyle Hams, the best guard in the NWAC and the league's leading scorer with a 22-point average. Against Weiss, Hams netted just four points.

"Weiss played excellent defense on Hams," praised Olson. Hams' meager four-point output "was just because of Weiss," said Olson. "He played a heck of a game."

"It's tough to win ball games," mentioned Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters, "with your point guard scoring four points."

It was an entertaining, if not particularly well-played, ball game. Thief River Falls battled back from a 30-22 halftime deficit to tie it 40-40 at the end of the third quarter when forward Gregg Peterson and center Todd Young scored two baskets apiece in an eight-point spurt by the Prowlers in the final two minutes of the period.

A wild start to the fourth quarter produced a bundle of whistles on turnovers, fouls and jump balls, but did not solve the issue. A single free throw by Young kept the Prowlers within 47-45 with 3:11 remaining.

Crookston got the upper hand, though, when the Pirates, moving the ball smartly, found Erie open on the side for a long jumper with 2:30 left and then went up 51-45 on a pair of Brian Bachmeier free throws with 1:24 to go — just seconds after a costly three second lane violation called against the Prowlers.

Jim Nyland kept the fading Thief River Falls hopes alive with a 10-foot jumper in the middle for a 53-47 game with 1:13 on the clock.

But Knotek, the ever-so-smooth 6-3 forward, scored on a short range jumper from the side as the final minute started and Jerome Simmons sank two free throws with 11 seconds remaining for a 55-47 cushion. Mark Schmitke's long jumper five seconds later accounted for the 55-49 final.

"We had three turnovers in a row there in the fourth quarter when it was close," pointed out Peters. "That really hurt. We did too much dribbling."

"But let's give Crookston credit. They're a good ball club," pointed out Peters. "We played well in spots. We came back and played better defense in the third quarter. Our three people underneath played strong defense for us. But I was really disappointed with our guard play on defense. That killed us."

Greg Miller led the

AN OPENING IN the middle sent Northland freshman Craig Pietruszewski sailing between Hibbing defenders Dean Miksa (45) and Pat Christenson (23) during the first half of Saturday's community college basketball game played in Thief River Falls. Pietruszewski came off the bench for a strong weekend performance as the Northmen beat Itasca 108-65 Friday night and ran by Hibbing 109-89 Saturday afternoon.

BATTLING FOR position under the Thief River Falls basket, the Prowlers' Greg Miller (dark jersey) drew a foul from Crookston's Tim Knotek during the first half of Friday's high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym. Miller scored 12 points — all in the first half — in the Prowlers' 55-49 loss. Knotek scored 15 points for the Pirates.

Close Girls Game Won By Crookston, 45-42

Crookston coach Harlen Stahlecker expected a close game, and it was. Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg expected to win, but she didn't. And Sjoberg said she was "very disappointed" in the Prowlers' play as they lost a 45-42 girls high school basketball game Thursday in the Lincoln gym.

"I figured we would be very even," said Stahlecker. "I said it would be a toss-up, and it was."

Closeness of the game was reflected in the final statistics that showed Thief River Falls 18-for-59 from the field for 31 per cent, Crookston 19-for-59 for 32 per cent; the Prowlers 6-for-7 at the free throw line, the Pirates 7-for-1;; Thief River Falls with 31 rebounds, Crookston with 28; and the turnovers dead even at 18 apiece.

It was tight all the way. The Pirates owned an 11-10 first quarter lead and took a 21-20 edge into halftime when Ruth Friederichs scored her only points of the night on an 18-foot shot at the buzzer that took a hard bounce straight up and fell back through the net.

Crookston gained the upper hand late in the third quarter when Heidi Broekemeier, Brenda Wieland and Brenda Rongen were scoring during a 2½-minute stretch when Thief River Falls was missing eight straight shots. That gave the Pirates a 33-26 advantage score was 33-28 at the end of the quarter after captain Roberta Engel snapped the Prowlers' string of misses with a long shot from the side.

But Thief River Falls cut the margin to just a single point on three occasions in the fourth quarter, the Prowlers never did wrestle the lead away from the Pirates after that third quarter dry spell.

All three of those one-point margins came on the heels of Tara Nicholson field goals. The Thief River Falls sophomore scored from underneath with 1:03 remaining for a 43-42 game.

That was all the scoring by the Prowlers, though, as Broekemeier made it 45-42 on a short turnaround jumper with 36 seconds left and the Pirates rebounded when Nicholson tried to make it another one-point game with 26 seconds to go.

"I wasn't satisfied with the way we shot — we can shoot better than that," mentioned Stahlecker, "but I was satisfied with our hustle."

The win improved Crookston's record to 5-7 and dropped Thief River Falls to 3-5. It was a tough loss to accept for Sjoberg who had been making note of the Prowlers' continued improvement.

Thief River Falls will resume play Thursday at East Grand Forks, a 7:30 p.m. game.

Northmen Lose 16-8 And 10-5 To Voyageurs

Rainy River doubled Northland twice with 16-8 and 10-5 wins in an MJCAA weekend hockey series played at International Falls.

The twin losses dropped Northland's 1979-80 record to 0-7. The Northmen host Crookston Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. before traveling to Rochester for Saturday and Sunday games against the Yellowjackets.

Rainy River 16, Northland 8

Friday's series opener was a near stand-off for two periods before Rainy River took an 8-6 lead and turned it into a 16-8 victory over Northland with an eight-goal third period explosion.

Scott Bergland and Howard Beito scored two goals apiece for the Northmen, with Kurt Klosterman, Jay Kverno, Mark Kochn and Luke Noreen scoring once.

Jeff Reese faced 66 shots in the Northland nets, with the Northmen getting off 45 shots.

Rainy River 10, Northland 5

Once again Northland played Rainy River even for two periods in Saturday afternoon's rematch, but this time a 3-3 second period tie disappeared with a six-goal third period barrage by the Voyageurs.

Five different Northmen scored, including Mike Olson, Kurt Klosterman, Luke Noreen, Mark Koehn and Steve Geatz.

With Charlie Sehler in goal for Northland, the Northmen were out-shot 51-40.

NCC, UMC Meet Again Wednesday

Northwestern Minnesota college rivals Northland and Crookston will resume their month-long Wednesday night Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) hockey series Wednesday when the Northmen and Trojans meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

First of the four consecutive mid-week meetings was a laugher for the Trojans who routed the Northmen 14-1 last Wednesday at Crookston. Eleven different Crookston players scored as the Trojans broke into win column for the first time after nine straight season-opening losses.

It was a close 2-1 game in the first period. Crookston's Dean Byfuglien opened and scored just 46 seconds into the game, but Northland's Mark Koehn tied it on a power play at 8:40. Crookston went ahead 2-1 on Robin Brekken's goal with 1:45 left.

But the battle for the fourth and final spot in the 1980 MJCAA state hockey tournament was blown open in the second period when Crookston made it 8-1.

Jeff Reese, in his first game with the Northmen, and Charlie Sehler faced 67 shots in the nets. Crookston goalies Dean Grindahl and Brad Fowlers had an easier 22-shot night.

While Northland went to International Falls for a weekend series against Rainy River, Crookston faced a week of rest leading to Wednesday's rematch.

Roseau Wins JV Game 3-1

Lincoln high school junior varsity hockey team suffered its second loss of the year Saturday, a 3-1 defeat at the hands of Roseau.

Rick Engelstad scored the lone goal for Thief River Falls, now 7-2-1.

GUARDED BY Thief River Falls' Kim McFarland, Crookston's Mary Kraft brought the ball downcourt during Thursday's girls high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym. Kraft came off the bench to score 10 points in the Pirates' 45-42 win over the Prowlers. Trailing the play were Roberta Engel (11) and Kathy Beito (51) of the Prowlers, along with Heidi Broekemeier (21) of the Pirates.

Down 17, Skippers Rally To Get By Roseau 58-57

Facing an 18-1 deficit at the start, Middle River staged a remarkable come-back Friday to edge Roseau 58-57 in North Border high school basketball action.

DelRay Ness' 15-foot jump shot with five seconds remaining in the game won it for the Skippers who improved their record to 10-2.

A 59-51 winner at Roseau earlier this year, Middle River found itself in a pack of trouble early when they had problems adjusting to a 2-3 zone used by the Rams who were expected to play man-to-man defense.

"They kind of shocked our kids with that zone," explained Middle River coach Eldon Sparby who said early turnover problems by the Skippers combined with 12-for-16 first quarter shooting by the Rams, up 26-9 when the quarter came to a close.

It was 40-33 at halftime and Middle River still trailed 51-44 going into the fourth quarter.

Down 57-56 and out-sized in a jump ball at center court with 12 seconds remaining in the game, Middle River came up with the basketball in a scramble for possession after the tip, leading to Ness' game-winning shot.

"We started alternating zones on them," said Sparby as he described the Skippers' game-long rally. "We were pressing them and forcing them into turnovers."

Scott McKeever scored a game-high 20 points for the Skippers and Jon Neumann added 16. Brad Fevold and Clay Larson scored 18 and 16 points, respectively, for the Rams who out-scored the Skippers by eight points from the field but went just 3-for-12 at the free throw line where the winners were 12-for-20.

Middle River will be at Badger Friday.

Argyle 95
Goodridge 46

Normally low-scoring, defensive-minded Argyle exploded on offense Friday in a 95-46 romp over visiting Goodridge.

The hot-shooting Eagles raced to a 23-6 first quarter lead and were never challenged, owning a 41-25 halftime cushion and a 64-40 third quarter edge.

Argyle finished with a 42-for-64, 66 per cent shooting night from the field. Goodridge was 16-for-47 for 34 per cent.

"They shot well from all over the floor," observed Goodridge coach Rick Nelson who pointed out the Eagles' combined 31-0 record this winter in varsity, junior varsity and C squad basketball. "They've got their program going right now."

Jason Anderson poured in 23 points for the winners. Carroll Bishop, who "played a fine game," said Nelson, scored 14 points for the Huskies.

Warroad 30

Marshall County Central improved its record to 7-3 with a 45-30 North Border Conference win at Warroad Friday.

The Nordics played their best basketball in the first quarter when they built a 16-7 lead and in the final period when their patient play forced Warroad out of its zone and made for some good-percentage shots in the middle.

Marshall County Central led 29-15 at halftime and owned a 35-25 third quarter advantage.

"We played a pretty good first quarter and a not-too-bad fourth quarter," said winning coach Ron Ueland.

Ray Kvalvog and Dan Engen scored 14 and 12 points, respectively for the Nordics, with Scott Norquist getting 12 for the Warriors.

Both teams shot 39 per cent from the field, but Marshall County Central was 21-for-54 while Warroad was 13-for-33. The Nordics were 3-for-7 at the free throw line where the Warriors were 4-for-9. Warroad held a slight 19-18 rebound edge but also committed 21 of the game's 30 turnovers.

Marshall County Central faces a three-game slate this week, hosting Grygla Tuesday, entertaining Roseau Friday and playing at Kennedy Saturday.

Strandquist 42

Goodridge snapped an 11-game losing streak with a 57-42 home court win over Strandquist Saturday.

Randy Henrickson, in his first extensive duty since suffering an early season injury, scored 17 points for the Huskies who had not won a game since Nov. 27 when they beat Grygla 42-28 in the second game of the season.

"Everybody played together for the first time," pointed out Goodridge coach Rick Nelson. "We played as a team."

Strandquist led 16-14 at the end of the first quarter, but Goodridge went ahead 34-26 at halftime and carried a 44-34 edge going into the final eight minutes.

Now 2-12, Goodridge will host Climax Friday.

Broncos Beat Prowlers 62-52

International Falls and Howard Arch impressed Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters Saturday as the 6-6 Arch scored 21 points in the Broncos' 62-52 high school basketball win over the Prowlers.

"They're the best team we've played all year," said Peters, "and Arch is as good as they come."

Arch left a lasting impression on the host Prowlers in the first quarter when he scored 11 points to stake the Broncos to a 21-16 lead. They held that margin at 33-27 at halftime, then gained some breathing room in the third quarter, 49-38.

Guard Tom Rolando complemented Arch's inside game with outside shooting that produced 16 points, with 6-2 forward Tom West adding 12. Kyle Hams of the Prowlers finished with a game-high 24 points.

Despite the loss, Peters was happy with his team's play. "We played real good ball," he said. "Our team plays as well as Kyle Hams plays, and he had a tremendous game. It was a good effort on our part."

Peters also praised the play of forward Greg Miller. After center Todd Young had trouble handling Arch on a man-to-man defensive assignment in the first quarter, Miller took Arch for the second period and held him to four points.

"Our man-to-man was the best defense against them," pointed out Peters. "We tried different types of zones against them, but they just didn't work."

International Falls had little trouble shooting against any type of defense the Broncos faced, hitting at a 56 per cent clip from the field, 28-for-50. Thief River Falls was 22-for-48 for 46 per cent. The Prowlers were a perfect 8-for-8 at the free throw line. The Broncos made six of 11 gift tosses.

Thief River Falls finished with a 21-14 rebound advantage, but only because International Falls made its shots. The Prowlers topped the turnover charts 15-11.

Now 6-5, Thief River Falls will be idle until Saturday when the Prowlers host Fergus Falls in a 7:30 p.m. Northwest Athletic Conference game.

Otters Win Own Swimming Meet

Fergus Falls was an easy winner in its own invitational high school swimming meet Saturday with 404 points. Marshall was a distant second with 279 points, followed by Thief River Falls 182, Detroit Lakes 147 and West Fargo 99.

Thief River Falls coach John Kopari was happy with the Prowlers' showing, noting that "with the teams involved, we couldn't help but finish anywhere but second. Fergus Falls has an excellent team with strong depth and Marshall has outstanding individuals." Detroit Lakes and West Fargo are both struggling this winter.

The Prowlers did not come up with any winners, but settled for three second place finishes, including both relays. In the 200-yard medley relay, Dan Schoonhoven, Steve Poissant, Keith Grochow and Jon Pinkerton swam a 1:51.5. In the 400-yard freestyle relay, Dan Thorstad, Dennis Booth, Pinkerton and Mark Isaacson swam a 3:45.7. Isaacson was also a runner-up in the 500-yard freestyle with a 5:49.5.

Kopari also pointed to several fastest-ever performances by some of the Prowlers, including Pinkerton with a 23.9 in the 50-yard freestyle for third place; Grochow with a 1:05.7 in the 100-yard butterfly for sixth place; Isaacson in the 500; and both Poissant and Grochow in the 100-yard breaststroke.

"The kids did a heck of a good job," praised Kopari who will take the Prowlers to Fosston Tuesday for a 4 p.m. dual meet.

Fifth annual Thief River Falls invitational swimming meet will be held Saturday in the Franklin middle school pool.

Prowlers with 12 points, but he got them all in the first half when it was a Miller vs. Erie shoot-out. Erie, who scored the Pirates' first six points, didn't surprise Olson with his scoring.

"You leave him alone and he's going to make those shots," said Olson of Erie. "He's an excellent shooter, and they (TRF) knew it. I don't know why they left him open like that."

It was a bizarre ending to a first quarter that wound up a 12-12 tie. Schmitke rushed a shot to beat the buzzer, with the ball bouncing off the rim and behind the backboard. Crookston grabbed the ball, but thinking play was dead, simply walked it out of bounds. The Pirates were called for travelling and Thief River Falls had possession under the Prowlers' basket with one second on the clock. The in-bounds pass went deep to Nyland who threw it up at the buzzer for the tie.

Thief River Falls cleaned the boards at the start of the second quarter en route to an 18-14 lead, but the Pirates outscored the Prowlers 16-4 over the final six minutes of the half to go into the lockerroom with a 30-22 cushion.

"They switched, they went into a zone on us," explained Peters. "We didn't move the ball and we didn't shoot well."

The win improved the Pirates' record to 6-4-and-put them atop the NWAC standings with a 3-1 record, good for three points. Fergus Falls is 1-0 in the NWAC, but trail the Pirates in the title-deciding point standings. The Prowlers are winless in three conference games.

On the stat sheet, the Prowlers were 20 for 54 from the field for 37 per cent and 9-for 13 at the free throw line. The Pirates were 22 for 47 for 47 per cent and 11 for 14 at the line. The Pirates outrebounded the Prowlers 24-20 and also topped the turnover figures 22-18.

MCC Girls Easy 51-26 Winners Over Grygla

In a match-up of once-beaten ball clubs, Marshall County Central was a surprisingly easy 51-26 winner over Grygla Thursday in girls high school basketball at Newfolden.

"We didn't play well," admitted Grygla coach Bill Radeunz whose team has been battling a wide-spread bout with the flu. "We couldn't penetrate at all."

It wasn't a contest. Marshall County Central opened a 12-4 first quarter lead, went up 29-14 at halftime and built a 40-18 third quarter cushion.

Three Nordics reached double figures, with Sue Olson and Lisa Busch scoring 12 points apiece and Rosalyn Knutson getting 11, a figure matched by Sherri Anderson of Grygla.

The Eagles' leading scorer and rebounder, Jill Saurdiff, failed to score after running into early foul problems.

And while the field goal shooting figures were close, the Nordics had 30 free throw opportunities, hitting 13 of them, while the Eagles went without a free throw until the final 2½ minutes of the game when they were 2-for-6. From the field Marshall County Central was 14-for-54 for 26 per cent and Grygla was 12-for-53 for 23 per cent.

It was the eighth win in nine starts for the Nordics who will be at Badger tonight (Monday) in their only outing of the week. Grygla, 7-2, will be at Warroad tonight and at Badger Thursday.

Plummer 56
Red Lake Falls 55

Plummer built an early lead then coasted to a 56-55 win at Red Lake Falls Thursday.

The Cardinals, with Diane Fisher scoring all 17 of her points in the first half, raced to a 19-8 first quarter lead and a 31-19 halftime cushion. It was a 52-29 rout in the third quarter.

But the Eagles battled back gamely, nearly doubling their point total before running out of time.

Char Remick scored a game-high 19 points for the Eagles. Sandy Zimpel joined Fisher, only four points shy of the conveted 1,000-point club, in double figures with 12 points.

Fisher will be looking for her 1,000 points and the Cardinals will be looking for their fifth win in eight games Tuesday when they host Oslo. East Grand Forks Sacred Heart will be in Plummer Thursday.

It was a 6-6 tie after one quarter, but Middle River went into intermission with a 17-13 edge and began the third quarter with a 27-21 lead.

Starting Date Of Annual I-500 Nears

Annual Saint Paul winter carnival International 500 snowmobile race starts from the frosty flood plains on the south side of Winnipeg, Manitoba Mon., Jan. 28. Rick Mears, 1979 Indianapolis 500 winner, will drop the checkered flag at White Bear Lake Thurs., Jan. 31 as the winning racer crosses the finish line.

Twenty-five Queen of Snows candidates will be on hand to greet the finishers. The I-500 race finish marks the beginning of the 1980 "Jest Fest" winter carnival celebration February 1-10.

Joel Hallstrom and Lyle Swanson are early registered drivers for the 15th annual race.

Applications and rules for the race are available at the Saint Paul Winter Carnival Association, Bremer Building, 98 East 7th Street, Saint Paul, Minnesota, 55101; Winnipeg Convention and Visitors Bureau; or the three Chambers of Commerce at Thief River Falls, Bemidji, and Alexandria — overnight race stops. There will be no late entry fees.

With racers leaving Winnipeg on the morning of Jan. 28, drivers will have their first overnight stop in Thief River Falls that same day. From Thief River Falls the race will headquarter in Bemidji Tues., Jan. 29, and at Alexandria Wed., Jan. 30, before arriving in St. Paul Jan. 31.

FWS Will Improve Agassiz Dike Plan

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service plans this year to improve the dike and impoundment system at Pool 8 at Agassiz national wildlife refuge in Northwestern Minnesota.

Agassiz national wildlife refuge provides feeding, nesting and reproductive habitat for migratory waterfowl. The refuge also has excellent habitat for deer, non-game birds and other wildlife.

Current system at Pool 8 does not permit adequate water level control or utilization of the area. The project will require rebuilding 1.9 miles of the west embankment of the Thief river. A gravel road and riprap spillway will be constructed as part of the dike. A new water inflow structure will be installed. Newly disturbed soil areas will be promptly revegetated to minimize erosion. The improvements will not change the size of the area being managed for waterfowl but will provide better management ability for attracting and holding waterfowl.

Overall environmental impacts will be positive. The improved water management area will provide greater water stability and a capability of impounding additional water during drought conditions. The results will be improved migratory bird habitat.

There will be some unavoidable adverse effects but they will be temporary and confined to the construction period. Decreased air quality and increased noise pollution and water turbidity will occur due to the construction activity. Some terrestrial vegetation will be lost either by flooding from new water levels or by being covered by riprap and fill. Vegetation represents a minor loss as it covers a small area. The appearance of the area will not be significantly affected as dikes and structures are already present.

Proposed action conforms to all applicable state and floodplain protection standards and to the requirements of executive orders 11988 and 11990 concerning the protection of floodplains and wetlands.

An environmental assessment has been prepared. The assessment and other information can be inspected at the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service office, Federal Building, Fort Snelling, Twin Cities, Minnesota and Agassiz.

SHE DREW a crowd, but Northland center Carrie Sollom still managed to get her shot off during the second half of Saturday's community college basketball game against Hibbing in the Northland gym. The Cardinals beat the Northmen 71-68.

Northwomen Split Games

In a weekend split with Itasca and Hibbing, the Northland community college women's basketball team played better in defeat than in victory, according to coach Deb Jacobson.

The Northwomen knocked off Itasca 48-38 Friday night and dropped a 71-68 decision to Hibbing Saturday afternoon. Both games were played in the Northland gym.

"I was satisfied with the weekend, I guess," said Jacobson after Saturday's ball game. "But even with the victory, we didn't play as well as we did today. We moved the ball better than we did yesterday. Yesterday we were lucky — they weren't hitting their shots."

The split left Northland with a 1-3 record in the Northwest Division and 2-9 overall. The Northwomen will be at Fergus Falls Wednesday.

Northland 48
Itasca 38

Northland used a huge 62-35 advantage in rebounding to defeat Itasca 48-38, reversing an earlier 45-44 loss to the Vikings at Grand Rapids.

Julie Easton scored 15 points and Jacki Nelson had 11 for the Northwomen who led 24-14 at halftime.

Northland was 16-for-59 for 27 per cent from the field and 16-for-29 at the free throw line. Itasca was 13-for-67 for 35 per cent from the field and 12-for-23 at the line.

Hibbing 71
Northland 68

Combine Northland fouls with Hibbing free throws and you get a 71-68 Hibbing win Saturday afternoon.

Northland scored eight more points from the field and out-rebounded Hibbing 63-42, but the Cardinals were 17-for-28 at the free throw line where the Northwomen were just 6-for-13.

With front line performers Julie Easton and Julie Anderson both getting into early four trouble, Northland trailed 43-37 at halftime.

It stayed close to the very end. Northland tied it 67-67 on a 10-footer by Arlene Knutson with 1:24 to go, then traded turnovers with Hibbing.

Northland lost the ball with 1:04 to go, leading to a jumper from the top of the key by Hibbing's Mary Falbo with 52 seconds remaining. Terry Erickson of the Cardinals made it 71-67 at the free throw line with 28 seconds on the clock.

Easton closed the gap to 71-68 by making one of two free throws with 19 seconds left, but that was all the scoring.

Erickson scored a game-high 23 points for the Cardinals. Anderson had 18 for the Northwomen who had four double figure scorers.

Northland put up 96 shots, making 31 of them for 32 per cent. Hibbing was 27-for-67 for 40 per cent.

District Engineer Bob Wolfe and Jack Isaacson, District State Aid Engineer, from the Bemidji Offices of the State Dept. of Highways, visited with the Board for some time about the problems arising from the inflated prices and because of the energy problems of the staten and Nation. Various methods of raising money were discussed and Mr. Wolfe restated some of the proposals that would likely be placed before the Legislature in the 1980 Session by Governor Quie and others. It is apparent that present income will not allow for the improvements that should be made to the State and County roads and may present the problem of just being able to maintain them. The Board agreed to study the matter and advance any ideas that seemed feasible.

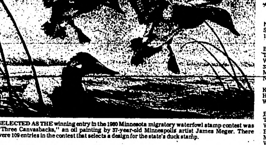
Illinois Angler Forfeits $500

A fisherman from Illinois has forfeited $500 bail in municipal court in Crosby, Minnesota after being arrested last summer by state conservation officers.

Larry A. Goers, Normal, Illinois, was apprehended on June 15 with 200 walleyes as he left a resort on Mille Lacs lake.

After posting bail, Goers failed to return to the state for his trial in November. Under the law, forfeiture of cash deposited to guarantee a defendant's appearance in court is a conviction.



SELECTED AS THE winning entry in the 1980 Minnesota migratory waterfowl stamp contest was "Three Canvasbacks," an oil painting by 37-year-old Minneapolis artist James Meger. There were 109 entries in the contest that selects a design for the state's duck stamp.

'Cans' Selected For 1980 State Duck Stamp Design

by Larry Nelson, DNR

A bird on the water and two in the air proved to worth a win in Minnesota's 1980 migratory waterfowl contest. "Three Canvasbacks", an oil painting by 37-year-old Minneapolis artist James Meger, was chosen number one from among 109 entries judged last December at the Department of Natural Resources.

Composition of Meger's winning entry stresses action. It features a large "bull" canvasback riding rough water with a hen and drake dropping in nearby.

"I use my paintings to recreate waterfowling experiences," says Meger. "For the contest, I painted my favorite water fowl species. I started with a series of pencil sketches, using clay models, photographs and mounted birds for reference. My late-season canvasbacks are fully feathered, facing into a strong northwest wind, and pictured in a typical Minnesota canvasback setting."

Meger's interest in art goes back a long way. "For as long as I can remember," he recalls, "I've wanted to be a wildlife artist. When I was five years old and living in my hometown of Minneota, Minnesota, Les Kouba visited our family restaurant. I was in a booth drawing on a large piece of paper. Les sat down next to me and sketched out a barnyard rooster. His seemingly magic pencil provided me with a lasting inspiration." (Les Kouba is a famous wildlife artist who lives in Minneapolis.)

Meger's love for waterfowl was kindled at the age of six, when he accompanied his brother on an afternoon duck hunt. "That day is one of the most memorable and picturesque experiences of my childhood. Driving in a Model-T through a late afternoon rainstorm, we arrived at a big marsh just as the storm was blowing over. Intermittent sunlight was breaking through fast-moving clouds, highlighting the beautiful wetland. But the scene's true excitement was provided by the sights and sounds of hundreds of ducks. From then on, I took every opportunity, spring or fall, to visit marshes, creeks and fields."

Painting and wildlife came together during high school years. Meger was taking commissions for paintings before he enrolled in a college fine arts program. Unfortunately, the program emphasized abstract expressionism to the exclusion of other art styles, which temporarily derailed his efforts at wildlife art. After college, combat duty in Viet Nam took him further from the art world. In fact, teaching and other activities kept him away from wildlife art for over 15 years.

Then, in 1977 Les Kouba again sparked Meger's interest in painting wildlife. Meger saw a book illustrated with Kouba paintings and was inspired to resume painting. After several months he brought some waterfowl paintings to Kouba and received valuable encouragement. Subsequently, Meger started a part-time business selling art prints.

A year later, he entered the 1979 Minnesota migratory waterfowl stamp contest, finishing just behind the nine finalists. Now came his first showing at the Minnesota wildlife heritage foundation's second annual wildlife art show, which was an immense success.

Meger's quest to be a successful wildlife artist hit a crossroads prior to this year's contest. He had already resigned his teaching position to allow more time for painting, his art dealership and framing business. "Now, I will have time to develop the technical skills necessary to illustrate my personal concept of wildlife art," he says.

Meger credits three Minnesota wildlife artists for their help. Besides the inspiration, encouragement, and advice received from Kouba, Meger appreciates the "drama and emotional impact" he finds in Kouba's paintings. He is grateful for encouragement from David Maass, a wildlife artist he considers to be at the top of his field. Meger particularly admires the Waterville artist's superb ability to fit birds into their habitat and his "ala prima" (directly mixing and applying paint) painting technique. Meger thanks Ron Van Gilder of Minneapolis for help in painting academics and technical detail.

An early, intense appreciation for waterfowl and wetlands and a keen interest in hunting have made Meger a self-acclaimed "fanatic" for wetlands preservation. Wildlife, habitat destruction, and conservation in general have been important subjects in his teaching curriculum the last 10 years. Exposing young students to the wise use of natural resources is basic to his teaching philosophy.

Meger actively supports organizations that work to improve waterfowl habitat. He has donated one of his prints "Wild Side-Canvasbacks" to the wildlife heritage foundation and is donating an original oil to the Minnesota waterfowl association. He has also contributed artwork and money to Ducks Unlimited and Southwest Sportsman's club in Minneota. It seems appropriate that his design will appear on the stamp, the proceeds of which are dedicated for improving waterfowl habitat.

Minnesota "duck stamps" generated about $400,000 for waterfowl habitat developments in 1978. This money was used to create almost 1,100 acres of wetland in 10 different sites, repair dikes affecting 2,700 acres of wetland in four projects, construct some 70 dugouts in northwestern Minnesota, place over 400 wood duckhouses and establish 200 acres of prime waterfowl nesting habitat.

The waterfowl stamp is proving popular not only with hunters but with hundreds of persons who may never wade a Minnesota marsh to hunt ducks and geese. Of 129,000 stamps sold in 1978, over 6,000 were purchased by stamp collectors, artists, and conservationists who wanted to contribute toward wetland management.

All hunters 18 years of age and older and under the age of 65 years, except people who are hunting on their own property, are required to have a 1980 Minnesota migratory waterfowl stamp in their possession while hunting or taking migratory waterfowl.

The new stamp, along with all fishing and hunting licenses, will go on sale statewide about the third week in February.

A record 109 Minnesota artists entered the 1980 Migratory Waterfowl Stamp art competition. Following winning artist James Meger were Gary Moss, Cambridge, Canada geese; Phil Scholer, Kasson, Canada geese; Stan Finnemore, Minneapolis, wood ducks; Jim Killen, Owatonna, canvasbacks; and Terry Redlin, Hastings, wood ducks.

Meger's winning design, along with the other top 36 designs entered in the stamp contest, are on display at Wild Wings Gallery, Yorkdale Shoppes, 6817 York Avenue South, Minneapolis. The exhibit runs from January 7 through January 26, 1980.

Rules for the 1981 art contest are now available from the DNR's Bureau of Information and Education, Box 46, 658 Cedar Street, St. Paul, MN 55155.

80 Per Cent Of Moose Hunters Are Successful

About 80 per cent of the moose hunting parties in Minnesota were successful this season, the Department of Natural Resources reported. In 1975 and 1977 seasons party success averaged 90 per cent.

Permits were issued to parties of four through a computerized drawing. Hunting areas were established in the northeastern and northwestern parts of the state.

In the northeast zone, hunters took 236 moose — 158 of them bulls. Hunters in the northwest took 330 moose — 196 being bulls.

Hunters reported seeing a total of 489 moose in the northeast hunting area and 1,343 in the northwest.

DNR Licenses Valid Through March 1, 1980

Minnesota fishermen, hunters and trappers were reminded again by the Department of Natural Resources that their 1979 licenses are valid until Feb. 29, 1980.

Robert Wells, DNR license supervisor, said that despite the fact that a March 1 to March 1 "license year" was established for the convenience of sportsmen four years ago a lot of people are not aware of the fact.

He said the department license center in St. Paul is still receiving many calls from sportsmen wanting to confirm the fact that their 1979 licenses are good through the end of February, 1980.

SKI REPORT

by Dr. Hugh Patterson

Leaving Big Sky when the tows close we head south up Gallatin canyon. It opens up into beautiful mountain park country with lofty snow covered Gallatin mountains to the east and the 11,000 foot Madison range to the west.

Ahead is that delightful western mountain town, West Yellowstone. Just west of here you cross the continental divide at 7,072 foot Targhee pass, and enter Idaho. It is high mountain country to Ashton. Here we take state highways 32 and 33 east and south to Driggs, Idaho.

East of Driggs a road runs up the mountain. At the Wyoming line you turn left one-half mile, then right to a lodge owned by one of the West's great personalities Paul Petzolt. He climbed the Grand Teton on New Years day for many years. They have bunks and you bring your own sleeping bags and pillows.

In the morning the picture window frames those beautiful Teton mountains while we have pancakes and fried eggs (delightfully off our diet) by Pete Peterson.

We then head up for Grand Targhee ski area out of Alta, Wyoming. This area is known among skiers as a place of spectacular beauty and extraordinary challenging skiing, especially for powder skiers. I have seen them disappear to the waist as they head down steep slopes in deep powder. There is also excellent novice skiing and fine packed powder runs from the top. The top is one of America's loveliest spots with a magnificent view of those cathedral-like Tetons.

Snow grooming is excellent. I advise warming up on Shoshone lift, then take Bannock chair to the top. First come down Sitting Bull ridge to the right, then try Crazy Horse to the left. After that a vest area of the whole mountain is yours to try.

This is a good area for family skiing. It has an excellent chalet and accommodations and a very friendly atmosphere. There is a reasonable cafeteria or a gourmet restaurant. The season is from November to June. The runs face west and there is very good light for afternoon skiing.

On December 22 we skied at Buena Vista, Bemidji. To reach it you turn north off U.S. 2 on county road 15 at the A&W corner. It was their first day in operation this season.

It is a fine area — especially for family skiing. There are no alcoholic beverages sold on the premises. It has improved a good deal since I skied there several years ago. Earl Dickenson put over 130,000 yards of earth on top of his hill and is installing a triple chair which will go over the summit and down the other side, carrying skiers from both sides. We recommend the area.

December 29 and 31 we skied six hours each day at Buck Hills. Snow conditions are fine and we enjoyed a chat with Charles Stone. When you are in the Twin City area, Buck Hills is fun for everyone.

Research Biologists Study Wolf Howls In Northern Minnesota

Lone wolves, much like loners in society, usually have little to howl about. Wolves that do not belong to a pack rarely respond to howling from other wolves.

This interesting aspect of wolf behavior and the reasons why wolves howl or remain silent were investigated over a two-year period by research biologists imitating wolf howls in the Superior national forest of northern Minnesota.

Dr. David Mech, a research biologist with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and Dr. Fred H. Harrington, a biologist with the division of biological sciences, State University of New York, conducted the study to determine what role howling plays in the maintenance of wolf territory. The biologists imitated wolf howls to elicit responses from radio-collared wolves that could be located.

At his office in St. Paul, Mech, recognized internationally as a wolf expert, said vocal replies and behavior of radioed wolves — in response to human howling — were analyzed from eight wolf packs and ten lone wolves.

He said previous work by other researchers showed that free-ranging wolves respond to human imitations of howling as well as or better than playbacks of recorded howling by real wolves. Wolves apparently have the ability to distinguish individual voices. Agonistic responses from Canis lupis indicates, in the opinion of Mich, that wolves regard the human imitated call as howling from alien wolves.

During the experimental howling sessions, the biologists noted that wolves remained near their original site after howling, or retreated if they remained silent. The difference apparently was related to the problems of avoiding both accidental and deliberate encounters, and to "cost-benefit considerations" related to resources at the wolves' locations, according to Mech.

He said howling enables packs to avoid one another. The major benefit of replying to howling of alien wolves is the avoidance of an "accidental" encounter. The biologist reports that accidental encounters have been observed among wolf packs in Minnesota. Wolves are keenly defensive of and sensitive to territorial rights established by packs. Conflicts can arise when alien wolves enter a territory.

"By howling," Mech said, "resident wolves advertise their position, allowing both resident and intruder to modify their movements to minimize the probability of accidental meeting."

The potential cost of replying, on the other hand, may be much greater than the energy required to howl because "advertisement announces the so-called advertisers' location and may subject them to attack, even by intruding wolves," he said.

Observations have been made in which intruding wolves located and attached other wolves by following their adversaries' tracks in snow. Howling also could be used this way by wolves. Thus an important potential cost of replaying to howling is the possibility of attack.

During the Minnesota study, the howling rate varied significantly throughout the year. A mid-winter increase was correlated with the breeding season, especially for groups containing breeding animals. A second, larger increase in reply rate started in mid-summer, peaked about August, and declined to a low in early winter. The decline in autumn howling response occurred sooner in a pack whose pups developed faster, Mech reports.

Study findings indicate the howling reply rate was significantly higher among all packs and lone wolves attending prey kills. The more food remaining at a kill, the higher the reply rate was.

Kills are valuable resources to wolves — resources not easily replaced, according to the biologists. Capturing and killing prey is a difficult and dangerous task. Most encounters between wolf packs and prey are unsuccessful. In other words, wolves generally must work hard when hunting for their dinners. A decline in the deer population in the area where the study was conducted reduced the number of available prey, so most kills were fully utilized by wolves. (Defense of a kill would be expected, Mech said, for even subordinate captive wolves can successfully defend their food from other more dominant wolves.)

During the study, larger wolf packs replied more often than did smaller packs. Howling enables a strung-out pack to reassemble, the biologists said. For wolves separated from their pack, the howling rate was dependent on the age and social role of pack members.

Specific behaviors noted during howling sessions — including movements away from the howler — indicated that howling was related to interpack agonism, Mech said. Moreover, three of the major factors influencing the reply rate also significantly affect the level of agonism toward strangers, namely: pack size, social role and the breeding season.

Two other factors, kills and pups, are both important pack resources necessitating exclusive occupancy of a site, Mech said. The high reply rates at sites containing kills — or pups — constitute strong circumstantial evidence that howling is important in the maintenance of a territory.

Howling was considered most effective in mediating avoidance in two situations:

+When two packs approached a common area of overlap;

+ When a pack returned to an area that was little used for weeks in which scent posts (spoor) would have lost effectiveness in deterring strangers (alien wolves).

Both scent marking and howling apparently are important in spacing. However, scent marking and howling differ in their roles and are complimentary; scent marking being long term and site-specific; howling being immediate and long range, in the words of Mech.

Lone wolves which do not possess territories rarely replied to human howling during the study, Mech said. Lone wolves shared the "low profile" behavior of surplus animals in a territorial population.

Interpack howling sessions may continue for hours, he said. In Minnesota, three adjacent packs were heard howling, apparently to each other each from its own territory. After such sessions packs moved apart, suggesting that interpack howling occurs in an agonistic context, and thus may be involved in territorial maintenance.

The study answered questions about the role and importance of howling in territory maintenance. Radioed wolves, replied to 494 of 8,783 trails during which biologists imitated wolf howls. Of the replies, 390 were recorded and 349 were of adequate quality for analysis.

Review Rules For Use Of Snowmobiles

Snowmobiling in Minnesota has been virtually nonexistent this winter because of lack of snow. But when the snow comes, reminders of snowmobile laws are in order and commission John P. Sopsic of the Minnesota department of public safety offers the following review:

First is a general reminder to snowmobilers to keep their personal safety and those of others uppermost at all times. "Snowmobilers have a general obligation to be aware of where they are driving at all times," said Major Richard G. Lueck of the Minnesota state patrol. Power poles and cables are hidden by snow and can cause unexpected obstacles, particularly at night.

Snowmobile operators should be aware of differing regulations in municipalities and counties.

State law prohibits snowmobilers from driving within the right-of-way of any interstate highway or freeway. Snowmobilers may not drive on the roadways, shoulders or inside slopes of state trunk highways and state-aid county roads.

Lueck adds that snowmobiles may cross divided highways only at intersections.

Snowmobile travel is legal in the ditches and on the outside slopes of state trunk highways and state-aid county roads. During daytime, snowmobilers can either use the right or left side of ditches and outside slopes.

At night smowobilers must drive on the right side ditch or outside bank, moving in the same direction as traffic on the roadway. This helps keep motorists from being confused by seeing headlights approaching on the wrong side of the road.

Before crossing a street or highway, snowmobilers must stop completely and yield right-of-way to oncomig traffic. Then, cross at a 90 degree angle to the road and at a place free of hazardous obstructions. Headlights and rear lights must be on when crossing at dusk or during darkness.

Persons under 14 years of age are not permitted to drive a snowmobile across a highway. Operators between 14 and 17 may cross a highway, but only if they are carrying a valid snowmobile safety certificate.

Snowmobiles operating on a public street or highway must have brakes adequate to stop and hold the vehicle under all driving conditions, at least one headlight able to show persons and vehicles 100 feet away during darkness, plus at least 16 square inches of reflective material on each side of the snowmobile forward of the handlebars.

Only persons 18 years or older may register a snowmobile. To renew registration, eligible snowmobile owners can apply to the department of natural resources license section in St. Paul or any office of a deputy registrar of motor vehicles.

Judicare: Legal Services For Low Income And Elderly

Northwest Legal Services Receives $468,820 Grant

Northwest Minnesota legal services, a 22-county program of legal assistance to low income and elderly people, has received a grant of $468,820 for the 1980 operating year from the Legal Service corporation, according to Congressman Arlan Stangeland.

The grant to the program in this area is part of a $304 million program nationwide which reaches into every community in the United States. Northwest Minnesota legal services provides assistance in the counties of Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Red Lake, Pennington, Polk, Beltrami, Norman, Mahnomen, Clearwater, Clay, Becker, Wilkin, Hubbard, Otter Tail, Wadena, Traverse, Grant, Douglas, Stevens and Pope.

Dale Craft, director of the Northwest Minnesota legal services which has headquarters in Moorhead, said the organization has been in operation for three years in this area of the state and during that time has served about 6,000 people. Included are about 125 in Pennington county, approximately 75 in Marshall county and an estimated 50 people in Red Lake county. Craft said that not all of the program has been available in these counties for all three years it has been in operation.

During the first three years the legal services operated as a study program with funding of $100,000 the first year, $185,000 the second year and $272,000 the third year, Craft said. These amounts are insufficient to meet the demand, he said, the the current allocation of $468,820 for the coming year is a more realistic amount.

A private non-profit agency, Northwest Minnesota legal services provides a type of legal service called "Judicare" or "open-Panel private attorney" approach. Under this program, private attorneys make themselves available for referral through the agency and perform authorized services to low income and elderly clients at rates approximating office overhead cost. These fees are paid by the agency with grant funds.

Previously, legal services were provided to the district by establishing legal service centers in various cities in the district. This approach was less successful because of the distance required for travel if clients were to make use of the service. Now there are about 200 attorneys participating in the 22 counties, and they are located in all county seats and many other communities.

To qualify for free legal services under the program, individuals or families must meet the eligibility standards set forth for participation. An individual may be eligible if his or her monthly income is less than $354. Income may be $460 monthly for a two-person household, $583 for three, $697 for four, $812 for five or $927 for six-member households. An additional $115 per month of income is allowed for each additional member of the household.

"While these rates have been established as guidelines," Craft said, "they are not necessarily hard and fast amounts. We are allowed to make some discretionary exceptions due to existing circumstances, and those who feel they may qualify are encouraged to make application and discuss their situation with us."

Application centers generally include community action program (CAP) offices, county social services offices, senior citizen program centers and senior meals sites. Beginning February 1 the Moorhead office of Northwest Minnesota legal services will have a two-way WATS telephone service and interested persons may call toll-free to 1-800-452-3625. The office is located in the Townsite Center at Eighth street and Fourth avenue south in Moorhead and mail may be addressed to P.O. Box 714 in Moorhead, zip code 56560.

Legal services allowable under the program include civil court cases such as contract disputes, divorces and other actions as well as assistance in preparing wills, probating estates and related services. No criminal defense service is permitted (this is handled by public defenders under other program areas), nor are services which are considered to be fee generating — that is, bringing assets into the client's possession in excess of fee for service.

In the case of senior citizens, however, there is no income—or—assets—test—permitted when application is made for service. Northwest Minnesota legal services has been allocated an additional $100,000 for the coming year under the Older Americans

I-500 Activity Part Of Winter Wildness Event

Approximately 100 drivers are expected in Thief River Falls Monday as they complete the first leg of the Winnipeg to St. Paul I-500 snowmobile race, according to Don Grabanski, local chairman for this event.

This year's program, which is being coordinated by the I-500 committee of the chamber of commerce, has been expanded to three days of festivities, called Winter Wildness, which ties into the 15th annual running of the international snowmobile race classic.

Starting time for the race in Winnipeg is 9 a.m. Monday with arrival time in Thief River Falls to be sometime prior to noon. Finish line will be located west of highway 59, north of the city.

One of the features of this year's race, according to Grabanski, will be the addition of a "sports" class. These will be drivers who want to compete in the race as amateurs and will not be racing against the times posted by professional drivers.

Racers will be given only one-half hour of safety

Missionary Has Satisfying Life

ANNA FOSTER, missionary from Bolivia, South America, stated in a recent Times interview that all missionary work is physically exhausting. "There are not enough people to do all the work that must be done," she said.

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

Anna Foster may be called somewhat of a wanderer in that she has been in several states within the United States and a few areas within South America. The only difference between her life and that of a true "wanderer" is that Anna HAS a fixed goal in her life.

For 16 years she has lived in Bolivia, South America, and for the past six years she has occupied her time as a missionary there. Anna, 33, was born in Sioux Falls, SD, where she lived for less than a year before moving to Iowa, Colorado, California, Florida, Bolivia, Wisconsin, Missouri, back to Florida and then back again to Bolivia, which is situated in central South America.

Her mother, father, brother and sister-in-law are missionaries in the lowlands of South America (a five-hour trip from Anna's residence which can be reached by a small road that is not always passable), while Anna's sister and husband are missionaries in Venezuela.

When Anna was younger, she did missionary work with her parents which involved working with the Indians in Bolivia. Now she is mainly concerned with office work in which she prints Bibles for the Indians in their tribal language. The lack of modern conveniences in Cochabamba (the city in Bolivia where Anna works which bears a population of approximately 250,000) makes the printing job long and tedious for Anna, who does her printing on a manual printer, in which thousands of turns on a crank are needed to produce one book.

"We'd like more equipment, but you have to make do with what you have in a situation like that," she said.

Anna's job, just as all missionary work, is physically exhausting, she said. There are not enough people (missionaries) to do all the work that must be done.

The most copies she has ever made manually is 500. But since most of the tribes are small, not many duplicates have to be made of each original copy.

Anna also handles all the bookkeeping for the missionary board, which she stated is a full time job, and she is in charge of correspondence with other missionaries and field directors, making her work and working hours quite varied.

Although Anna enjoys her work, she has often desired to do contact work with the Indian tribes, she said. But, because of the strenuous physical work involved, the job is not favorable to single girls. Her brother often has

War Memorial At Airport Reviewed By City Council

Information regarding a war memorial at the Thief River Falls regional airport was presented to city council members for consideration following statements made by George Singer, airport manager, during Monday evening's regular city council meeting.

"Our initial thought was to have one plane arranged for display at the airport," Singer said. "But we decided it would be more feasible to construct a memorial for those who served in the war from the Thief River Falls, Pennington county and northwest Minnesota area. Permission has been received from the airport committee to go ahead with plans."

The location of hardware for the project — one of the most difficult tasks, according to Singer — brought favorable response from the department of defense. And, physical layout for the project was planned, if the project is approved. Almost everyone solicited for financial support returned a favorable response also, Singer said.

"What we need now is formal action from the city council to acquire the equipment (two planes and one weapons carrier) from the defense department," Singer stated.

A commitment with the city council is needed with the department of defense for approval to acquire the property on a non-discrimination basis, and to approve costs for transporting and erecting the equipment, Singer added.

Debate arose from various council members concerning the idea of a committee meeting before approval of the equipment was granted by council members.

"The department of defense will hold the property for 30 days before it lets the equipment go to another interested party," Singer said. But he reminded council members that the committee could back out of the project (once approval has been sent to the department of defense) if project costs could not be met.

A resolution was introduced by alderman Ambrose Wysoski and seconded by alderman Ole Engelstad to put a hold on the equipment from the department of defense for the war memorial at the airport, if the site is constructed.

In further council action, the special bill of the Automatic Overhead Garage Door company, Inc. of Thief River Falls for work on hangar doors at the Thief River Falls regional airport for $600 was approved by council members.

Bids on plastic refuse bags were opened at 2 p.m. yesterday, with plans for bag delivery set for February 29. A

COMMUNITY HEALTH S

NBC NEWS CREW from Chicago was in Thief River Falls Friday to film a segment to be aired on the NBC nightly news feature. Northwestern hospital services in Thief River Falls will be one of several hospitals from across the nation featured in a review of the national nursing shortage and how hospitals are attempting to meet the need. Cameraman Dick Smith and soundman Mike Stephen are pictured above during an outdoor shooting session at the hospital. Also a member of the three-man crew was producer Mike Keating. Expectation is that the segment will be broadcast on the NBC weekend news at 5:30 p.m. either this Saturday or next. That segment is not carried on the area NBC affiliate stations, being pre-empted by other programming. The affiliates have indicated the possibility of taping that part of the news program, however, and because of its regional interest, showing it on the 10 p.m. evening news program if time permits.

National Theme Says Jaycees Excite America

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

Various goals have been accomplished by the Jaycees during the past year to make the year successful, according to Randy Adamson, president of the Thief River Falls Jaycees since May 1 of last year.

This week (January 20-26) has been proclaimed Jaycees week with the national theme for the week announcing "Jaycees Excite America." The week enables Jaycees to recognize people and to be recognized themselves, Adamson said.

"My theme for the year has been, 'Be the Best. You Can.' You get out of the Jaycees what you put into it. A concentrated effort to accomplish something enables you to get something in return."

Thief River Falls is more of a community organization for the Jaycees, he said. The city is far from the metropolitan areas where the bulk of the Jaycees organizations lie. But a smaller community organization allows for closer fellowship among members, according to Adamson.

Being a member of the Thief River Falls Jaycees for six years has taught Adamson to meet and get along with others, he said.

"It (Jaycees) exposes you to the needs of the community, and enables you to understand the 'why' of situations. Belonging to the Jaycees gives you a chance to do something about those things that need changing."

Presidents are elected to the Thief River Falls Jaycees for one-year terms. A large number of past presidents are yet active within the organization. Main function of a Jaycees president is to serve as a representative when called upon by other organizations, Adamson said. Also, it is the president's job to provide a yearly program to suit the interests of members.

"You have to gear the year by members," he said. In an effort to obtain member interests, an extensive yearly survey is distributed among members, which usually results in a "good return," according to Adamson.

The one major goal or philosophy of the Jaycees is broken down with a Jaycee triangle, which summarizes the idea of leadership training through community development of involvement.

On one side of the triangle is the 'idea' of individual development, which involves personal training programs within the Jaycees organization. Another side refers to community development which involves community projects sponsored by the Jaycees, and the third side, management development, combines the READY... AIM... FIRE... But it's not always that easy using a plunger for an arrow. A steady hand and careful concentration was needed for the young archers who participated in Cub scout Caber day Saturday afternoon in the Thief River Falls city auditorium. Archery was one of 14 events that the boys had to complete before their points could be totaled on their "caber" sticks.

The Murray Melanders To Live In This City

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Melander are at home in this city at 1808 Robinhood Drive following an exchange of marriage vows at Trinity Lutheran church and a wedding trip to Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada.

The bride, the former Carol Penning, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Penning of 215 South Kendall. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Norris Melander, 1420 Birchlane Drive.

Officiating at the double-ring, ecumenical ceremony were Rev. Julius Hovland of Trinity and Rev. James Bernauer of St. Bernard's Catholic church. Mrs. Carl Nordvall presided at the organ. She played Rogers and Hammerstein's "Processional" from "The Sound of Music," for the processional, and Andra and Crouch's "My Tribute" for the recessional. During the ceremony, Deborah Penning, sister of the bride, sang, Gregory Norbet's "Wherever You Go", Denes Agay's "Old Irish Blessing," and Malotte's "Lord's Prayer."

Seven-branch candelabra, graced with greenery and white ribbon bows formed the chancel setting. On each side of the altar were bouquets of peach colored carnations. White ribbon bows marked the pews reserved for family and close relatives.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a gown of white siesta knit with silk Venice lace forming the high neckline. Matching hand-clipped lace traced the sheer, portrait insert, followed the waistline and complemented the cap sleeves. Her pleated skirt and flowing train were also edged with lace. To complete her ensemble, she wore a wide-brimmed hat trimmed with Venice lace motifs and veiling. She carried a large white orchid with yellow center, spider plant greenery, asparagus fern and babies' breath.

Serving as the bride's personal attendants were Mrs. Janet Ehrenstrom, Grand Forks, and Robin Harris, friends of the bride.

Mrs. Paula Newton, a sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Other attendants were Deborah Penning, Worland, Wyo., sister of the bride; Mrs. Diane Gonsorowski, a friend of the bride, and Miss Julie Melander, sister of the groom. All wore peach colored, floor-length gowns featuring blouson tops with spaghetti straps. Topping the gowns were shawls of a floral sheer edged with a matching ruffle. In their hair, they wore a solitary white carnation. They carried bouquets of peach carnations, babies' breath, greenery, and peach ribbon streamers.

Attending the groom was Tom Barry, a friend. Groomsmen were Mark Melander, a brother; Jim Elleson and Jeff Tunberg, friends of the groom. The ushers were Kevin Anderson, Jim Goulet of Minneapolis, and Jerry Sandahl, friends of the groom. The groom's attire was all white. His attendants wore silver gray tuxedos with silver accents on the lapels and trousers, white ruffle shirts and white carnation boutonnieres with a peach tint.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Penning selected a mauve colored street-length dress with a shawl collar and a belted waistline. The mother of the groom was attired in a pink street-length dress featuring an accordion pleated bodice. Their corsages were white gardenias.

Honor guests were Mrs. H.A. Penning, grandmother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Alton Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Aron Melander, grandparents of the groom; and Mr. and Mrs. George Netteland of this city and Mrs. Tena Solum of Stephen, special friends of the bride's family.

Also among the 250 relatives and freinds attending the ceremony and reception were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Penning, Little Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Penning and Janet and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cross of St. Paul; Mr. and Mrs. James Melander, Gardner, N.D., and Mr. and Mrs. Morris Melander, Hunter, N.D., and Mrs. Lila Mollberg and family; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fauher of Baudette.

A reception at the church followed the ceremony. Serving as hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Barron, friends of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Hess, friends of the couple. At the guest book was Mrs. Bonnie Elleson. Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Johnson, Tim Benedict and Yvonne Gonsorowski ladled the punch. All are friends of the couple.

Centering the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake decorated with white and pale yellow roses. Topping the cake were a cluster of peach silk roses, babies' breath and greenery. The cake was cut and served by Mrs, Shawn Peterson, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Kathleen Melander, godmother of the groom. Pouring coffee were Mrs. Gretchen Beito and Mrs. Glenna Wefald, friends of the bride.

Waitresses were Kathy Barry, Mary Courneya, Jolene Gibson, Cynthia Hess, Nancy Larson and Lisa Nepper. The gifts were arranged by Becky Bergland and Denise Wold. All are friends of the bride.

City Council Reviews Plan For Memorial

second council meeting was conducted at 5 p.m. yesterday for the purpose of reviewing bids for sanitation bags. Out of eight bids received, the low bidder, Chicago Transparent products, was accepted in the amount of $31,140, since it met all specifications necessary.

Also at the 5 p.m. meeting, the question arose regarding qualifications needed to receive a reduced monthly rate for garbage bags. Mention was made that notice was received that the monthly rate for garbage was a hardship for some ($5.75 for 100 bags for one year, with the rate for low income persons set at $3 per year). It was resolved that low income standards would be reviewed with social services, and if "people don't qualify, they don't qualify," alderman Bill Penning stated.

In further council action, it was resolved that the city of Thief River Falls would award its insurance package to Thune Upham for 1980.

Final action at the second meeting concerned a discussion of an emergency fuel assistance program in Thief River Falls. Roy Jorgenson, director of the Inter-County community council, Inc. of Oklee, stated that a site in Thief River Falls is needed to direct emergency fuel assistance customers since the percentage of people under the fuel assistance program from Thief River Falls is low in comparison to the number of senior citizens and low income persons in the community.

Alderman Penning introduced the resolution to appoint Morris Owen as assistant for two months to take applications for those desiring aid under the fuel assistance program. Jorgenson stressed that those people qualifying for help include: Those that live on a farm and have a family of one and have an income less than $3,638; family of two and income less than $4,800; family of three and income less than $5,963; family of four and income less than $7,125; family of five and income less than $8,228; and family of six with income less than $9,450.

Also, those that do not live on a farm and have a family of one with an income less than $4,250 are eligible; family of two with income less than $5,625; family of three and income less than $7,000; family of four and income less than $8,375; family of five and income less than $9,750; and family of six with income less than $11,125. If a farm family is larger than six people, it is allowed $1,163 for each additional member, while if the family does not live on a farm, and is larger than six people, it is allowed $1,375 for each additional member.

Permission was granted by council members for a wrestling match to be conducted February 27 in the Thief River Falls city auditorium (if the date is open) with proceeds going to the firing range construction for the Thief River Falls police department. The match would be sponsored by the policeman's relief association.

Planning commission meeting with city council members regarding policy decision on capital improvement costs was requested to be set for February 5 at 7 p.m. (the date for the next regular city council meeting). Policy decision originally began with drainage costs and has continued with all capital improvement costs, according to Jim E. Walker, consulting engineer.

1979 statistics illustrated that parking ticket revenue for that year was $8,953.46, and passenger boarding for that year at the Thief River Falls regional airport was 13,492.

Police chief Ken Froschheiser discussed the towing policy currently in operation in the Thief River Falls area, which involves a $15 towing charge to the owner of the car if his vehicle is towed away — following proper advance notice on Thief River Falls' radio stations and flyers distributed throughout the city.

Debate arose from council members over leaving the present towing charge and towing practices or charging a lesser fee to cars. It was resolved that the situation would be referred to the street and public safety committee at a January 24 meeting at 5 p.m. for further discussion.

Information from a special meeting with the finance committee conducted January 18 concerning banking practices was discussed by alderman Wysoski, who concluded that, "no decisions were made, and a second meeting of the finance committee is planned for the near future." Representatives from both Thief River Falls banks were present at the January 18 meeting to discuss the city's yearly checking account depository, including Roger Reuter and Dave Kjos of the First Northwestern state bank, and Gene Beito of the Northern state bank.

Legal Services Grant Awarded For This Area

act for use specifically in providing services to senior citizens.

"We are not permitted to make an income or assets test for senior citizens," Craft emphasized, "whenever there are services available. But we do develop waiting lists when necessary and service to those on the waiting lists is based on economic need.

"Craft also stressed the informational aspect of the program which assists in organizing, sponsoring and presenting seminars on consumer problems, guardianships, estate planning, guarantees and warranties and other legal areas.

"The Northwest Minnesota legal services program is very important to the people of the Seventh district since it provides legal assistance to those who are least able to afford the services of an attorney," Congressman Arlan Stangeland said in announcing the trant.

"It has proved to be a worthwhile program and without it many of our friends and neighbors would not be able to obtain necessary legal counseling and advice." The 1980 appropriation will complete the expansion process of providing legal services to areas not served previously.

He was preceded in death by his father, who died Oct. 18, 1975.

INCREDIBLE BUT TRUE!

Can't lose weight? Consider the case of Paul M. Kimmelman of Pittsburgh. On Dec. 25, 1966, he weighed 487 pounds. He went on a crash diet of 300-to-600 calories a day. By August 1967, he had slimmed down to 130 pounds—a total loss of 357 pounds. He later stabilized his weight at 175 pounds.

Ron Hunt, infielder who played for various teams in the National League between 1963-74, led the league in getting hit by pitched balls seven years in a row. During his major league career, he was hit 243 times—also a record of sorts.

Then there's the baseball that couldn't stop time—or at least a Timex. Billy Dicks of East Islip, N.Y. was at bat. The "pitcher" was a pitching machine, tossing balls at him at 85 miles per hour. A ball went wild, hit his Timex, which was thrown out of the band and into the next batting cage, where balls continued to pelt it. When it was all over and the Timex was retrieved, it was still ticking away, keeping perfect time.

According to astronomers, as the sun's heat is increased, the rays will make life insupportable on earth. But don't get in a sweat over it. It's not supposed to happen for about ten million years.

Some things thought of as small can actually grow to tremendous size. A lemon picked from a tree in California weighed six pounds, four ounces, and measured 28 3/4 inches in circumference. A three-pound, 11-ounce orange was grown in Arizona. And a peanut grown on a farm in North Carolina was three and a half inches long when it was finally picked from a vine.

Board Accepts Bids On Three School Buses

Acceptance of bids for three school bus chassis and bodies, revising of the 1979-80 revenue and expenditure budgets and authorizing the superintendent to make recommendations regarding discontinuance or curtailment of programs and discontinuance of positions took place at Monday evening's meeting of the Thief River Falls board of education.

Low bid of $38,714 by North Central Blue Bird company was accepted for the three 72-passenger bus bodies with four other bids ranging up to $41,997. Reiten and Young International, Inc., received the contract for three 72-passenger bus chassis at a bid of $45,307.

Expenditure budget for the district for 1979-80 was revised upward from $6,569,847 to $6,830,827 while revenue budget was boosted from $6,510,780 to $6,734,587. The board also resolved to review the expenditure budget following salary settlement.

Resolution on consideration of discontinuance of programs or positions directed the superintendent of schools and administration to consider the discontinuance of programs or positions as a result of reduction in enrollment to effectuate economies in the school district and reduce expenditures; and make recommendations to the school board for the discontinuance of programs, curtailment of programs and discontinuance of positions.

Part of the resolution notes that there is an anticipated reduction in student enrollment for the 1980-81 school year and this reduction will have an impact on the financial condition of the district.

The board hired Greg Stauss for the position of mine safety and health training instructor-coordinator at the AVTI at a daily rate of $66.03 per day. The employment is conditioned upon continued state and federal reimbursement and involves a 240-day contract. The board also authorized the purchase of a new medium-size station wagon for the instructor-coordinator, who will serve a wide part of northern Minnesota.

Authorization was given to the advertising for and employment of an additional SLD teacher for the current school year. Verified requests have been received for additional help from elementary and middle school principals.

Meet and confer session was set for February 11 at 7:30 p.m. to establish the school calendar. The calendar must be ratified prior to an April 1 deadline. Resolution was adopted declaring that Washington's and Lincoln's birthday and Christopher Columbus day may be used for student attendance days and-or teacher attendance days where a reasonable school calendar indicates a need.

Diane Paulson was hired as a new AVTI accounting clerk at $4.20 an hour and Ellesabeth Carlson as a nine-month full time bus driver at a rate of $0.20 an hour.

The superintendent of schools was appointed as the responsible authority for the collection, maintenance and use of all records, files and processes which contain any data which is kept by the school district on a permanent or temporary basis, including that collected, stored and disseminated by manual, mechanical, electronic or other means.

The responsible authority is authorized to designate an individual to be in charge of individual files or systems containing government data and to receive and comply with requests for data.

Also authorized were five hours per day of tutoring time while Laotion students are in attendance in these schools.

The board also authorized the submitting of their approved arbitration position to the state bureau of mediation.

3,000 Scouts, Scouters Set For Camporall

About 3,000 scouts and scouters from 298 Scout troops will take part in a camporall to be held May 30-31 and June 1 at Camp Grafton near Devils Lake, N.D.

Ray E. Miller, of Fargo, chairman of the project for the Northern Lights council Boy Scouts of America, said this will be the largest camporall ever to be held in the area. A camporall is a three-day outdoor camping experience involving scouts from an entire Boy scout council.

Miller said scouting units taking part in the camporall will be from North Dakota, 18 western Minnesota counties and parts of South Dakota and Montana which make up the Northern Lights council. Canadian scouts will also be invited to take part.

Theme for the camporall, the first to be held in this area is "Scouting — The Better Way."

Miller announced his committee members who will be responsible for the overall handling of the camporall. They are: Vice-chairman in charge of campmasters, Norm Cruse, Thief River Falls; participation, Wayne Sanstead, Bismarck; publicity, Tom Andersen, Fargo; program, John Pence, Minot; physical arrangements, Pete Wold Jr., Bottineau; finance, Len Marti, Grand Forks; and distinguished guests, Andre Munn, Moorhead.

Miller and his camporall committee met January 19 in Carrington, N.D. with the 15 district camporall campmasters to preview the entire camporall program.

Farm Market Receipts Hit $3,811 Million

Cash receipts from Minnesota farm marketings during the first nine months of 1979 have been estimated at $3,811.7 million, fifth highest among all states, reports agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin.

That total, compared to the same January through September period of 1978, represents a gain of $552.8 million or 17 per cent increase in gross receipts from sales of crops, livestock and poultry products.

Biggest share of the increased receipts for Minnesota farmers came from sales of crops. Gross receipts from crops sold through September were estimated at $1,729.8 million. That topped the same period for 1978 by $358.2 million or over 26 per cent.

Cash receipts from the sales of livestock, poultry, milk, and eggs totaled $2,081.9 million. That was higher than the nine month period of 1978 by $194.6 million or more than 10 per cent.

Ranking ahead of Minnesota in January through September 1979 farm marketing receipts were California with $7,234.9 million, Iowa with $6,683.4 million, Texas with $6,342.5 million, and Illinois with $5,210.8 million.

Minnesota's increased marketing receipts accounted for over five per cent of the national increase in gross farm income from commodity sales and represented almost five per cent of the $85,596.7 million total U.S. marketing receipts during the first nine months of 1979.

"I'LL GET IT THIS TIME!" seems to be the thought of this young Cub scout who took part in Caber day at the Thief River Falls city auditorium Saturday. The boys had to complete 14 stations before their points could be totaled on their "caber" sticks — which most kept close at hand throughout the day. In this event, a tire had to be rolled between two rows of boxes from a jump four inches high.

Australian Ag. Exchange Plan Is Established

University of Minnesota has established an agricultural exchange program with Australia to enable American students to study that country's agriculture and way of life.

Applications will be reviewed during December and January of each year. Students accepted into the program will arrive in Australia in the latter part of March for a two-day orientation and then live with a host farm family. Program will conclude the following January. Nine-month period will allow participants to experience a complete cycle of crop and animal production.

As time permits during the working period, students will attend field days, seminars, and short courses to further their understanding of Australian agriculture.

Participants will live and work on a family farm and are expected to become part of the family and the local community. They will have a two-week break period during July, August, or September to tour the country.

Agricultural students taking part in the program will be responsible for all of their own travel costs and will need to obtain personal health and accident insurance to cover medical expenses. Host farmers will pay workers compensation insurance to cover the participant for any accidents that may occur while working on the farm. Working students will be paid an allowance of $75 or more per week plus room and board.

Persons interested in applying should have completed secondary school, have some type of vocational agricultural training, and one year of practical working experience. Applicants should be single and between the ages of 20 and 26.

For additional information and an application form, contact: Fred. D. Hoefer, Extension Specialist, International Program Development, Office of Special Programs, University of Minnesota, 405 Coffey Hall, 1420 Eckles Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55108. Phone: (612) 373-0725.

"IF THE FROGS can do it, so will I." The tire obstacle station was one of 14 events area Cub scouts had to complete for points during Cub scout Caber day conducted at the Thief River Falls city auditorium Saturday. For a total of five points, the boys had to jump with both feet in each of five car tires.

Query Taken Out Of Driver License Form

According to Sharon Fischer, president of the mental health association of Minnesota, the Minnesota department of public safety recently removed an inappropriate question on the drivers license application form related to mental health treatment.

The applicant was previously asked to check a box indicating if he or she has ever had a conculsive disorder, black out, stroke, paralysis, other type of physical impairment, or been hospitalized because of a "mental condition." If so, details were to be given on the back of the form.

"The question implied an enduring quality to most mental problems and a correlation between them and the ability to drive a car, neither of which is true," Fischer stated. "In addition, since the driver's license application becomes part of the public record and transcripts may be issued to anyone, this question may be in violation of the data privacy act and should not be asked at all."

Mental health association, an education and advocacy organization, called attention to the question late last year to "protect the rights and privacy of persons who have benefited from mental health treatment and to put an end to another stigmatizing myth," Fischer said.

1980 Planting Plans Released For Minnesota

As of January 1, Minnesota farmers planned to boost corn, spring wheat and barley plantings but expected to but back on soybeans, oats, sunflowers and flax. These were the results of a survey of farmers' planting intentions conducted by the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service.

The acreages farmers actually plant next spring could change significantly from the figures in this report, depending on commodity prices, participation in government programs, price and availability of production inputs, the weather at planting time, and the effects of this report itself on farmers' plans. The data for this report was collected prior to the announcement of the grain embargo to the Soviet Union.

Based on plans around January 1, Minnesota farmers intended to increase corn plantings four per cent to 7.2 million acres.

Prospective soybean acreage of 5.2 million acres is down two per cent.

Growers intended to increase wheat acreage by 16 per cent to 3.065 million acres. By types, spring wheat other than durum is slated for a 16 per cent boost to 2.9 million acres and durum wheat may reach 90,000 acres, up 13 per cent. Winter wheat seedings were previously set at 75,000 acres, 25 per cent greater than last year.

Intended oat acreage is down six per cent to 1.55 million acres.

Barley growers expected to seed 940,000 acres, 21 per cent more than 1979.

Farmers intended to reduce flax acreage 19 per cent to 130,000 acres.

Sunflower growers planned to cut back seedings to 1.3 million acres, seven per cent less than 1979. By types, oil varieties would total 1.24 million acres, down seven per cent while non-oil varieties would total 60,000 acres, unchanged.

Intended sugarbeet acreage is up one per cent to 251,000 acres.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Dear Bambi: Yes, Bambi, there is a Santa Claus. Melvin Jopprn is your Santa Claus. He provides you with all those goodies, that you and your friends consume each year. There are a lot of Melvin Jopprus and Gordon Fosses in this part of the country that provide for you and your cousins, the elk and moose.

We seem to have an abundance of Santa Clauses around, that receive no compensation for providing all those goodies for you. Your protectors, the D.N.R., will not compensate these Santa Clauses for being so good to you.

But what really upsets me, is they receive no credit for providing you with food and in some cases shelter. Your so called protectors, the D.N.R., receive all the funds and credit for providing you and yours all these creature comforts. Now the D.N.R. claims to have funds to feed you.

Evidently you don't like the menu. Now Bambi, what you should do to get a decent menu from the D.N.R., is to gather up your friends and cousins and find out who is in charge, and march in front of his place of residence and demand better food and better foraging conditions. That is the democratic way of bringing your grievances out in the open.

Good luck to you and your cousins Bambi, in this endeavor. Oh! By the way, when you find out who is in charge of the Minnesota D.N.R., would you please drop me a line and let me know? I have been trying to find out for years, and I find out that I'm not alone.

I am sure we can help you, Bambi, in your crusade for better food and conditions in your own habitat, if we are furnished with this information.

Your very good friend,
-s-Robert L. Fincher

Mn. Corn Yields Hit 100 Bushels For Third Year

For the third consecutive year, Minnesota farmers produced a corn crop that yielded 100 bushels or more per acre. According to the annual crop summary, released by the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service, the 1979 corn crop totaled 606 million bushels, the second largest crop on record. Despite a late growing season, yields averaged 100 bushels per acre, tying 1977 but below 1978's 104 bushels.

The state's soybean production jumped 15 per cent to a new record — 167.36 million bushels. This was the result of a 29 per cent acreage increase. However, yields dropped four bushels per acre to 32 bushels.

Sunflower output rose to 1.9 billion pounds, up 74 per cent from the 1978 crop. Although acreage nearly doubled, the average yield of 1,389 pounds per acre was down 147 pounds.

A comprehensive report will be published shortly summarizing acreage, yield, production, price, and value of production for nearly all crops grown in Minnesota. If anyone not already on the service's mailing list would like a copy, please write and ask for the "Annual Crop Summary," from the agricultural statistician, Box 70068, St. Paul, MN, 55107.

NWRDC Given $49,500 Grant For Planning

Senators Rudy Boschwitz and Dave Durenberger announced today that the Northwest regional development commission headquartered at Crookston has received a $49,500 grant from the Economic Development administration of the U.S. department of commerce.

The funds will help finance a program of planning for long-range economic growth and new jobs in the seven-county region.

The commission is working to establish an economic development district consisting of Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties.

Aim of the EDA district program is to encourage adjacent counties to work together to overcome regional problems blocking growth, and to create new jobs.

The commission conducts research, planning and promotional activities in support of economic growth. It works with local, state and federal agencies in coordinating public and private investments to create jobs.

New President At BSU Will Succeed Decker

Calling her appointment "the most exciting thing that has happened to me in my entire life," Dr. Rebecca Stafford accepted the presidency at Bemidji state university January 15.

Stafford, 43, is currently the dean of the college of arts and sciences at the University of Nevada-Reno and will succeed Dr. R.D. Decker, president of BSU for 11 years who resigned last September.

Decker will continue to serve in the chief administrative capacity until Stafford permanently arrives on campus sometime this spring.

Stafford was elected by the state university board in a unanimous vote January 15, having been selected from a field of five finalists. Representatives of BSU faculty, staff, students and area community residents all were invited to participate in the evaluation process.

Among her presidential priorities, Stafford indicated, will be solidifying communications both inside the outside the university community. Visiting area communicites and talking with parents, high school personnel and business leaders will be included early in her agenda. Eventually Stafford also hopes to return to the university classroom as an instructor in family communications, marriage and the family, or other related courses on a limited basis.

Stafford is married to Willard "Bill" Van Hazel, deputy attorney general in charge of the anti-trust division for the state of Nevada.

Former TRF Doctor Killed In Hawaii Storm

Dr. James L. Erickson, in his late 40's, a former Thief River Falls physician, was killed by a falling tree during a windstorm on Hawaii on January 8.

According to a clipping from the Portland Orgonian, where Dr. Erickson had served as medical examiner, Erickson had stopped his car and was trying to move a tree that had fallen across a road near his home. Another tree fell, killing him.

Dr. Erickson was at the Falls Clinic in Thief River Falls in 1962. After leaving here, he worked in the emergency rooms at McKenzie-Willamette Memorial hospital in Springfield, Ore., and at Lebanon Community hospital before becoming an emergency room physician at Lebanon Community hospital before becoming an emergency room physician at Albany General hospital in 1976. From August of 1978 until July of 1979, he served as medical examiner of Linn County Oregon. Since then, he had lived in Hawaii.

He is survived by his wife, Alice; and three children: Terry, Miles and Kitty.

Take Action To Protect Farm Grain Market

Congressman Arlan Stangeland said today he is joining other members of Congress in sponsoring legislation to protect the farmer because the measures taken by the Carter administration are "grossly inadequate."

"Protecting the farmer is the main concern and even though the government is buying the grain, legislation is needed to prevent the government from holding the grain over the market and manipulating the supply and demand balance," Stangeland said.

The legislation requires that the agricultural commodities previously committed to the Soviet Union be purchased by the U.S. government and that these commodities be permanently isolated from the market until each commodity respectively reaches 100 per cent of parity in the open market.

Without the parity provision required by the legislation, the government could decide to release the grain on the market at any time it wishes which would result in a glut of grain on the market. Prices would be driven down and the possible effects to the farmer and the agriculture industry as a whole could be devasting, Rep. Stangeland said.

"The farmer is having a difficult time as it is staying in business because of the already high prices of farm operation and the rapidly increasing rate of inflation. This legislation is designed to guarantee them they don't have to worry about this grain suddenly appearing on the market and depressing grain prices and justly reducing potential yearly income," Stangeland added.

Outline Steps For Safety In Wood Burning

John P. Sopsic, commissioner of the Minnesota department of public safety, urges all Minnesotans to heed the information outlined by state fire Marshal Wes Werner, relating to wood burning stoves.

Fire is taking an unprecedented toll this winter as more families turn to using wood burning equipment as a supplemental method of heating their homes, Werner said.

"As the cost of heating oil, gas and electricity continues to rise, more Minnesotans are installing wood burning stoves, fireplaces and furnaces," said Werner. "And those who have been using their appliances on an intermittent basis are using them more frequently and for longer periods."

Wood burning equipment becomes a fire hazard when there is inadequate clearance between combustible material, stoves and chimney connectors; the equipment has been installed incorrectly; or the equipment has been maintained improperly.

In 1979, according to the Minnesota fire incident report system, there were 82 fire deaths, including 68 individuals who died in family home and apartment fires. The system does not get reports from all fire departments but in 1978, 902 reports came from 500 departments. A complete report on 1979 has not been compiled.

To insure the safe use of wood burning equipment, Werner made the following suggestions: when shopping for a wood burning stove, look for a label indicating that the unit has been tested and approved by a testing laboratory. Make sure there are no cracks or other defects, and that the stove is made of a sturdy material such as iron or steel.

Werner reminded mobile home owners that wood burning applicances installed in mobile homes must be specifically listed for use and installation in mobile homes.

When installing any unit, follow the manufacturer's instructions and check local building and fire codes, to make sure you are in compliance with the law.

Check all older installations to determine whether clearances to combustible surfaces are adequate. Allow enough space between a stove and any combustible wall or ceiling surface. The fire marshal's office recommends a 36-inch distance between the stove and walls, ceilings, carpet or furniture.

If you no longer have your owner's manual and you have a suspicion that there might be a problem with your wood burning equipment, contact your local fire department and request an immediate inspection of the installation and equipment. It is a good idea to request an inspection on a regular basis as a part of your maintenance program.

One of the major concerns regarding wood stove operation is the problem of creosote and carbon collecting in chimneys and starting fires. The buildup is accelerated when stoves or fireplaces maintain a fire for long periods of time at low firing rates. One suggestion to lessen the accumulation of deposits is to maintain a relatively high level of combustion in your wood burning applicance so that the products of combustion exit the chimney before condensation of creosote or carbon occurs.

Periodically have your chimney connector and chimney cleaned by a professional chimney sweep as deposits can be safely removed only by a mechanical process.

"The fire marshal's office urges all wood burning appliance owners to become aware of the hazards of using such equipment for the safety of themselves and their families," Werner said.

BOARD CHAIRMAN SPEAKS OUT

ON TEACHERS' SALARIES — "IN SOME SCHOOL DISTRICTS OUR SALARY SCHEDULE WOULD BE BELOW, AND THAT WE DON'T DENY."

— The above statement, although difficult to understand, is an admission by the school board chairman that teachers' salaries in T.R.F. are below those of some comparably sized districts.

— We agree. Last week's ad showed that even if the board had accepted the teachers' last proposal T.R.F. teachers would make considerably less money than teachers in comparably sized districts.

ON FRINGE BENEFITS — McDOWELL STATED, "WHEN YOU TALK ABOUT PAY SCALE, YOU HAVE TO LOOK BEYOND THE SALARY SCHEDULE. IF YOU LOOK ONLY AT THE SALARY SCHEDULE AND DON'T COMPARE FRINGE BENEFITS, YOU HAVEN'T COMPARED A TOTAL PACKAGE OF COMPENSATION FOR THE INDIVIDUALS."

—WE AGREE! LET'S EXAMINE SALARIES AND FRINGE BENEFITS.

This comparison shows how much LESS a T.R.F. teacher with a M.A. degree and ten years of experience would make per year if the teachers had accepted the BOARD'S LAST OFFER. The comparison includes both salary and fringe benefits. Fringe benefits refer to the board's contribution toward health, life, and disability insurance.

TRF Teacher $2220 Less Than .... Alexandria
TRF Teacher $2477 Less than .... Bemidji
TRF Teacher $ 753 Less Than .... Detroit Lakes
TRF Teacher $ 722 Less Than .... Fergus Falls
TRF Teacher $5142 Less Than .... Grand Rapids
TRF Teacher $2230 Less Than .... Moorhead

— Although two schools used in the comparison have a slightly smaller fringe benefit package, all have a considerably greater "total package of compensation."

— Remember! According to Chairman McDowell, it is the "total package of compensation" that must be compared.

*Without question, the school board is offering T.R.F. teachers a total package (salary and fringe benefits) which is below that of comparably sized districts.

* The board has requested arbitration despite the additional tax dollars that an arbitrator and their St. Paul attorney will cost.

Beef Referendum Registration Will Start On Monday

Beef and dairy producers will soon decide whether they want to establish an industry-wide beef research and information program. Producers register for the beef referendum from January 28 to February 6 and vote February 19-22.

Every individual who owned cattle in 1979 — including the cow-calf operator, stocker-grower, feeder, dairyman and 4-H or FFA youth — is eligible to register and vote at a local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service (ASCS) office. Referendum is authorized by the 1976 beef research and information act.

If a simple majority of voters are in favor of a program, a beef board of up to 68 producers would be appointed by the U.S. secretary of agriculture. Board would collect assessments and administer the program. Minnesota would be entitled to two members and two alternates. The board would elect 11 of its members to serve on an executive committee and eight of them would represent geographical regions based on cattle population.

Board would develop programs of research, consumer and producer information, education, advertising and promotion for cattle, beef and beef products. Funds could not be used to influence legislation. The board could allocate funds to a qualifying state beef council totaling either 10 per cent of the state's assessments or an amount equal to the council's beef promotion collections for the past 12 months.

Each producer would help finance the program by deducting two-tenths of one per cent (20 cents for each $100) of the value he or she added to the animal. For instance, the cow-calf producer would deduct 80 cents from the bill for each $400 calf he sells to the stocker-grower. If the stocker-grower sold the animal to a cattle feeder for $600, he would deduct $1.20 from the bill. If the feeder sells it for slaughter at $800, the slaughterer would deduct $1.60 from the final payment and forward that amount to the beef board. Each owner thus contributes a part of the value added to the animal; in this case the cow-calf producer contributes 80 cents, and the other two owners each add 40 cents.

Breeding and dairy cattle would be exempt from assessment until slaughter. A producer who prefers not to fund the program could receive a refund by requesting it within 60 days after the month in which his assessment was due.

Beef board could collect about $40 million annually if each producer contributed two-tenths of one per cent. Assessment rate could not exceed this level for the first two years of the program, and would maintain records and make reports to the board as they are needed. All such information would be kept confidential.

Up to five non-voting consumer advisors could be selected to serve on the beef board by its members. Although the secretary of agriculture appoints the voting members, nominations could only be made by eligible producer organizations.

A similar referendum was held in 1977 with 56 per cent of those voting favoring a program. Law authorizing the vote required two-thirds majority approval, however. Congress amended the law in 1978 so that a simple majority will be sufficient to approve the program.

If the program is established, but 10 per cent of the number who voted for it request termination, another referendum would be held. A majority of producers, accounting for more than half of the cattle produced by all voters, is required for termination.

"Cattle producers who want to have a voice in this decision must be sure to register the last week in January or the first week in February," says Charles Christians, University of Minnesota animal husbandman. "At least 50 per cent of those who registered must return to their ASCS offices to vote by secret ballot February 19-22. Voting by mail can also be arranged if ballots are requested in advance."

Christians was appointed to the Minnesota state beeferendum committee to inform beef and dairy producers about the referendum. State officers are Bud Wishard, Trail, chairman and Reid Mason, secretary. Committee's address is 2950 Metro Drive, Suite 111, Minneapolis, Minn.

Plan Institute At Warren On Constitution

Freemen institute from Provo, Utah, will be at Warren in a few weeks to give Constitutional seminars.

"These Constitutional seminars are specifically designed to restore confidence in the founding fathers' unique formula for constitutional government, and free enterprise economics which made America the greatest nation on earth," says Dr. Cleon Skousen, president of the Freemen Institute.

Anyone interested in government, and who reacts to the attacks made on our American system, or on the erosion of freedom here and all over the world, would be very interested in taking this course.

Law schools have the task of teaching their students the latest doctrines of the supreme court, so they can pass the bar examination. Freemen institute teaches the original doctrines of the Constitution as the founding fathers set them forth. "In many cases there are very distinct differences," adds Dr. Skousen.

Juniors and seniors in high school who are aspiring to go to a university are especially invited to take this class. It would give them, if they so desire, two hours of transferable college credit by paying an extra registration fee and fulfilling the assignments required for credit.

This seminar is taught by Dr. Skousen, and other members of the Freemen institute faculty. These teachers can entertain as well as teach. Seminars are interesting as well as being informative, states Mrs. Carmelle Pinsonneault of the organizational committee.

Organizational meeting will take place tonight (January 21) at the State Bank of Warren community room at 7:30 p.m. At that time Sheriff Paul Knochenmus from Roseau will speak on how these seminars can get moving. Success they experienced in the Roseau area, and the knowledge acquired from these seminars, will be reviewed.

Two members from each organization interested should attend this meeting, so that they can bring necessary information back to their groups.

Lions District Convention At Crookston

Arne G. Peterson

Ellsworth Jorgenson of Thief River Falls, governor of Lions District 5M-11, will preside at the business session of the mid-winter convention to be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Best Western Inn at Crookston.

Guest speaker at the Saturday evening dinner to precede the governor's ball will be Arne G. Peterson of Longview, Wash., a director of the International association of Lions clubs. He was elected an international director at the 61st international convention held in Tokyo, Japan, in 1978.

Peterson, who managed radio stations in Minnesota, Oregon and Washington and now owns a station in Washington, has served as a 100 per cent district governor, 100 per cent zone chairman and a multiple district council chairman. He has received a number of awards at several levels in Lions club work.

Ralph Rundell of the Grygla Lions club is a candidate for election as district governor at the convention, with the newly-elected governor to take office in July 1, 1980. Training sessions for Lions club members will be held Saturday with an interdeniminational religious service Sunday morning to be followed by the business meeting and a lunch.

Among those from Thief River Falls planning to attend the convention in addition to Jorgenson will be Sverre Solheim, cabinet secretary, and Tom Jorgenson, Byron Bengston and Steve Hagen of the newly-established evening Lions club here.

Durenberger Starts Plan On Flood Control

Senator Dave Durenberger told audiences in several northwest Minnesota communities that flood control in the Red river basin must be given highest priority by state and federal government.

"Flooding in this area is an almost-annual tragedy. Yet, proper management in the basin has been ignored while countless thousands of lives have suffered," Durenberger said.

The Senator said he and Congressman Arlan Strangeland have proposed specific federal action to control flooding in the area. Included in the list were endorsements of local flood control projects in Halstad, Argyle, Moorhead and East Grand Forks.

Durenberger and Stangeland also sent their proposals to Governors Al Quie and Art Link. Quie and Link were asked to assign priorities to the actions recommended.

Durenberger said local and state interests are taking action and cited the establishment of the lower Red river water management board and the $1 million in matching state funds allocated to the board for the next two years. "The federal government has to catch up with the work of local and state agencies to control flooding in this area. This area must be given the highest priority by all parties," Durenberger said.

The senator has been working on flood problems in the Red river basin since he tourned the area after last spring's floods. In November of last year he brought together state officials from Minnesota and North Dakota to discuss the problems and possible remedies with local representatives of federal agencies. Durenberger requested the federal officials to report to him on their proposals for action regarding water management issues in the Red river basin.

As a result of the November meeting, the reports Durenberger received and a meeting of representatives of Stangeland, Quie and 14 top-level federal officials, the specific action was recommended by Durenberger and Stangeland

The proposals included:

+ Requesting the U.S. department of agriculture to raise the national state priority level in the Red river basin for small watershed projects and land treatment practices, particularly in the upper reaches of the basin;

+ Urging the U.S. army corps of engineers to use their existing authority under the "emergency program," the general investigations or small projects programs to provide technical-financial assistance for ring diking of farmsteads;

+ Urging the U.S. army corps of engineers to move the small projects for urban ring dikes at Halstad and Argyle to top priority status and to expedite the study in Fargo-Moorhead and the flood control levy project in East

+ Working with the corps of engineers when the executive summary of the Red river basin reconnaissance study is completed in Feburary of 1980, to implement the suggestions requiring federal action in the study;

+ Urging the U.S. army corps of engineers to proceed with the structural projects that have the support of the state of Minnesota such as the Twin Valley dam;

+ Urging the U.S. corps of engineers to expedite their modeling of the Red river basin to provide technical data for federal-state-local agencies;

+ Urging the U.S. corps of engineers to review corps emergency procedures so that the corps service to the communities will be timely and effective at the time of the next flood; and

+ Requesting the water resources council to coordinate the federal initiatives through the Upper Mississippi river basin commission.

Congressman Stangeland and Senator Durenberger are requesting that the governors propose the institutional changes they feel are necessary to provide coordinate planning, implementation and funding for effective water resource management in the Red River of the North. If federal action is necessary to achieve the changes, the congressional delegation will facilitate these actions.

Expect Income To Run Behind Inflation Rate

Slightly more than half of Minnesota's households expect their incomes to run behind inflation in 1980, according to a fourth-quarter 1979 survey, taken in November by a Twin Cities survey firm.

Most of the other households (34 per cent) anticipate keeping even with inflation during the coming year, while only five per cent look forward to 1980 incomes that rise faster than the inflation rate. Survey respondents were 1,002 adults, randomly selected across the state, according to the survey firm.

One of the most striking findings of the survey is that proportionately fewer persons in the 65-and-older age bracket anticipate falling behind inflation. Nearly two-thirds of the people in that group have incomes of less than $8,000 a year.

College graduates are the most optomistic about being able to outpace inflation. Fourteen per cent of them, versus four per cent of their counterparts, said they expect their household buying power to be ahead of inflation in 1980.

In exploring the effects inflation is having on Minnesotans, surveyors also asked respondents about major household purchases during 1979.

Nearly a third of the respondents said that, because of inflation, their households had held off at least one major purchase last year. Motor vehicles were most frequently mentioned as items deferred — by 13 per cent of the households interviewed.

Seventeen per cent of the respondents indicated that at least one major item had been bought ahead of schedule because of inflation. However, most of the respondents (59 per cent) said that inflation had caused their households neither to buy ahead of schedule nor to hold off. Seven per cent both held off some purchases and made other purchases sooner than scheduled.

Large majority (72 per cent) of those who deferred major purchases last year expect inflation to run ahead of their incomes in 1980.

A study of New York dairy farms show farm energy costs soaring. The average cost per farm in 1977 was $2,775 for gasoline and oil, $1,515 for electricity. Last year, costs rose to $3,293 for gas and oil, $1,877 for electricity.

Prowlers Prove Themselves

With convincing back-to-back wins over Roseau and Warroad — a feat accomplished for the first time since the 1972-73 season — the Lincoln high school hockey team should have convinced most observers that the Prowlers are the team to beat for Section 8 honors this winter.

If there is any doubt left that Thief River Falls isn't the top Section 8 hockey team, it can be dispelled on the next two Tuesdays when the Prowlers travel to East Grand Forks and Crookston. The Green Wave edged the Prowlers 4-3 in overtime earlier this month, but then dropped a surprising 3-1 game to Fergus Falls. Crookston was gaining supporters as the area's top team until the Pirates blew a 4-3 game to Lake of the Woods, a score that might have been absolved the very next night when Crookston handled Warroad 9-5.

Before traveling to East Grand Forks, Thief River Falls plays host to Bemidji Friday in the sports arena. The Prowlers beat the Lumberjacks 8-2 back on Dec. 18, but Bemidji has been playing strong hockey against tough competition. . .until losing to Moorhead 4-1 last week.

And a game against Moorhead will be sandwiched between East Grand Forks and Crookston, with the Spuds here Sat., Feb. 2.

Rest of the 1979-80 schedule will bring Roseau, Hallock and Fergus Falls into the sports arena while the Prowlers travel to Detroit Lakes and Warroad.

A 17-3 finish for the Prowlers, who debuted this week in the state Associated Press power poll in ninth place, isn't out of the question, but hardly assured since that would require wins on the road at East Grand Forks, Crookston and Warroad.

"We have the ability maybe to do that (finish 17-3)," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "But things would have to go well for us the rest of the year. If we're going to make a move to finish one or two in the section — and that's our goal — you've got to put several games together where you play well and win. And now's the time of the year to do it. Right now we've done that in two games. If we can do it again Friday, that would be three and then next Tuesday at East Grand Forks could be four."

Incidentally, in that 1972-73 season when Thief River Falls beat Roseau 6-4 and defeated Warroad 7-4 in back-to-back fashion, the Prowlers added a 6-3 win at Roseau later that winter but lost a rematch at Warroad 3-2.

Miscellaneous

+An 83-71 loser to Bemidji here earlier this season, the Lincoln high school basketball team will be at Bemidji for a Feb. 1 rematch with the Lumberjacks who suffered recent back-to-back drubbings at the hands of Duluth East 91-46 and Moorhead 77-42. Bemidji coach Mel Johnson said, "A Duluth East team we cannot beat, but we could beat Moorhead if we play good basketball. What hurts us more than anything is that we miss the easy shots when we get in close to the basket. Whitey Anderson of the Bemidji Pioneer says Duluth East should be the No. 1 rated team in the state and the Greyhounds' 6-3 Brian Hansen, who scored 35 points against the Lumberjacks, should be the top candidate for the Mr. Basketball honors in Minnesota this winter. Between the two lopsided losses to Duluth East and Moorhead, Bemidji sandwiched a strong performance in a 56-55 double overtime loss to a strong Hibbing team that led the Lumberjacks 47-36 with four minutes left in regulation time. The Bluejackets did not score another point in the fourth quarter, but won it when Bemidji sophomore Daryl Strunk made just one of two free throws with six seconds left in the second three-minute overtime.

+Wally Hilgenberg of the Minnesota Vikings will be in Thief River Falls Mon., Feb. 4, to speak at the annual Elks father-son banquet. The 6:30 p.m. event is open to Elks members only.

+Looking back on last week's 62-41 defeat at the hands of Moorhead when the Detroit Lakes girls high school basketball team committed 50 turnovers in the face of a full-court press by the Spuds, Ralph Anderson of the Becker County Record said, "Perhaps the Lakers under-estimated Moorhead, but just the same the victory by the Spuds leaves Moorhead decidedly in the driver's seat as far as the Region Eight North Half ratings are concerned. Before the season started Detroit Lakes was the outright favorite to win the No. 1 rating and the Lakers now must win their last four games against regional foes — Bemidji, Park Rapids, Fergus Falls and Thief River Falls — if they are to be rated as high as No. 2." However, Detroit Lakes may have gotten a reprieve, noted Anderson, when Fergus Falls sprung an upset two nights later by beating Moorhead 44-41, opening up the opportunity for the Lakers to still be picked as the No. 1 seed at a coaches seeding meeting Feb. 26, a week before the North Half Region 8AA girls basketball tournament gets underway at Detroit Lakes. Noted Anderson: "Detroit Lakes has won the sub regional championship each of the last two years and gone on to compete in the Region Eight tournament. When the Detroit Lakes senior high gymnasium was picked as the site of the Region Eight North Half tournament by the regional committee, there were many who figured Detroit Lakes was a shoo-in for the divisional championship and possibly the regional title and a berth in the state tournament. Those goals, of course are still attainable by coach Sundby and his Lakers, but they had better get down to business and not relay on past glory."

WARROAD GOALIE Craig Miller blocked this Thief River Falls shot in the second period of Tuesday's Section 8 high school hockey game played in the sports arena. The Prowlers, with Wade Hoppe and Jim Thompson scoring two goals apiece, beat the Warriors 6-1 to raise their record to 8-3. Thief River Falls hosts Bemidji Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Prowlers Skate By Warriors 6-1

Bill Jury came within an eyelash of recording his second straight shutout in goal and Thief River Falls' HUT line of Wade Hoppe, Jeff Ulrich and Jim Thompson scored five times and finished with 11 points Tuesday in a decisive 6-1 Section 8 high school hockey win over Warroad in the sports arena.

Jury, who shut out Roseau Saturday with a relatively easy 20-save performance in the Prowlers' 4-0 win over the Rams, faced a bigger challenge against the Warriors who tested the senior netminder on numerous occasions but could only come up with one goal — and a tainted one at that.

"We have to be really pleased with the fact that we gave up only one goal," noted Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "And that was a flaky one. Bill had a good game. It's unfortunate that one happened to go in. It was a scramble; a kind of garbage goal."

The goal in question tied the game 1-1 at 2:38 of the first period, just 26 seconds after Hoppe opened the scoring with a quick shot in front at 1:12. Robert Johnson, who wasn't even listed on the program, got the credit for the equalizer that appeared to go in off a skate during a scramble in front of Jury.

But after struggling in the first period, Thief River Falls took command in the middle stanza when Tom Bjorkman's 25-foot floater eluded Warroad goalie Craig Miller at 2:12 and the HUT line accumulated points in the proper order for their moniker when Hoppe passed to Ulrich at center ice; Ulrich brought the puck into the attacking zone, carried it behind the Warroad net; and fed Thompson, who was standing at the goal mouth for a quick tip at 10:07.

The Prowlers looked even more impressive in the third period when each member of the high-scoring top line put the puck in the net. Hoppe received a feed in front and shot quickly to open up a 4-1 lead just 46 seconds into the period. Thompson, while falling to the ice, swatted the puck past Miller at 2:59. And Ulrich scored on a hard slap shot as he crossed the blue line at 7:53.

For the evening, Hoppe had two goals and two assists; Thompson had two goals and one assist; and Ulrich scored once while collecting three assists.

"Hoppe's line had a big night for us," acknowledged Grand who also said, "I don't feel badly about saying we had far superior scoring opportunities than they did."

Warroad coach Jerry Pelkey admitted his team vas defensive problems.

"We're hurting on defense," he mentioned. "Before we were scoring a lot of goals and winning 9-7. Now we're not scoring the goals; we're in a dry spell."

But for Warroad to improve upon its 5-6 record, said Pelky, the Warriors need to regroup both offensively and defensively. "You've got to have a little of both," he noted, "but we do have to get our defense back," he emphasized.

Grand had to move little-used sophomore defenseman Mark Harder to a wing on the third line with Tony Loeffler and Tom Ose in place of Murray Jorde, who missed the game with an ankle injury. But Jorde is expected to be back in the line-up Friday when the Prowlers, now 8-3, host Bemidji.

Marshall County Central used a decided 35-17 rebound advantage to pick up a 72-52 North Border Conference high school basketball victory over Grygla Tuesday at Newfolden.

"We find a different way to win all the time," noted Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "This time it was on the boards."

The Nordics doubled the Eagles 20-10 in the first quarter and led 37-24 at halftime. It was 52-34 after three quarters.

Dan Maki, with 17 points, led a group of 12 Marshall County Central scorers, but Grygla's Randy Larson took game-high scoring honors with 24 points.

Grygla held the upper hand in the shooting department as the Eagles hit 24 of 45 shots for 53 per cent. But they made four of just nine free throw attempts and were outrebounded badly. Marshall County Central, while shooting at a 27-for-58, 47 per cent clip from the field, sank 18 of 29 free throws.

Dan Engen, who scored 11 points, and Jeff Dahl both grabbed 11 rebounds for the winners. "We did awfully well on the offensive boards," pointed out Ueland who had the Nordics owning an 18-12 edge on their own backboards.

Marshall County Central, 8-3, will host Roseau Friday and play at Kennedy Saturday. Grygla will be at Warroad Friday.

Prowlers Meet NWAC Rivals

Northwest Conference

Fergus Falls	1	1	2	4	5	6
Bemidji	2	2	2	2	3	9
Thief River Falls	0	3	0	3	6	5

Winless in three Northwest Athletic Conference starts, the Lincoln high school basketball team will begin a two-week stretch of NWAC games Saturday when the Prowlers play host to Fergus Falls at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln gym.

The Prowlers' schedule will follow the Otters with a Thurs., Jan. 31, make-up game here against East Grand Forks; a Fri., Feb. 1, trip to Bemidji; and a Fri., Feb. 8, rematch at East Grand Forks.

Only team without a win in the NWAC, Thief River Falls has absorbed two conference losses at the hands of Crookston 62-55 and 55-49 last week, along with an 83-71 shoot-out with Bemidji.

Fergus Falls is the only NWAC team Thief River Falls will not meet on a home-and-home basis this winter, doubling the game's worth in a title-deciding NWAC point system that puts a one-point value on a game when teams meet twice during the year and two points on a single meeting.

Bolstered by the addition of Iowa transfer student Lonnie Meade, Fergus Falls got off to a strong start this winter and finally looked like a conference contender after several unproductive seasons. But the Otters have dropped to 5-6 for the year and 1-1 in the NWAC following a 52-51 home court defeat at the hands of East Grand Forks last Friday.

And the Otters now find themselves without Meade, a 6-4 senior who averaged 18.6 points and 15 rebounds per game before suffering a sprained ankle, an injury that forced him to miss the East Grand Forks game and will probably sideline him for another month yet.

In other games involving NWAC teams this weekend, East Grand Forks will be at Mahnomen Friday, Crookston at Detroit Lakes Saturday and Bemidji at Grand Rapids Saturday.

East Grand Forks took over the NWAC lead last night (Tuesday) with a 65-56 win over Bemidji, a victory that was worth two points to the host Green Wave. Crookston beat Fertile-Beltrami 69-52 in nonconference play Tuesday.

Diane Fisher Hits 1,000 Point Mark At Plummer

Diane Fisher, needing only four points to become a 1,000-point scorer in her four-year career with the Plummer girls high school basketball team, finished with 27 Tuesday to lead the Cardinals to a 38-36 win over Oslo.

Fisher, a 5-8 senior forward, was held to just two points in the first quarter when Oslo opened with an 8-4 lead. But with just 20 seconds gone in the second quarter Fisher connected on a short jump shot to become just the third Region 8A girl in history to join the coveted 1,000-point club.

The game, played as the second half of a doubleheader that started with a Plummer vs. Oslo boys game, was interrupted at that point as Fisher was presented with a bouquet of roses and the game ball while receiving a standing ovation from the largest crowd ever to watch a girls basketball game in the Plummer gym.

Fisher, who started the season with 844 points, now has 1,025 points in her career that saw her break into the Cardinals' starting line-up as a freshman — her first year of basketball experience. A good shooter, strong rebounder and a capable ball handler who is often times called upon to bring the ball downcourt against the press, Fisher plans to continue her basketball career in college.

"I think she would make an excellent college guard if she workd on her ball handling," said Plummer coach Rick Koivisto.

Fisher finished the first half with 10 points as the Cardinals went ahead 20-18. They led 27-23 after three quarters and never surrendered the lead as they improved their record to 5-3.

Susan Zola nearly matched Fisher's scoring for Oslo with a 21-point night as those two ball players scored 48 of the game's 74 points.

Shelly Oistad of Fertile-Beltrami, who graduated in 1979 with 1,287 points, and Georgine Troska of Goodridge, who graduated in 1977 with 1,148 points, are the only other Region 8A girls in the Minnesota 1,000-point club that numbered 30 girls going into the 1979-80 season.

Plummer will host East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Thursday.

DIANE FISHER, a senior on the Plummer girls high school basketball team passed the 1,000-point milestone Tuesday in her four-year career with the Cardinals by scoring 27 points in a 38-36 win over Oslo, giving her 1,025 points.

Leading 22-19 at halftime, Middle River managed to score just two points in the third quarter Tuesday and wound up losing a 43-34 home court decision to Roseau.

"We played poorly in the third quarter," admitted Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. "The first half wasn't bad."

Dawn Nelson scored a game-high 19 points for the Skippers who dropped to 5-5 with the loss. They'll host Warroad Thursday and entertain Strandquist Saturday.

Goodridge 34
Sacred Heart 33

Sue Johnson came up with a pair of steals and two assists in the final minute of play Monday to spark Goodridge to a 34-33 come-from-behind win at East Grand Forks Sacred Heart.

Goodridge, down 21-12 at halftime, trailed 33-30 when Johnson came up with her first steal off the Huskies' full-court press defense. She passed to Vicki Troska who scored to bring the visitors to within 33-32.

Then the time running out, the press forced another Sacred Heart turnover and it was Johnson who again came up with a ball in a scramble on the floor. She passed to Peggy Poppenhagen who scored from about 10 feet out with four seconds on the clock for the win.

It was the press, said Goodridge coach Susan Saurdiff, that brought the Huskies back from a nine-point halftime deficit to within 26-25 in the third quarter. "We started to press a little more," she said about her team's second half comeback. "In the third quarter it was our shooting and defense that helped us."

Poppenhagen and Johnson finished with 12 and 10 points, respectively, for the Huskies, but Saurdiff was more impressed with the rebounding work on the defensive boards by Mary Jo Kiesow and Poppenhagen.

Goodridge was 17-for-68 for 25 per cent from the field. Sacred Heart was 15-for-61 for 27 per cent. The Huskies missed all five of their free throw attempts while the Eagles went 3-for-8 at the line.

A tough assignment awaits the 7-2 Huskies Thursday when they host Region 8A power Warren. Goodridge will entertain Oklee Monday.

Grygla finished 17-for-49 from the field for 35 per cent while Warroad was 16-for-51 for 31 per cent. The visiting Eagles had a big edge at the free throw line where they were 12-for-20 and the Warriors were just 2-for-3.

Badger 29

Marshall County Central guards Jill Johnson and Sue Olson combined for 34 points Monday to lead the Nordics to a 55-29 win at Badger.

Johnson and Olson finished with 17 points apiece as the Nordics improved their record to 10-1.

"They shut down our inside game, but our guards came through for us," noted winning coach Tom Mjelde. "They pentrated, they shot from the outside and they got downcourt on the fast break."

Marshall County Central was in command from the start, building quarter leads of 13-6, 23-13 and 41-21.

The winners made 24 of 62 field goal attempts for 39 per cent and sank seven of 17 free throws. Badger connected on just 13 of 52 shots for 25 per cent and made three of five free throws.

Next action for the Nordics will be Monday at Roseau.

THIEF RIVER FALLS defenseman Brian Ranum (3) battled Warroad's John Bjorkman for the puck behind the Prowlers' net Tuesday in the first period of the Section 8 high school hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. The Prowlers defeated the Warriors 6-1.

Fifth Annual TRF Swimming Event Saturday . . .

Top Field Attracted To Arctic Cat Invitational

John Kopari

Meet manager John Kopari is selling Saturday's fifth annual Thief River Falls Arctic Cat invitational high school swimming meet by billing it as one of the top swimming attractions in the state of Minnesota.

The eight-team, late-afternoon event will feature strong teams from Fergus Falls and Bemidji and excellent individuals swimming for International Falls, Minot, Fosston and Blake, with Thief River Falls and Detroit Lakes rounding out the field.

"I think it's going to be an excellent meet — one of the best in the state," said Kopari, the Thief River Falls coach. "I'd really encourage fans to attend this one."

Competition will be held at the Franklin middle school pool beginning at 12 noon with the diving preliminaries. Actual swimming won't start until 3 p.m., though, when the diving finals and timed finals of the ten swimming events will provide 2½ hours of "hot and heavy action," according to Kopari.

Fergus Falls, says Kopari, is the odds-on favorite to repeat as the Arctic Cat champion here. "They're real deep," pointed out Kopari. "They have a lot of talent."

The Otters used that same formula — depth — to easily win last year's title with 284 points. With just two individual winners, Fergus Falls finished 59 points ahead of runner-up Thief River Falls with 225 points, followed by Fosston 218, Bemidji 211, Fergus Falls 123, Moorhead 46 and Detroit Lakes 42.

This year the Otters can be expected to win three events — the 200-yard medley relay, the 100-yard breaststroke with Bob Ronning and the diving competition with Mike Schulenberg.

Meanwhile, Blake, according to pre-race seeding times, could have a double winner in Chip Schilling who excells in the 100 and 200-yard freestyle races, and can be expected to win with Tim Carl in the 100-yard butterfly.

Fosston's Scott Daniels will be the favorite in both the 200-yard individual medley and in the 100-yard backstroke, while International Falls has a potential winner with Mike Barker in the 50-yard freestyle; Minot has top-seeded Mark Bagner in the 500-yard freestyle; and Bemidji has the fastest-qualifying 400-yard freestyle relay team.

"It looks like it's going to be fairly wide open in most events," mentioned Kopari. "I would almost predict a different school winning each event."

Thief River Falls' best bets for top individual placing is expected to come from Steve Poissant and Keith Grochow in the breaststroke and Joe Pinkerton in the 50.

Fergus Falls will be shooting for its third Arctic Cat trophy. The event started with a Minot win in 1976, followed by a Fergus Falls triumph in 1977, an Alexandria victory in 1979 and the Otters again last winter.

Northmen, Northwomen Face Spartans . . .

Northland, Fergus Falls Doubleheader Tonight

First face-to-face meeting with a Northwest Division opponent awaits the Northland community college men's and women's basketball teams tonight (Wednesday) in a MJCAA doubleheader at Fergus Falls. The Northwomen will be on the court at 6 p.m. The Northmen are scheduled to play at 8.

Coach Deb Jacobson's Northwomen, 2-9 overall, are 1-3 after four Northwest Division-counting games against Northeast Division foes the past two weeks.

The Northwomen have improved their play significantly since beginning the season with an eight-game losing streak, but face a struggle in the Northwest Division where Fergus Falls and Brainerd are considered the co-favorites and Crookston sports a vastly improved team over a year. In the only game involving Northwest Division foes to date, Brainerd beat Fergus Falls in an early season showdown between the favorites.

"We're very much improved," acknowledged Jacobson. "We're very optimistic. But it's going to be tough to win at Fergus Falls."

And it won't be any easier for the Northmen who bounced back from a two-game loss on the Iron Range the week before to beat Itasca and Hibbing at home over the weekend for a 2-2 Northwest Division-counting record against Northeast Division opposition.

Northland and Fergus Falls shared the Northwest Division pennant a year ago when the two teams swapped one-sided home court victories. The Northmen handled the Spartans 97-75 in Thief River Falls but lost the rematch at Fergus Falls 103-79.

"We'll try to be a little better prepared to play down there this time," said coach Chet Engelman of the Northmen. "But they're tough to beat at their place because they have super crowds who make an awful lot of noise. We're going to have our hands full. They have a good ball club."

Facing pressure to be one of the two Northwest Division MJCAA state tournament entries after dropping their first two MJCAA starts, the Northmen had part of that burden erased when Brainerd surprised Fergus Falls 71-70 last week, giving all four Northwest Division teams at least one loss already.

Northwest Division — Men	W	L
Crookston	3	1
Brainerd	2	2

"It's still an important game," said Engelman about tonight's meeting, "but it's not quite as crucial as it was before Brainerd beat Fergus."

In 6-4 center-forward Gary Douglas, Northland will be facing one of the top performers in the Northwest Division tonight. He carries a 19-point scoring average.

But, the Northmen have their own star in freshman Terry Harris who is averaging 26.4 points, 13.8 rebounds and 3.4 blocked shots per game. Guard Vince Parker is averaging 21 points.

Harris is the leading scorer in the MJCAA with a 30.3 average against Minnesota teams and ranks third in rebounding with an average of 15 per game.

Northland teams return to Thief River Falls to host Rainy River squads Friday. Again the Northwomen will play at 6 p.m. and the Northmen follow at 8.

That'll be an interesting test for the Northmen since the Voyageurs' boast the number 1-3-4 scorers in the Northeast Division, a trio that averages 69 points per game.

"If the fans want to see some shooters, come on out Friday," invited Engelman.

WITH WARROAD GOALIE Craig Miller beaten, Thief River Falls wing Jim Thompson missed a second period scoring opportunity when he shot the puck wide of the net during Tuesday's high school hockey game played here. Thompson did score twice, though, in the Prowlers' 6-1 win over the Warriors.

Animals Made Headlines In 1979, Says Wildlife Group

When President Carter beat off an attack by a "killer rabbit" with a canoe paddle last April, he put wildlife on page one of the nation's newspapers.

But the President's tilt with an aggressive, aquatic cottontail may not have been the most bizarre incident involving humans and wildlife last year, according to the National Wildlife Federation. 1979 was a wild year for wildlife, the citizens conservation group found in its annual survey of such happenings — a year in which the human and animal kingdoms traded insults, and also exchanged a few favors.

Human vandals assaulted wildlife, for instance, by draining or cutting off the water supply at two fish hatcheries-killing 450,000 trout and salmon near Rochester, N.Y. and 25,000 brown trout at Leetown, W. Va. A school of fish in Lake Huron struck back by clogging a water intake for an Ontario Hydro nuclear reactor, thus shutting down the Canadian power plant for 40 hours.

A Washington, D.C., physician beat a Canada goose to death with a golf club, allegedly after the bird's honking interfered with his putting. But other doctors made up for this lapse by rendering services to wildlife beyond the call of duty.

Soviet surgeons performed a successful cataract operation by inserting an artificial lens in the eye of a seal. When the operation was over the seal performed several tricks for the doctors. Another Russian surgeon, aboard a fishing trawler, successfully treated the wounds of a dolphin that had been attacked by a blue shark, then released the happy marine mammal.

For a black-crested night heron whose lower beak had snapped in two, a San Francisco dentist constructed a new beak out of the same pink acrylic that he uses for human dentures. He attached it with tiny wires in a six-hour operation and the heron is again spearing fish.

It was a year in which man discovered new ways to put wild critters to work, the NWF survey found. The West German city of Goppingen put some electricity-emitting goldfish into its municipal water supply to monitor its purity. If the water becomes polluted, the six Gnathonemus fish generate less current than usual, which sets off an alarm at the waterworks' headquarters.

In New York City the Museum of Natural History employed thousands of tiny dermestid beetles to dislodge matter from the bodies of tiny mammals without disturbing their delicate skeletal structures. And in Kailua, Hawaii, the U.S. Coast Guard revealed that it is now training eagle-eyed pigeons to search for people lost at sea.

It was again a newsy year for snakes. In Los Angeles, Cal., a man opened his door to a stranger who flashed a knife and a snake and threatened to turn the reptile loose. The thief escaped in the victim's car with $400 in cash and jewelry.

Italian customs agents seized a boa named Pedro that an American fighter wore into a boxing ring to psych his opponent. Australian customs officers frisked a nervy traveler from Bali and impounded five pythons that he tried to smuggle into their country in his underpants and in pouches strapped to his legs.

It was also a busy year for bees. An estimated 9 million of them swarmed in on Flintstone, Md., after the tractor-trailer in which they were riding overturned. Another swarm of bees attacked hundreds of school girls at a track meet in Vereeniging, South Africa. The bees were apparently attracted by the girls' hairspray.

It was a year in which man devised some new institutions for animals the NWF survey revealed. Bird lovers in the East German village of Loburg opened a hospital for storks, a threatened species in that country. In Sri Lanka, an orphanage was established for young elephants separated from their parents.

In Newport, Cal., a turtle named "No. 6" won a turtle race and then showed how he felt about one of man's institutions, the racing game, by latching onto the upper lip of his trainer, who sought to give him a congratulatory kiss. It took a dose of valium to unfasten his grip.

A couple of wildlife records were set. In the annual mayor's frog hop at Baltimore, Md. an entry named Cindy jumped to a height of 3-feet, 9-inches, outdistancing one Lightfoot Louie. In San Antonio, a male whooping crane named Crip died at 33 — a record for that rare bird in captivity. And Andre, the friendly 220-pound seal who swims each year from his winter home in a Boston aquarium to his summer home at Rockport, Me., set a new record for the 160-mile course — 65 hours. Not breathtaking, to be sure, but 17 hours faster than last year's time.

Finally, it was a year in which a raccoon got caught in a drug bust. After one burglary in which narcotics were taken, a Falls Church, Va., physician trapped an intruder on a return visit to his office and found that it was — that's right — a "masked bandit" with a ringed-tail.

After being lured away from the hard stuff with peanut butter and sardines, the two-time offender was set loose in a woods several miles away for self-rehabilitation.

Deadline Is Feb. 6 For Turkey Hunt

Minnesotans who would like to apply for one of 1,200 permits in the state's third annual turkey hunt — to be held in the spring of 1980 — have until February 6 to get their applications to the Department of Natural Resources.

Charles Burrows, director of Fish and wildlife, said that application blanks and instructions are available from county auditors' offices and from most license agents.

Most of the general regulations are the same as last year: applicants must be at least 16 years old by April 19, 1980, be Minnesota residents for 60 days preceding April 19, 1980; not have held a Minnesota turkey license during either of the previous two years, and not have had their small game hunting privileges revoked within one year previous to March 21, 1980.

New this year is a change in the law that provides for up to 20 per cent of the permits to be drawn for landowners or tenants who live on 40 acres or more of agricultural or grazing land within a turkey hunting zone. Details on landowner preference are given on the application form.

Those successful in the special landowner tenant drawing shall permit others to turkey hunt on their land. Landowners or tenants unsuccessful in the special drawing will automatically be placed in the general drawing.

A map showing private lands open to public hunting will be available to all 1980 turkey hunters.

Expansion of the turkey range has allowed an increase in hunting area and number of permits, said Burrows. Hunters this year may apply for a choice of five zones and four five-day hunting periods from April 19 through May 11.

Liars Contest

Dave Sweeney of Nashwauk is the winner of the 1979 Minnesota Outdoors liars contest. Here is his story:

"I went fishing on a lake where there were three islands. I fished for four hours before I got a strike. It was a good one. I played with it for five hours, then it got dark. I tied my line to a tree on one of the islands and went home. The next morning I went back to land the fish. I looked all over to find the island but it was gone. There were only two islands in the lake."

Sweeney will receive a rod and reel for his winning entry, along with a sportsmen's knife and a selection of fishing lures.

Monofilament

According to Howard J. Benner, Jr. there is a reason for ice fishing with monofilament line — it does not stiffen or "freeze up" in very cold water as does most braided lines.

It doesn't take on ice like many other lines, nor will it stick to the sides of the ice fishing hole.

While a four-pound test monofilament might be preferred for summer bluegill still fishing, the ice angler after bluegills might use 10, 12 or 14 pound test flourescent monofilament because the heavier test line is easier to handle with mittened or chilled fingers.

Boat Show

There are two indoor events each year that appeal to the outdoor person. Those events are the annual boat show and the annual sportsmens show.

Boat show this year will be held at the Minneapolis auditorium January 23 through January 27.

The White Bear Lake man — Gerry Spiess — who built a boat and soloed it across the Atlantic Ocean to England will be the featured guest.

Over 100 national manufacturers and dealers of marine equipment and accessories will exhibit the 1980 line of marine products at the show, including runabouts, luxury yachts, inflatables, canoes, houseboats, sailboats, motors, trailers, marine accessories and supplies, and unique gift items and marine antiques from all parts of the world.

The 1980 boat show will feature a 53-foot Bluewater motor yacht valued at $125,000. Other boats are priced from $100.

Doors open to the public at 5 p.m. January 23 and 24; 1 p.m. January 25; 11 a.m. January 26; and 12 noon on January 27. Exhibition hours close at 10:30 p.m. every evening except Sunday. Closing hour for the final day of the boat show is 7 p.m.

Sportsmen's Show

Dates for the 48th annual sportsmen's show are March 28 through April 6. It is hard to believe that in two years this fine event will be 50 years old. We have seen almost every one of them. We missed twice because of illness. Nick Kahler originated this event and it is the oldest such show in the United States.

Tourism

Governor's conference on tourism is being held January 24 and 25 at the Registry Hotel in Bloomington. Tourism is the third largest industry in the state. If each state printed it's own money it would not take long to convince people just how much 'foreign' money is spent in Minnesota.

Look ahead this Winter

Farming is everybody's bread & butter.

Though growing season is over and the land is at rest, the cold winter months can be the most productive on your farm.

Use them for planning, for setting goals for the future, and the return on your winter months may surprise you.

Top managers plan ahead. They decide, sometimes with the aid of a lender or other advisor, how things should happen. They shape events rather than letting events shape them.

Goals will help you shape events. Make your goals realistic. Make them for the short run and the long run. Some will be large and some will be small. Make them specific and measurable, so you'll know when you've met them.

Look ahead this winter by setting goals for your year ahead. Need someone to talk to about goal setting? Try us: we're good listeners. Chances are that we can help when it comes to your financial goals and a line of credit to meet them.

New Safety Specialist Is DNR Officer

Commissioner of Natural Resources Joseph Alexander has announced the promotion of conservation officer Robert Burch to coordinate the DNR's youth firearms and snowmobile safety training programs.

Richard Tarte, director of enforcement, said that this position carries the rank of major.

Burch, 44, has been employed in the department's enforcement division for 17 years and has been stationed in the Remer area.

He is currently president of the Minnesota peace and police officers association. The association membership comprises virtually all of the law enforcement organizations and personnel in the state.

As safety training coordinator, Burch will direct the activities of six regional safety specialists who are responsible for firearm and snowmobile safety instruction in each of the deaprtment's six regions.

There are approximately 3,000 volunteer firearms safety instructors and 2,700 snowmobile training instructors. During 1978, approximately 20,000 young persons were given instruction in firearms safety while 11,000 took part in the snowmobile safety course.

Burch said the department goal is to reach 35 per cent of the 12 year olds in Minnesota with the firearms safety program. He noted that some states will no longer issue non-resident hunting licenses to young men and women who have not completed a firearms safety training course.

New Group Plans Lobby For Fishing

American fishing tackle manufacturers association (AFTMA) — the trade association representing 95 per cent of the producers of rods, reels, lures and other sportfishing and related equipment — has announced that their top priority in 1980 will be the successful formation of a national consumer lobby — the American sportfishing federation.

According to Paul A. Mulready, AFTMA's president, the trade group will act as a catalyst to start organizing the more than 5,000 independent sportfishing clubs and their estimated 2.5 million angler members into a cohesive force to fight the greatest single threat to the future of recreational fishing in the U.S. — the declining quality and condition of the fishery itself. In addition, Mulready noted that the help of the rest of the sportfishing community will also be sought in every possible way, namely the 33 million other unaffiliated licensed fishermen across the country.

Although sportfishermen have traditionally been the main source of fishery funding in the U.S. through license revenues and payment of excise taxes on certain items of equipment, they can no longer be expected to shoulder the burden of maintaining America's fisheries in the face of industrial pollution, commercial harvesting practices and a host of other large scale challenges, Mulready contends.

"From the saltwaters of our coastlines, to the Great Lakes — from the high country streams of the northwest to the farm ponds of Ohio, there is scarcely a fishery in this country that is not facing some form of environmental degradation. Coupled with the declining value of today's fishery dollars that are available, the future of our fisheries is extremely dim unless strong action is taken now," emphasized Mulready.

"Our challenge," he stressed, "is to break a destructive cycle."

"The worsening state of the fishery has resulted in less people fishing, evidenced by a decline of fishing license sales in 1977 and 1978. Fewer people fishing causes less money to be available for protection and enhancement of the fishery. This critical decay of a precious national resource can only be stopped through a unified public information and political action force, made up of millions of sportfishermen," said Mulready.

The AFTMA president concluded, "The fishery must have the outright support of every concerned angler in this country and we invite all to join in the effort. We want to be very clear, however, that our primary organizational thrust will be through existing sportfishing groups. It is not the mission of the American sportfishing federation to duplicate efforts."

Peat Hydrology Among Concerns Of Researchers

Effects of large-scale peat development on area hydrology has been a topic of much concern and research among the general public and peat investigators.

This concern is legitimate, in that peat in its natural state is approximately 90 per cent water, and many peatlands are located directly on — or in — the water table, states Rebecca Judge, director of the Minnesota peat education project at the University of Minnesota, Duluth.

However, some of the concern over the hydrological effects of peat mining come from some rather popular myths concerning the properties of peat soils, she said.

Peat scientists from throughout Minnesota will be at the courthouse meeting room in Thief River Falls Thursday at 7 p.m. to discuss and debate alternative development strategies for Minnesota's peatlands. Area residents are encouraged to bring their questions and concerns involving peat development to the meeting.

Topics to be considered include the economic and environmental impacts of various utilization strategies, as well as peat's effect on area hydrology and its efficacy as an energy source.

"Most people think if peat as a sponge, soaking up water from the environment, and in most respects this is an accurate analogy. However, several common misconceptions result from their viewpoint. First, people think that peatlands, because of their sponge-like properties, will soak up the excess water from the spring snow-melt or rains, and thus prevent flooding. What they don't consider is that peat is a saturated sponge, with over 90 per cent of its volume made up of water. A saturated sponge — one full of water — will not absorb any more water, even if you hold it under a running faucet." Similarly, peat, nature's saturated sponge, will not absorb any more water, even if it lies in the path of floodwaters.

Another popular misconception regarding peat soils is that they can release their moisture to the area around them in times of drought, thus forming a type of natural reservoir. But just as a sponge must be squeezed to get water out of it, peatlands too will not give up their moisture without the application of some external mechanical pressure. Needless to say, it's pretty hard to squeeze a peatland. It is true, however, that in times of drought the peatland itself will probably have a higher water content than the surrounding area, a fact that encourages the use of peatlands for agricultural purposes.

Effects of large-scale ditching and subsequent draining of peatlands on area hydrology has been studied extensively by European researchers as well as several investigators in Minnesota.

According to Dr. Kenneth Brooks, University of Minnesota hydrologist, the depth and spacing between ditches plays in important role in determining the effects of ditching on water quality.

Peatlands are ditched and drained to prepare them for use as an agricultural medium, to promote forest growth and to facilitate the extraction of peat for horticulture, energy or chemical production.

If ditches are within 30 feet of each other, the rate of waterflow through the peatland can be increased. This promotes good and relatively quick drainage of the peatland, but simultaneously increases the potential for seasonal flooding in the area surrounding the peatland. Brooks emphasizes, however, that this type of flooding can usually be controlled by sound engineering methods.

Spacing the ditches further apart (70-100 feet) might decrease the rate of flow of water through the peatland, as the areas between the ditches will tend to store water. While this means that the potential for flooding of any type is reduced, it also means that it will take much longer to drain the peatland.

Large-scale drainage will require that extensive tracts of peatlands be cleared and drained simultaneously, even if a small area can be utilized in any one season. Environmental and economic costs of employing this method on a large scale may be prohibitive, and for this reason, the U.S. bureau of mines, the institute of gas technology and the U.S. department of energy are all investigating the feasibility of pumping peat out of the bog in a wet slurry. Through this method, only the area which is being harvested will be affected.

previous two sides mentioned, and is a planned training program that teaches an individual how to work with people in an effort to begin his own personal development.

There are presently 115 members in the Thief River Falls Jaycees. The organization began in 1918 as a dance club in St. Louis, MO. Thief River Falls organization began in 1935 with 20 members (the charter number needed to organize a chapter, with Gorman Thompson serving as the first president. There are now approximately 20,000 Jaycee members in the state of Minnesota.

The year has been successful, according to Adamson, because the membership goal of the Jaycees chapter has been maintained, resulting in a steady growth pattern of members through the years. The organization is open to individuals from 18 to 35. Jaycees women organization is involved in a cooperative effort with the Jaycees, with the two organizations working closely together on many programs. The women operate on the same guidelines as the Jaycees, Adamson said, and membership is not limited to the wives of Jaycees.

Activities performed by the Jaycees vary from year to year, with the total number of projects for this year set at 40. Those more widely known among community members include the Jaycees Aquacade, Operation Christmas, the sand box fill, haunted house, demolition derby and horse show. There are also numerous growth programs within the organization involving personal dynamics, personal financial plans, family life meetings and time management sessions.

The key to a successful organization comes from the support of the community and businesses, Adamson said. "Without them, people and activities wouldn't function." "To understand the organization you've got to try it," he emphasized.

Monthly newsletters and calling committees are two of the functions that are aimed at getting people interested in the Jaycee organization. Although joining the organization is voluntary, Adamson believes that members will someday be rewarded for becoming a Jaycee — either through others or through himself.

Interested persons are reminded of the Jaycees meetings conducted the first and third Tuesdays at the Elks club in Thief River Falls, or questions may be addressed to Box 53, Thief River Falls.

Missionary Has Satisfying Life In Bolivia

had to carry 60-pound packs through the jungles, she said, and there have been several missionaries killed in the jungles by Indian tribes.

Children of missionary parents attend boarding schools for eight months each year from the first through the twelfth grades, and then are off for four months to spend time with their parents. Spanish and Bible study are required through all 12 grades of school.

"The board feels we should have extra time to spend at home with our parents," she said. "It's nice, but you have to cram so much more information into those eight months."

Four additional years are needed beyond high school for a student to become a missionary.

Anna already knew how to speak Spanish while attending school, from being raised in the Spanish-speaking country. She taught Spanish for a short period also.

One of the first steps in the teaching process is to instruct the tribes to read and write in their own language. This is a primary goal before any teaching of the gospel can occur. Most of the tribes are monolingual, which means they can speak only their own language. So, additional beginning learning steps involve teaching the Indians (those with linguistic ability to comprehend and organize what is taught) to analyze their own language through sounds and symbols.

Spanish is taught to members of various tribes after they can read and write in their own language, to enable them to deal with the nationals, so they will not get cheated in trading or in performing other money practices.

Learning such things as reading, writing, and speaking is not forced upon the tribes, Anna said.

"It is a voluntary effort. If they want to learn, fine. The teaching effort is concentrated more on the younger interested members of a tribe, since many older ones are already set in their ways and do not want to learn."

Anna has remained a missionary for the past six years—largely—because her parents began that way, she said.

"I was raised seeing a need for missionaries," she said. "There are few people who realize this need."

Missionaries may travel where they wish, Anna said. Field committees present lists of those areas that desire the most help. "If you feel like you can fit into that situation, you go. If you want to go somewhere else that's fine too.

"No matter where you are there is going to be both good and bad things," she said. "There are frightening things wherever you are. My sister was always more scared of things. I don't mind bugs, the dark or snakes like many other people do."

Diseases in Bolivia are not intense, Anna stated. The thing is that most tribes have lived in the jungles for so long they have had no contact with civilizations and consequently no contact with disease, so they don't become ill. However, hundreds of Indians have been wiped out from common diseases as minor as the cold, because they don't know how to handle them.

"We slowly get them immune to diseases," Anna said. "There are medical teams that come in and help."

A church in Denver, CO, of which Anna is a member, has supported her since she chose to become a missionary. Most missionaries are supported by several churches, and by individuals who wish to send money. The Denver church paid for Anna's trip to the United States where she will work for one year as a missionary in various cities throughout the United States and Canada using Iowa as her headquarters. Missionaries are given one-year furloughs for every five years, but because Anna could not find a replacement for her office job in Cochabamba, last year she was not able to come back to the United States with her family.

She arrived in the United States last June and arrived in Thief River Falls Saturday to visit with her grandfather, Albert Stringham and her aunt and uncle Kenny and Pat Beauchane.

Working as a missionary in the United States and in South America is completely different, she said, especially as far as speaking English and Spanish is concerned.

Anna has come to enjoy traveling, probably because she has done so much of it throughout her life. In Cochabamba she usually rides buses, which costs her five cents for a trip downtown, and if she wants to travel in style, she may ride a taxi for a quarter.

"Transportation costs are relatively cheaper there than in the United States," she said. Food prices pretty much equal what we pay here, she said, unless, of course, one wants to live like an American there and desires imported luxuries like pretzels, canned foods, or cereals.

"The last time I priced corn flakes it was $3 or $4 for one box," Anna said. "When you live without certain foods for awhile you don't miss them. The only one food I really miss is black olives."

Prices spent on various foods, clothing, or other items depend on how that person wants to live, Anna said. Types of food eaten by the missionaries is similar to foods eaten here, including fresh vegetables, chicken, fish, beef and pork.

There are other luxuries that are nonexistent in Bolivia, too, according to Anna. It is rare to find carpeting in homes — even the wealthier peoples' homes. Cities just recently got black and white television sets. Since Anna has no refrigerator in her tiny home, she purchases and stores foods which require no refrigeration. Her apartment consists of one room — a living room, dining room and kitchen combined, with a bed in the loft. A market is located near by for purchasing fruits and vegetables, and there is a dining room in the mission home.

One of the things that bothers Anna most, she said, is all the beggars that roam throughout the city, begging for coins.

"You wonder where their families are," she said. "There are people lying everywhere, including young children, old people, and handicapped people. What bothers me too, is that many of them are not authentic — some beggars have a pretty good income and they go around asking for money in the tourist areas. But many are legitimate too," she added.

"There are so many areas I would like to get into but I'm only one person," she said. "Even though I would like to get into social work (social workers would be in their glory there, she said) to work with victims of child abuse, I don't feel that that is the ministry God wants me in."

When the missionaries first made contact with the Indians, the natives had no shelters, and traveled from place to place depending on the game available for food, and would often steal food to keep from going hungry. They had no clothes to wear in the beginning, and once they learned how to wear clothes, they had to learn how to wash them.

"They'd wear their clothes 'til they rotted," Anna said. "Simple things such as soap, combs, mirrors and cameras were all unfamiliar to them. (Imagine seeing yourself for the first time in a mirror).

The tribe the missionaries work with where Anna is located is one of the most savage tribes ever worked with in a mission area, Anna said. They were one of the few tribes who had no idea of any Supreme Being. Consequently, a word had to be invented for God, and then the concept had to be taught to the Indians. Most missionary boards work with more civilized people, she said.

One of the most satisfying qualities Anna has attained since she has been a missionary is the "ability of a person to change the life of a stone age person by introducing him to Jesus Christ; to give them something that they can relate to personally (Bible) makes a world of difference to them. When I realize I've had a part in that learning process, it is satisfying. I wish I could have more time to spend with people as individuals, but that's not the ministry I'm in."

Anna is happy to see that people are becoming more aware of the differences in people through traveling, and are developing interest with people from other countries.

"It gripes me to think that people believe those from other countries are all underprivileged. The scholastic standards are higher there than here. There are radios that carry local stations and very good newspapers in the cities that keep people informed of current news around them. People here were surprised that I could play the piano and that I had no accent."

Anna enjoys the pioneering spirit involved in her job. "The Lewis and Clark stories always excited me in school," she said. "There is something unique about going where no one has ever gone before, and I like the freedom involved with my work."

But Anna confessed to moments of despair and loneliness. "I guess in everything you're in you feel like leaving some time or another. In the United States everything is convenient. Speaking your own language is easier than thinking between two or three different languages."

Her grandfather, among friends, has helped her a great deal, she said.

"Grandpa is a terrific letter writer." (The mail service there is "super," she said — if you put enough postage on a letter and mark it "air mail.")

Anna is not totally sure of her future. She will be traveling back to Bolivia in June where she would like to begin working with children, she said.

"I've been through it all — I was raised that way. Now I would like to sit and sympathize with children and help them out."

maintenance repair time on their machines, and this will take place from 3:30 to 4 p.m. at the impoundment area near the city sports arena. Security for this area will be provided by the Jaycees, the chairman added.

Members of the Sno-Drifters snowmobile club will provide escort service from the finish line to the impoundment area and also the start line. The race will leave Thief River Falls at 9 a.m. Tuesday from the area east of the city and south of highway one.

Snowmobilers from northwestern Minnesota are urged to take part Saturday in the first annual Thief River Falls "No-Pro" 100 Poker Run, according to event chairman Ted Berglund of the Sno-Drifters club.

"No-Pro" 100 begins at 10 a.m. at the Best Western Inn of Thief River Falls and includes stops at Plummer, Brooks, Red Lake Falls and St. Hilaire before concluding at the Best Western. Complete information on this 100-mile run will be posted in communities throughout the area and at the various route stops.

All entrants must conclude their run by 6 p.m.

Another Saturday festivity includes the winter Crazy Day sidewalk sale, being sponsored by the retail business association of the chamber of commerce.

All area snowmobile owners are invited to participate in the Winter Wildness torchlight parade Sunday, according to Stan Gibson, chairman of the event for the TRF Sno-Drifters club.

Gibson stated that all participants are to bring their machines, with riders, to the sports arena anytime after 6 p.m. January 27 so all sleds can be placed in order prior to the 7 p.m. starting time.

Parade route will take the snowmobiles from the arena and down fourth street to LaBree avenue, south on LaBree to second street, and east on Second street, using the emergency underpass to the river and then to LaFave park, where there will be dancing on the ice until 10 p.m.

Parade and sno-ball will cap a complete day of activities Sunday. These include a 16-team slo-pitch softball tournament on the diamonds east of the AVTI and a radar run and slalom race for snowmobilers from 1 to 4 p.m. on the river. A fishing derby will also be held from 1 to 3 p.m. on the river near the Eighth street bridge.

There are still a few openings for the softball tournament and registrations can be made by contacting TG Sporting Goods in Thief River Falls. There will be an entry fee of $1 per machine for the radar run and slalom race, with trophies to be awarded in various categories. Complete rules on these two events will be available at the sign-up areas.

Goodridge History Group To Meet Tues.

Goodridge area historical society board meeting will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m., in the Goodridge school agricultural room.

Sportsmanship Is Emphasized At Newfolden

Marshall County Central high school will be supporting good sportsmanship during the week of January 28-February 1. During the course of the week students will be recognizing sportsmanship in a variety of ways.

Students will be involved in essay-writing and poster-making contests on the theme of sportsmanship and a bulletin board display on sportsmanship will be available for viewing by the public.

Daily school bulletins will contain rules for sportsmanship which will be read to all students.

Marshall County Central schools invite the public to help support sportsmanship during the sports seasons and thank you for your present and continued support.

The following are the "Fundamentals of Sportsmanship" which are included on each program distributed at sports events at MCC this year:

(1) Show respect for the opponent at all times. The opponent should be treated as a guest, greeted cordially on arriving, given the best accommodations, and accorded the tolerance, honesty and generosity which all human beings deserve. Good Sportsmanship is the Golden Rule in action.

(2) Show respect for the officials. The officials should be recognized as impartial arbitrators who are trained to do their job and who can be expected to do it to the best of their ability. Good sportsmanship implies the willingness to accept and abide by the decisions of the officials.

(3) Know, understand and appreciate the rules of the contest. A familiarity with the current rules of the game and the recognition of their necessity for a fair contest is essential. Good sportsmanship suggests the importance of conforming to the spirit as well as the letter of the rules.

(4) Maintain self-control at all times. A prerequisite of good sportsmanship requires one to understand his-her own bias or prejudice and the ability to prevent the desire to win from the overcoming reational behavior. A proper perspective must be maintained if the potential educational values of athletic competition are to be realized. Good sportsmanship is concerned with the behavior of all involved in the game.

(5) Recognize and appreciate skill in performance regardless of affiliation. Applause for an opponent's good performance is a demonstration of generosity and good will. The ability to recognize equality in performance and the willingness to acknowledge it without regard to team membership is one of the most commendable gestures of good sportsmanship.

1980 Tax Rate Notices Mailed To Employers

The 1980 tax rate notices are being mailed to all employers, the Minnesota Department of economic security announced.

New employers have been assigned a 1.9 per cent benefit cost rate for 1980. Employers with an unemployment experience record are assigned rates from 1.0 per cent to 7.5 per cent, depending upon the number of workers laid off. Those laying off more workers pay higher rates.

Employers will pay unemployment taxes on the first 18,000 in wages paid to a worker, the same wage base as 1979. These taxes are used to pay unemployment benefits.

Voluntary contributions made within 30 days from the date notices are mailed may entitle the employer to a lower tax rate.

Parents Can Help Toddlers Grow In Safe Environment

Toddlers rank right up there with the great explorers in history. Like any explorer, these featless movers and investigators need freedom if they are to learn and grown.

But, because toddlers are impulsive dynamos who will touch or taste anything, they also need a safe environment for their exploring.

"The dilemma of giving toddlers the freedom to explore and the protection they need as they begin to learn safety rules can be partially solved if parents or caretakers are aware of common toddler accidents and their prevention," said Cynthia Hobbie, pediatric nurse associate at a St. Paul hospital.

Poisonings, burns and electric shocks, falls and cuts, choking on or swallowing small objects and motor vehicle injuries are the most common toddler accidents, Hobbie said. Many can be prevented with foresight and common sense. Following are some suggestions for preventing common toddler accidents.

+ Poinsonings — Because toddlers are intrigued by opening bottles and putting things in their mouths, common medications and household products lead the list as causes of accidental poisonings in small children.

"All medications should be kept in a locked drawer of cupboard," Hobbie said. "Unfortunately, childproof containers sometimes aren't enough."

Medications no longer in use should be discarded and not in a waste basket where little fingers can easily find them. Aspirin, tranquilizers, sleeping pills and iron pills are all dangerous if taken in large quantities. "Many children's vitamins contain iron and should not be left sitting on tables or cupboards," she advised.

Common household products like dishwashing detergents, furniture polishes, bleach and cosmetics are poisonous if used improperly. Moth balls, drain cleaners, paint thinners, weed killers, insect and rat poisons, lye and kerosene also should be kept away from the toddler's reach.

Poisoning accidents require quick action. Telephone numbers for the doctor, hospital and poison control center should be posted by the telephone. A St. Paul poison control center can be reached 24 hours a day by calling (612) 296-8402.

"All medicine cupboards should contain a one ounce bottle of syrup of Ipecac, but parents should consult a physician or the poison control center on how and when to use it," Hobbie said. "It can be harmful for certain ingestions." Ipecac is available without a prescription from most pharmacies.

She also warned that parents should be alert for repeat poisonings since some children have a greater tendency to do it again and again.

+ Burns and Electric shock — Toddlers love to climb into the bath tub and turn on the water. Serous burns can result. For this reason the temperature on the hot water heater should be set at no higher than 120 degrees.

"Toddlers should never be left alone in the kitchen," Hobbie said. Pot handles should be turned toward the back of the stove and back burners should be used. Electric cords attached to coffee pots, toasters and other cooking appliances should be kept out of reach.

Throughout the house, electric outlets should have safety plugs and fireplaces, wall heaters, radiators, hot air registers and space heaters should have guards around them.

+ Drowning — Drownings can occur in any amount of water, Hobbie emphasized — even in bathtubs. Toddlers should never be left alone in any water. They should always be accompanied by an adult when near a pool, wading pool, lake or beach.

+ Falls and Cuts — Serious accidents sometimes result simply because someone forgot to close a door, Gates, doors and screens at stairways, driveways, storage and other hazardous areas should be safely fastened. Windows above the first story should have guards installed.

Temporarily removing furniture with sharp edges and corners, using non-skid bath mats and plastic dishes are a few simple precautions against potentially serious cuts and bruises. In addition, knives, scissors and other sharp objects should be locked up or kept out of reach.

+ Ingestion of small objects — Toddlers should not be given nuts, popcorn, balloons, coins, chewing gum or plastic bags, Hobbie said. Their toys should be unbreakable and have no small parts.

+ Motor vehicle accidents — Driveway and street should be "no-nos" as places to play. Toddlers should be taught to hold an adult's hand when crossing the street. Car doors should have safety latches and toddlers should always be confined in an approved auto seat restraint when the car.

"Toddlers are exhausting to keep up with," Hobbie said. "But the adults in their lives can make the journey from one to three a safer one by following these suggestions."

Winter Shows Activities Set Feb. 22-Mar. 2

Recent trends suggest that approximately 40,000 people will gather for the 10-day run of the 70th annual Red River valley winter shows in Crookston conducted February 22 through March 2.

A farm service show will take place, along with many family activities. There will be a special children's barnyard conducted by FFA youth on family day. Also included is the 21st annual talent festival and a miniature tractor-pull contest. A spiritual rally is set for February 24 at 3 p.m.

Crop and livestock shows, along with educational seminars will be included within the 10-day event. Forty-six people are scheduled to travel from various parts of the Midwest and Washington, D.C., to share their ideas with citizens of the valley. Seminar emphasis in 1980 is on energy as it concerns the agricultural industry.

Sen. Boschwitz and Re. Stangeland are being provided a platform to address winter shows visitors. Valley farmer and homemaker banquet will honor 16 couples from northwestern Minnesota for their outstanding contribution to their community, their family, their state and nation.

C. Peter Magrath, president of the University of Minnesota, will address the King Agassiz banquet February 28, in which King Agassiz will be selected from a group of 16 county kings who are leaders in their communities.

First commemorative stamp issue for 1980 honors W.C. Fields and will be issued January 29, the 100th anniversary of his birth, in Beverly Hills, Calif. Fields, often billed as "The Greatest Comedian in the World," liked to think of himself as "the greatest juggler on earth," and it was a comic juggler that he first made his reputation.

A star of American stage, film and radio, W.C. Fields is remembered for his caustic wit. Favorite targets for his barbs were children, little old ladies, socially prominent persons, pompous officials and sobriety.

This 15-cent commemorative stamp is the fourth issue in the performing arts and artists series which began in 1978 and includes stamps for Jimmie Rodgers, George M. Cohan and Will Rogers.

Happiness Is The Times

"Thank you for my doll and our other toys," exclaimed Mary. "And take care of Mommy and Daddy," added Janie. "Help Billy not to be lonely in the hospital," offered Bobby for his little school friend.

Children believe in prayer. They believe their prayers are heard in exactly the words they use. They say simply what is in their hearts, trusting Mom's promise that they can talk to God and be heard.

But sometimes the adult heart is skeptical. We wonder if prayer really does any good — whether it is heard. It is then we need the simple trust of a child. We must remember that, through the ages, men have found answers through the Church. There God speaks with perfect wisdom to the hearts of His children. Attend church this Sunday.

ENTERTAINING IDEAS

PORK AND FRUIT GO-TOGETHERS

Ham with pineapple, pork chops with applesauce — these and other combinations of pork with fruit have long been favorite flavor "teammates."

These recipes combine pork and fruit with a new twist. The fruit is in the form of canned fruit pie fillings in this company-special recipe for Cherry-Glazed Pork and the hearty medley of apples, sausage, and sweet potatoes.

With beef prices high and pork in abundant supply, many shoppers have discovered that today's pork is more than good eating. It is outstanding nutritive value with more protein and less fat than previously. Today's pork is lean with only about 70 calories per ounce of lean, cooked meat. Pork is also a major dietary source of the B vitamins, especially thiamine — containing three times as much as any other food source.

CHERRY GLAZED PORK ROAST

4-pounds pork loin roast, bone in
1 can (21 oz.) Thank You Cherry Pie Filling
1 Tbsp. lemon juice
2 Tbsp. rum (optional)
Pinch of ginger, clove
1/8 tsp. garlic salt, cinnamon

Place pork roast on rack in roasting pan. Roast, uncovered, at 325°F. until meat thermometer registers 170°F., about 2 1/2 hours. Meanwhile, combine remaining ingredients and baste roast several times during last 20 minutes cooking time. Heat the remaining sauce on range or in microwave. Serve with roast. Makes 6 servings.

APPLE, SAUSAGE, SWEET POTATO "MEDLEY"

2 large sweet potatoes cooked (or one 17-oz can of sweet potatoes)
1/2 pound seasoned sausage (link or bulk)
2 Tablespoons brown sugar

Conservation Volunteer Jobs Still Available

Student Conservation Association, Inc. is still accepting applications for its spring and summer high school work programs and for its summer college-aged Park and Forest Assistant program. These programs will place 850 young people in volunteer positions in over 70 national parks and forests, and other public and private conservation and recreation areas in the United States. Deadline for receipt of applications for the spring high school program has been extended from the original February 1 deadline to February 15.

High school work groups, open to young men and women 16 to 18 years old, offer group work and recreation experiences of three or four weeks. Volunteers participate in groups of 10 or 12, under skilled adult leadership. Two or three weeks are devoted to conservation work and the remaining time is spent hiking and exploring the area. Each group is composed of both men and women, and includes participants from all over the United States.

Work assignments often include tasks such as trail maintenance, revegetation, boundary fencing and shelter and bridge construction. Groups live in tent camps during the project. Work projects and campsites are usually located in the back-country.

Although volunteers receive no salary, the program does provide supervision, food and group equipment. Participants provide their personal equipment i.e. back-pack, sleeping bag, personal items and transportation to the area and the return trip home. SCA offers some financial assistance to those who cannot meet the total cost of travel and personal equipment.

In the Park and Forest Assistant program, college-aged men and women spend between eight and twelve weeks performing duties similar to those of professional Park and Forest service personnel. Assignments are made on an individual basis. Jobs range from giving interpretive programs for park visitors to assisting rangers in back-country patrol. Park and Forest Assistants are not involved in law enforcement duties.

Like high school participants, Park and Forest assistants receive no salary. Program, however; does provide housing and a grant to cover travel expenses to the area, the return trip and living expenses.

Last year 314 young men and women participated in the high school program. More than 450 served as Park and Forest assistants.

In 1980 the association plans to offer over 450 positions in the Park and Forest Assistant program and about 400 in the High School program.

Student Conservation association began in 1957 with small programs in the Olympic National Park in Washington and Grand Teton National Park in Wyoming. More than 5,000 persons have served in the program since 1957. Association is a non-profit, tax exempt, educational organization dedicated to providing outdoor educational opportunity and to conserving natural resources.

Student Conservation program is an equal opportunity program. All qualified applicants will be considered for placement without regard to race, creed, color or national origin.

College-aged persons who wish a list of specific Student Conservation program positions and application forms may write to the national office at P.O. Box 550c, Charlestown, New Hampshire, 03603. High School aged applicants who would like an application should write to the Student Conservation Association at P.O. Box 550h, Charlestown, New Hampshire, 03603. The telephone number is (603) 826-5206.

Deadline for applying for the High School spring program has been extended to February 15 while summer applicants for either program should be in the office by March 1. The Association urges interested persons to apply as far in advance for those dates as possible.

The federal government offers employers the opportunity to hire qualified workers and receive a tax break for it under the Targeted Jobs Tax Credit (TJTC).

Government Supermarket

Following article by Joe Scheringer appeared in the publication "Grocer's Spotlight":

The thought of the government designing a supermarket intrigued us, so we contacted the Agriculture Department, who would logically be responsible for something like that. They referred us to the Department of Energy, who referred us to the Department of Commerce. Several referrals later we talked to the Secretary for Supermarket Operations, Department of Food Dissemination, who invited us out to their new headquarters.

It stood, expensively gleaming, on a grassy knoll in rural Maryland. Four stories high. Big, very big.

At the reception desk, we asked for E. E. Bigelow, secretary of supermarket operations. We were subsequently greeted by his press aide, Art Lippy, who explained that the Secretary was busy but that he, Lippy, had been empowered to answer all our questions.

We began by commenting on the grandeur of their headquarters, and were promptly stopped by Lippy.

"This is not our headquarters," he explained. "This is just the first of our new breed of supermarkets."

"Four stories high? Isn't that a trifle excessive for a supermarket?" we wondered.

"We have to have room for all our people," he explained, whipping out an organizational chart that looked as if it had been designed by an inebriated spider.

The Secretary of Supermarket Operations stood in a lonely box at the top. Beneath that stood the undersecretary for store operations, and reporting to him were deputy secretaries for grocery operations, meat operations, produce operations, deli operations, dairy operations, bakery operations, personnel scheduling and relations, checkout operations, receiving, procurement, energy management, construction, transportation, scanning data retrieval, and personnel chart design.

"And each deputy," Lippy concluded, "Has one senior and three junior assistants."

"Surely you don't need as many people in the receiving department as you do in the grocery department or at the front end," we objected.

"Our years of experience in government operations have stressed the need for quality in all departments," Lippy explained. "To take people from deputy secretary Crenshaw's receiving department and add them to deputy secretary Clydesdale's grocery department simply because they're needed there would surely upset Crenshaw. We have to be extremely sensitive in our personnel relations, because these are all executives that the outside business world would snap up instantly if they left government employment.

"Although why they'd want to leave is beyond me," Lippy continued. "As you can see, everyone has a nice, carpeted, air conditioned office to work in, we have a dining room on each floor, exercise facilities on the ground floor, helipad on the roof, a golf course in the back, and transportation to and from work. Not to mention the more tangible benefits, of course."

"Of course," we mumbled weakly. "I suppose the actual food sales take place on the ground floor?"

"Well," Lippy said, "we haven't actually got around to selling food as yet. Although we do have a committee studying the economic feasibility of doing so. We felt our first priority should be to make sure we were adequately staffed before we began ordering all that expensive equipment. After all, we're not here to simply throw the government's money away.

"And I must admit we've become quite a success even without actually selling food. We've provided employment for upwards of 200 people, our operating budget is quite large and I expect will grow much larger as we open more supermarkets.

"Bureaulogically speaking, eventually we will become a major employer."

"But you don't perform any function," we objected. "You don't sell food."

Lippy looked at us condescendingly. "My dear fellow," he began. "We exist, we employ people, we occupy buildings, we use energy, we pump money into the economy. Isn't that enough? What more can you expect of your bureaucracy?"

I left, feeling a little chilled. Not that a government supermarket could ever compete with us for customers. They'd have to sell food to do that, and the committee to investigate that possibility would probably decide it's unfeasible. No, we don't have to worry about them competing for our customers. On the other hand, if they try to compete for our employees we may have a problem.

The Classic Parody

In a recent copyrighted column by Virginia Payette for United Feature syndicate, the writer pens a classic parody on the now famous reply by Francis Church of the New York Sun to Virginia's question about Santa Claus. Payette writes as follows:

Dear Editor:

I am 55 years old. Some of my little advisers say there is no Soviet Union. Miz Lillian says, If you see it in the newspaper, it's so. Please tell me the truth: Is there a Soviet Union?

Jimmy Carter
The White House

Jimmy, your little advisers are wrong. They have been affected by the complacency of a complacent age. They think that, in the born-again spirit of your administration, which ascribes to every dictator the same reverence for human rights that you have, no country would dare risk United Nations condemnation by trampling over helpless neighbors.

Yes, Jimmy, there is a Soviet Union. It exists as certainly as treachery and brutality and rapacity exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life the greatest fear and dread.

Alas! How beautiful would be the world if there were no Soviet Union!

It would be as serene as if there were no Khomeinis, no Brezhnevs, no Idi Amins.

There would be no universal apprehension then, no torture, no genocide to make intolerable this existence. We should need no United Nations, no World Court, no Salt II.

Not believe in the Soviet Union! You might as well not believe in war! You might as well put such great trust in the Kremlin's talk of peace that you would never suspect it of sending 80,000 troops and tanks into Afghanistan.

You would never be forced, as you were recently, to call your ambassador home from Moscow to counsel with you on what the Soviet Union REALLY means by its latest act of aggression and what your government should do about what you call an extremely serious threat to peace.

Not believe in the Soviet Union! Then you would have to admit that all those nervous Nellies in the Pentagon have been wrong with their warnings that we are no longer No. 1 in the world; that the Soviets are ahead of us in the terrible race to stockpile weapons capable of reducing our civilization to rubble.

You would have to wonder if they have been deceiving you all these years with their talk of detente and arms limitations and friendly coexistence. You might even begin to get the idea that they don't mean a thing they say, that they make promises and sign treaties they have no intention of honoring.

Only hard-thinking, determination and a tight grip on the true nature of Russian diplomacy can push aside the Iron Curtain to reveal the truth about their intentions, which are to take over any country that stands in their way.

Ah, Jimmy, in all this world there is nothing more real than Communism and its ruthless goal of global supremacy.

No Soviet Union!

Thanks to Satan, it lives, and if the Kremlin has its way, it lives forever. A thousand years from now, Jimmy, nay, ten times ten thousand years from now, it will continue to deceive innocent men and make miserable the hearts of helpless folk everywhere.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Smugly the man stepped off the weight and fortune scale and handed the card to his wife. The card read, "You are dynamic, a leader, and are admired for your good looks and strength of character." "Uh huh," sniffed the wife, "and it's got your weight wrong, too!"

Upon concluding a funeral sermon, the minister asked those assembled if anyone would care to say a good word about the deceased. When silence greeted the suggestion, he implored, "Before sending this man's soul to rest, can someone say a good word about him?" Again silence. After a third plea was made, one man reluctantly arose and proclaimed, "Well, his brother was worse!"

Confounded by the newborn baby's perpetual smile, the attending physician called in a colleague. Noticing that the baby had one fist tightly clenched, the second doctor opened the tiny hand — and found a tiny pill. The smile was explained.

EASY COFFEE CAKE FOR BRUNCH

This elegant coffee cake can be prepared in minutes and uses ingredients easy to keep on hand. Serve it for brunch or with coffee to unexpected guests. The crunchy topping highlights the "treasure" hidden in each rich, flaky biscuit.

TREASURE-FILLED COFFEE RING

3/4 cup sugar
1 tablespoon orange peel
1/4 cup chopped pecans
2 (3-oz.) pkg. cream cheese, softened
2 (10-oz.) cans Hungry Jack refrigerated big flaky biscuits
1/2 cup margarine or butter, melted

Heat oven to 350°F. Using shortening, grease 12-cup fluted tube pan (nonstick finish pan, too.) Combine sugar, orange peel and pecans; set aside. Cut each package cream cheese in half lengthwise, then crosswise into 10 equal pieces. Separate each can of dough into 10 biscuits. Separate each biscuit into 2 layers. Place 1 piece cream cheese between layers; seal edges. Dip each filled biscuit in melted margarine, then in sugar mixture. Stand biscuits on edge, slightly overlapping, around prepared pan. Sprinkle with any remaining sugar mixture; drizzle with any remaining margarine.

Bake at 350°F. for 30 to 35 minutes or until golden brown. Cool in pan one minute; turn onto serving plate. Cool slightly. 10 servings.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Listen to the sad tale of one George Lockwood and of his agonies as an abalone farmer. At first, he really thought he had come up with a perfect idea. Using his knowledge of marine sciences, he would create a thriving business while helping humanity learn how to increase the world's food supply. His field would be aquaculture — the growing of seafood in farm-like conditions — and his product would be the rare abalone, a large and highly nutritious Pacific Ocean snail. All things considered, it seemed a highly desirable venture.

Lockwood devised a master plan and followed it to the letter. He wanted to "raise his abalones like chicken," growing them in about 40 feet of water by pumping water from the ocean and discharging it back into the sea. After considerable difficulty, he raised enough capital to form a company, the Monterey Abalone Farms of California. Then he and his staff worked for seven years, perfecting a small scale commercial technique for spawning abalone, hatching their eggs, growing their larvae, producing their food and raising the young into marketable adults at a competitive price.

There seemed no problem the superior planning and skilled work of Lockwood's team could not master. But there was. The company soon found itself virtually overwhelmed by government bureaucrats — people who ingeniously discovered one reason after another to block whatever the firm was trying to do.

First, there was a problem with the snails themselves. Like most everything that lives on earth, the little creatures sometimes gave vent to nature's bodily functions. This created a messy situation in the eyes of the Environmental Protection Agency; for according to EPA, it is a no-no, if fact, strictly illegal for abalones to go potty in the water. Apparently the agency was unphased that the world's marine life has been harmlessly doing its thing — unregulated by government — for billions of years. Lockwood's farm was relgated to the status of a sewage treatment plant and required to comply with the same regulations.

EPA also threatened to restrict abalone-raising operations, as a business, to waters zoned for industrial use. But that would have placed the farm in waters too dirty to support abalone growth, or to meet the standards of purity required by another agency, the Food and Drug Administration.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration applied standards to the farm that were developed for divers working at offshore drilling rigs and diving to depths of 1,000 feet. Lockwood's divers never go deeper than 40 feet. Despite its accident-free record, the company had to waste thousands of dollars in precious capital defending itself against OSHA's harrassment. These battles convinced Lockwood that OSHA is the one agency in Washington that genuinely hates business.

The upshot of having to interpret and contest regulations that have little or no relevance to his own firm is this: Lockwood rarely functions where he is needed most — as a businessman, scientist and engineer. He exhausts up to 70 per cent of his time dealing with the some 42 federal, state, regional, county and municipal government agencies that directly influence his firm.

Twenty years ago, people like Lockwood were bursting with the excitement of new ideas, new products and new foreign ventures. No more. Today, more and more business leaders feel only depressed at the prospect of new attacks from government and the futility of trying to get things done. As a result, Lockwood believes today's typical bright students who have some entrepreneurial get-up-and-go are receiving a very negative message. They are being told: "Don't bother. It's no fun. There's no reward. No satisfaction. In some places they will treat you like a criminal for being creative. You will be much more comfortable staying in the university."

Lockwood has not given up. He thinks a major American renaissance in innovation is still possible. He urges some real reductions in regulations and changes in the tax laws so small fledgling companies can secure enough capital to get off the ground. Without those changes, he will consider expanding his business in some other country.

Just how many more fine minds and brilliant contributions must America waste — or risk losing altogether — before we recognize our folly and rescue a future that is rapidly slipping away?

Unions are required to make annual reports to the U.S. Labor Department and to comply with standards for union elections under the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act.

CHECKING DENTURES

Fortunately — or unfortunately — you no longer have any problems with your upper teeth. They were all removed some years ago and you now wear a full upper denture. Does this mean you can forget about visiting your dentist regularly? Not if you value your health and future comfort!

Regular appointments with the dentist are as important for denture-wearers as for people with natural teeth. The mouth tissue bony ridges and gums that support dentures are constantly undergoing changes and may impair the dentures' proper function. Even such general health ailments as vitamin deficiencies, extended illness, drug therapy, weight loss, diabetes or high blood pressure can change the way dentures fit.

Ill-fitting dentures can seriously damage the mouth, causing abrasions, bruises, inflammation and rapid destruction of the supporting bone. Prolonged irritation of this kind may result in the development of tumors.

It is important to have a dental checkup at least once a year to insure that your dentures are properly adjusted and that your mouth is in good health.

Use Self-Hypnosis In Pain Control

by Jeanne Hanson
'U' M News Service

"Relax... pretend you're watching your favorite television show. Now, hold this coin and stare at the smiling face on your thumb. Concentrate... you can hardly feel the coin. It will fall to the floor.

"Now, close your eyes and relax... let your face muscles relax, your arms relax. Picture your bronchial tree, an upside-down tree. It's tight... now imagine that each branch is a hollow bronchial tube. Open each one, gradually, gradually. The next time you feel your tree tighten, open the branches so air can move through them easily, so you can breathe easily..."

Although the actual process takes longer, this is how children in a special University of Minnesota program are learning to hypnotize themselves to control certain illnesses like asthma.

So far, the technique is proving successful at alleviating symptoms of asthma, abdominal pain, headaches, leg and chest pain, some kinds of vomiting and other problems, according to pediatric psychologist Pi-Nian Chang.

At other health care centers, warts, bedwetting, hyperactivity and fear of shots in childhood cancer victims are being treated using the same method. "Self-hypnosis is not considered 'creepy' anymore," said Chang, who uses the technique regularly.

Self-hypnosis or "suggestive therapy" encourages people to see health as more than the absence of disease, and to take control of their own bodies, Chang said. People make themselves tense, and can therefore learn to relax without an abundance of sedatives and pain killers, he said.

Self-hypnosis technique takes the subject through several phases: Introduction through concentration, progressive relaxation, visual images and suggestion. Once relaxed, the person enters an altered state of consciousness and can persuade his or her own body to open its bronchial tubes, for instance, or unclench its abdominal muscles. The technique involves self-direction, not psychic powers, faith healing or manipulation.

Although no one is sure how it works neurologically, it is known that it works, Chang said. It works especially well for five- to eight-year-old children, whose imaginations are vivid and whose misconceptions are few. But the technique can also be used with any adult who is not excessively anxious or mentally ill.

Most of Chang's young patients are referred to the treatment program by family doctors, although parents sometimes call the university themselves, looking for help. Before beginning a self-hypnosis treatment program, each child is checked carefully for any sign of organic illness.

Most of the children Chang sees show symptoms related to parental depression, overprotectiveness or high expectations, he said. Less often, family alcoholism, marital difficulty, a family move, or death in the family can be the cause of the problem.

Children's symptoms often resemble their parents' symptoms, Chang said. Headaches run in families most often, although asthma and leg, chest and abdominal pains are also sumptoms that be shared by family members. For this reason Chang sometimes treats whole families.

When Chang begins self-hypnosis therapy with a child, he first asks the child to track pain episodes for a week. "We look for patterns, precipitating factors and pay-offs," he said. An example of a pay-off could be pain that's so severe it gets a child out of school.

"We remove rewards like these right away," he said. "We tell the school not to give medicine or send the child home." Instead, the child may go to the nurse's office and relax there, using the techniques learned in therapy and through practice at home without parental help. Gradually, the child learns to relax no matter where he is.

"Our message to parents and teachers is that the child is not faking it," Chang said. "The pain is there, but the child can learn not to be incapacitated by it."

Favorable results can occur as early as two weeks after the start of the therapy, or may take as long as three or four months, Chang said. Self-hypnosis helped one girl who pulled her hair out at night to stop the hair-pulling in six weeks. A boy whose stomach pains sent him to his rural hospital for three days at a time, however, needed four months of therapy before he could stop this pattern. He had become so used to the routine that his words to hospital personnel were "Just admit me for three days and I'll be okay."

Chang and his colleagues follow the children's progress after treatment through regular checks at three months, six months, and one year after the symptoms are under control. Very seldom is there any "symptom transfer," such as a cured headache turning into a stomachache, he said.

As the technique gains in popularity, the university of Minnesota and other groups have begun to hold workshops to teach other physicians and licensed psychologists how to use it, and to add it to their list of possible treatments.

Helpful Hints On Saving Fuel

While there will be sufficient supplies of heating oil this winter, conservation is still important for two reasons: it may prevent future shortages and save consumer dollars.

Insulation in the wall can be like money in the bank.

That's the word from the National Oil Jobbers Council, representative of the nation's heating-oil distributors.

The Council suggests these conservation measures:

- Reduce the fire rate of your burner. During the era of abundant, cheap oil, burners were oversized. Result: wasted oil. A 25 percent reduction in the firing rate — achieved with adjustments made by oil supplier service personnel — can mean an eight percent energy savings.
- Improve burner efficiency. A clean burner is a more cost-efficient burner. This includes removing soot from the heat exchanger and sealing the unit to prevent excess air from entering the combustion chamber.
- Turn down your thermostat. A convenient way to save energy and money, especially if you're away from home during the day, is to lower your thermostat. Also, have it down when you're asleep.
- Have new equipment installed now. Modern technology is geared to saving fuel without sacrificing efficiency. Replacing an old burner with a high-speed flame retention burner can be one of the best ways to save. This new technology produces a flame that's hotter and more compact and yields a greater combustion efficiency, which is reflected in heat savings.

When you leave the house, turn down your thermostat.

According to the Council, a high-speed flame retention burner sells for $350 to $460, installed. The new type of burner can mean a fuel savings of 16 to 30 percent. Thus, it will pay for itself in about two years.

- Insulate your home. Adding insulation and weatherstripping helps seal in the heat. Make sure weatherstripping is not cracked or dried out and that windows are properly sealed with insulating film or storm windows.

Your heating oil distributor can show you how to save money on your oil bill. Many distributors offer equipment evaluation/tune-up of the heating system to tell homeowners exactly where and how energy can be conserved.

A clean burner's a more cost-efficient burner.

There's another dollar saving plus to many of the suggestions outlined above: most energy conservation investments are tax deductible.

Feeder Pig Co-Op Holds District Meet

Seven members of Wisconsin feeder pig marketing cooperative were elected to the organization's advisory board during the co-op's District 5 meeting at the Moorhead Holiday Inn recently.

These advisory board members will be delegates to the co-op's annual meeting at Stevens Point, Wis., February 16. Fourteen additional delegates and a representative to the co-op's resolutions committee were named.

District 5 board of directors representative Eugene Halama welcomed members to the meeting. The district includes members from Becker, Beltrami, Cass, Clay, Clearwater, Hubbard, Itasca, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Koochiching, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Roseau, Wadena and Wilkin counties in Minnesota and the states of North and South Dakota.

Advisory board members from the district are: Dennis Just, Berlin, N.D.; David Gilbertson, Fosston; Earl Regner, Litchville, N.D.; Lloyd Sjostrom, Jamestown, N.D.; Clyde Dallmann, Bradley Cook and Aldon Hough, all of Barnesville.

Annual meeting delegates from District Five are: Merle Nelson, Michael Kava, Ronald Butenhoff and David Willard, Barnesville; Howard Ronsberg, Hawley; Warren Clappsaddle, Frazee; Dennis Simonson, Fosston; Charles Svare, Pelican Rapids; Fred Berhow, Fertile; Dale Marvel, Audubon; Don Lubitz, Verndale; and Duane Matzke, Marion, N.D. Alternates are Roger Winter, Callaway, and Robert Straube, Lengby. Charles Svare was named to the resolutions committee.

General manager Paul Schink reviewed past co-op achievements and gave predictions for 1980 pig production. Controller Harold Smith summarized the organization's annual statement and division manager Noel Todd spoke on the co-op's grading program. . . and the differences in "select" and "choice" pigs. Western sales manager Dale Melin presented the feeder pig sales outlook.

Following the noon dinner, Dr. James Strayer of Omaha, Neb., gave a slide presentation on "Management and Control of Atrophic Rhinitis."

He gave a microscopic view of the Atrophic Rhinitis bug and explained how the disease is transmitted from pig to pig. Via slides, he showed the difference between a normal pig nose and one distorted by his disease.

Dr. Strayer explained how this disease chews at the filtering portion of the pig's nose and eventually leaves nothing to filter dirt and germs, especially pneumonia, from entering the pig's lungs. He emphasized the importance of vaccinating every pig when seven days old. . . and following up with a booster vaccine when 28 days old.

Stressing the imporatnace of good management practices necessary in any feeder pig operation before medication or vaccination will help, Dr. Strayer said that "cleanliness and Atrophic Rhinitis bacterin will get the job done."

$595,542,000 Spent by 'U'M To Run System

University of Minnesota spent $595,542,000 in 1978-79 to run its five-campus system, according to figures released recently.

"That amount is $30,734,000 more than what it cost to run the institution in 1977-78. "The bulk of the increase is the result of inflation, and reflects salary increases and increases in expenses and the costs of supplies," said Donald Brown, vice president for finance. "There was no substantial increase in the resources available to the University."

Expenditures of current funds in 1978-79 totaled $532,307,000. Current funds are used to pay for teaching, research, public service, student services, scholarships, and operation and maintenance of the physical plant, among other items.

Non-current fund expenditures totaled $52,989,000 and covered such items as loan cancellations and purchase and disposal of plant facilities.

According to the report, 36.9 per cent of the current fund income was from state appropriations and 15.8 per cent was from federal sources. About 75 per cent of the current fund expenditures went to cover the cost of general education, 15.1 per cent went to research, 8.8 per cent covered auxiliary services, and 1.6 per cent went to student aid.

About $79 million was spent on research, with funds from state, federal and private sources. University of Minnesota is "among the leading universities in the nation in the receipt of federal research funds," said President C. Peter Magrath in a statement included in the report.

"These grants not only support a variety of basic and applied investigations, they also contribute to Minnesota's economy by returning federal tax revenues to the state, providing new jobs, stimulating purchases, and generating state tax income," he said.

Research efforts bolster the state's economy, particularly through agricultural, scientific and technological research, Magrath said. "Two thirds of the scientists involved in (Minnesota's $2 billion high technology industry) were trained in the research laboratories and classrooms at the University of Minnesota," he said.

Report highlights the work of 10 University faculty members, who describe their own research in widely different fields.

According to Dr. Louis Tobian, professor of medicine, the fact that in patients with hypertension the artery walls have excessive amounts of salt and water was first discovered at the University of Minnesota Medical school 24 years ago.

"We now believe that human hypertension can be completely prevented by a life-long low-salt diet," Tobian writes. "Moreover, existing high blood pressure can usually be improved by slightly decreasing sodium in the body."

Kenneth Whitby, professor of mechanical engineering and another of the researchers featured in the report, describes the close relationship between the Particle Technology laboratory at the University and the Minnesota business community.

Laboratory has given technical assistance to several fledgling Minnesota businesses, and has marketed 13 technical instruments it developed. "All too often, vast sums of government money get wasted because researchers won't shepherd their ideas along the rocky road to commercialization," Whitby writes. "We've always felt that it was our responsibility to get our ideas into widespread use."

CPSC Checks Formaldehyde In Insulation

As part of its ongoing investigation into the health effects of formaldehyde in consumer products, the U.S. consumer product safety commission will conduct a public hearing on February 5 and 6 in Minneapolis, focusing on urea formaldehyde (UF) foam insulation.

Minneapolis hearing will be the third of four regional hearings the commission has scheduled to help the agency develop regulatory alternatives for UF foam insulation. The last hearing will be conducted on February 26 in Hartford, Conn.

The commission has received more than 500 consumer compaints about adverse health effects that may be caused by formaldehyde gas being released from UF foam insulation.

CPSC staff is informed that UF foam insulation has been installed in more than 500,000 homes nationwide since 1976, many thousands of them located in the midwestern states. The product is mixed by professional installers at the homesite and pumped into spaces between the walls in a shaving cream-like foam which then hardens into a "wall" of insulation.

The public hearing in Minneapolis is scheduled to open at 10 a.m. on Feburary 5 and 9 a.m. on February 6 in the Sheraton-Ritz hotel, 315 Nicollet Mall, with CPSC Commissioner R. David Pittle presiding. An estimated 25 witnesses are scheduled to testify, including representatives from the insulation and manufactured housing industry, from the formaldehyde and UF foam industries, state health department officials and university health experts, consumer protection agencies, consumer groups, and midwestern area residents with formaldehyde problems in their homes.

Out of the 500 consumer complaints already received on formaldehyde, CPSC staff has conducted 100 in-depth investigations, at least 40 of which involved some period of dislocation of the consumers from their homes.

CPSC is requesting that other consumers with complaints about formaldehyde from UF foam insulation or other consumer products call CPSC at the agency's toll-free number, 800-638-8326. CPSC also is sharing its complaint information with an industry trade association, known as NAUFIM) the National Association of Urea Formaldehyde Installers and Manufacturers), which also maintains a toll-free number at 800-354-9816.

Consumers have reported a variety of adverse health effects they believe are associated with exposure to formaldehyde in UF foam and other products; CPSC's regional office in St. Paul for example, has received 99 complaints so far, a total of 23 complaints about UF foam and 76 about formaldehyde in particle board and other products. The complaints include difficulty in breathing (resembling severe asthma in some cases); serious eye and skin irritation and eczema-like rashes; headaches and dizziness; nausea and vomiting; and severe nose bleeds.

Additionally, the commission's concern over the possible long-term effects of formaldehyde has heightened in October by preliminary test results indicating that formaldehyde may cause cancer in laboratory test animals.

An estimated 6.3 billion pounds of formaldehyde were produced domestically in 1978. About 50 per cent of this total was used in wood products, principally for use as an adhesive agent in particle board and plywood. About two per cent of the total in 1978 (or about 100 million pounds) was used to manufacture UF foam insulation.

Once the UF foam is pumped into the walls and hardens in place, it can be removed only at great expense and with considerable disruption to the homeowner. High temperatures and high humidity may increase the potential for the release of formaldehyde gas from the product.

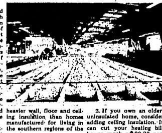
On November 14, a statewide ban of UF foam insulation took effect in Massachusetts, where the product has been installed in an estimated 4,000 homes.

On August 1, CPSC issued a nationwide press release urging consumers to make certain that professionals safely install UF foam insulation in homes, since improper installation may contribute to formaldehyde emissions. Consumers are advised to demand proof that the installer has received factory training in correct installation procedures, and to secure a written statement promising specific action by the installer if health problems arise in the home.

REPORT TO CONSUMERS

MOBILE/MANUFACTURED HOUSING SAVES ENERGY

By Lisa Drake



Drake

Mobile/manufactured homes use less energy both in winter and summer than many site-built homes of comparable size. Compact design, efficient use of space and rigid insulation requirements are important factors in the energy economies of a manufactured house, but they are only a part of the story. Equally important are the energy-saving heating, cooling and electrical systems that are basic to the design.

The 1974 energy shortage created a challenge that the 600-member manufactured housing industry responded to quickly and successfully. When the American National Standards Institute and the National Fire Protection Association doubled mobile home insulation requirements, the industry responded with an unprecedented 98 percent compliance.

The subsequent federal requirement that heat losses be kept at specified levels in manufactured homes has further upgraded the quality of insulation. Specific heat loss level requirements are posted inside each manufactured home to inform the consumers of the heating performance they can expect.

Mobile/manufactured homes designed for use in northern regions require storm windows and insulated glass. They also require heavier wall, floor and ceiling insulation than homes manufactured for living in the southern regions of the country.

In addition to current conservation measures, the industry is seriously involved in the search for new energy sources. Mobile/manufactured homes operated by solar energy are already on the market with more economical applications under research. Industry experts estimate that properly positioned solar collectors can reduce energy use by about 50 percent.

While waiting for energy saving innovations, the owners of manufactured homes can save energy by heeding the following tips from the Manufactured Housing Institute:

1. Check the posted energy efficiency ratio on the heating and cooling units when you shop for a manufactured house. The higher the ratio, the more efficient the unit.

2. If you own an older, uninsulated home, consider adding ceiling insulation. It can cut your heating bill by as much as 20-30 percent, depending on the area in which you live.

3. Check the caulking on the outside of your manufactured house every six months for chipping, peeling or cracks. Spot caulking is an inexpensive and easy way to save money and energy.

4. To save about 7 percent on your heating bills, paint your roof with a reflecting black paint. The painting cost will be less than $100 for a double wide unit, an expenditure you'll recoup from savings on heating bills in about a year.

Lisa Drake is a Consumer Affairs Advisor for the Manufactured Housing Institute (MHI). MHI is a national association whose membership comprises manufacturers and suppliers engaged in producing and servicing mobile/modular homes.

Winter Carnival To Take Place In St. Paul

Activities ranging from snow fun to serious national indoor and outdoor competitions launch the 94th anniversary Saint Paul winter carnival, the nation's largest winter festival. Scheduled for February 1-10, the "Jest Fest" theme commemorates the International Shrine Clown mid-winter convention.

Saint Paul Winter carnival was founded in 1886 when an Eastern journalist's challenge that "St. Paul is another Siberia — unfit for human habitation," was taken up by civic leaders. They wanted to prove that the winter climate was brisk and vigorous, and that snow and ice were assets.

King Boreas and his Queen of Snows rule over the winter realm until arch-rival Vulcanus Rex, King of Fire, overthrows Boreas at Carnival's close.

This year's edition features over 100 events. Carnival Park family activity center features Mini-Boggan sliding, major snow sculptures, a larger-than-life ice sculpture, free sleigh rides, a keg-put contest and a Kik sled race.

World's largest pancake breakfast sponsored as a Lions Club benefit for the Lions Eye bank, U of M hearing center and Camp New Hope, will feature Pillsbury Pancakes drenched in Golden Griddle syrup. Pancakes will be served all day in the civic center starting at 8 a.m. through the Grande Day parade, February 2.

Land O'Lakes, Inc., will bring the most prestigious invitational ice carving contest to carinival in decades with $2,000 in awards. Viewing will take place throughout the week at the Minnesota Federal Plaza downtown.

King Boreas Grande Day parade February 2 will feature over 500 Shrine Clowns, Sports Grand Marshal Rick Mears, 1979 Indy "500" champion racer will appear on his "Gould Charge" racing car. Civic center preparade show will feature band competition and variety acts, with spectacular new floats. The Torchlight parade follows February 9.

Food tastes can be satisfied at a taco-eating contest or outdoor ice cream social. Cross country skiing, ski jumping, ice fishing, speedskating, winterized volleyball in the snow, softball on ice, or bocce ball on ice await winter enthusiasts. Pageantry and color surround the coronations of King Boreas, the lovely Queen of Snows and the Junior as well as Senior Citizen Royal Court.

Spirit of fun and excitement generated during the 1880's has been carried along in present ways, annually transforming Saint Paul into the winter fun capital of the world. Be sure to schedule several days in Saint Paul, February 1-10.

cancer answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Dear Cancer Answers:

I have had several skin cancers removed surgically in the last ten years. I read an article about a salve that can be used on skin cancers. If more skin cancer spots appear in the future, I would prefer to be able to use a salve rather than have additional surgery. Can you tell me something about this salve?

P.B.

Dear P.B.:

There are a number of salve-type treatments used for skin cancer, all of which are prescription drugs that can only be used under a doctor's supervision.

Each patient and each skin cancer must be treated individually and doctors must consider many factors in deciding which form of treatment is best in each case.

If you develop another spot of skin cancer, ask your doctor whether a salve-type treatment would be appropriate.

Dear Cancer Answers:

Is there any chance that I'm radioactive now that I've had a radium implant for uterine cancer? I had the device removed several weeks ago but my friends and relatives still seem hesitant to come visit me. I just want to make sure it's ok for them to come visit. Is it silly to worry about this?

Adele

Dear Adele:

Many people wonder if they are radioactive after the radiation source has been removed. The answer is NO. There is no radiation hazard to you or anyone near once the applicator has been removed.

You should encourage your friends and relatives to come for a visit. If they are still fearful or have questions, suggest that they call or write the Cancer Information Service, 2750 Park Avenue, Minneapolis, MN 55407, for more information. In Minnesota, call toll-free, 1-800-582-5262. In North or South Dakota, the toll-free number is 1-800-328-5188.

Dear Cancer Answers:

My brother-in-law has been diagnosed with cancer, and it seems to be affecting his whole family. My nephew even seems to be withdrawn, and this was a family that always seemed so close. This is as upsetting to me as my brother-in-law's illness. Are family problems common among cancer patients? Can anything be done to ease the situation?

Concerned

Dear Concerned:

Cancer affects not only the person who has the disease, but the entire family and even close friends. The emotional strain of living with an illness for which there are no certain answers naturally is upsetting and often creates tension.

If your brother-in-law has to go to the hospital frequently for treatments or requires a special diet or a lot of rest, these circumstances may be disruptive to the family's normal schedule. Such a disruption can make family members feel less secure. There may be financial concerns if treatments are not covered by insurance or if your brother-in-law is out of work for an extended period of time. His share of the physical work around the house also has to be taken on by other family members who will feel both physical and emotional strain.

Understanding, openness and communication are necessary, both within the family and among friends and relatives. In time, families of cancer patients often are able to adapt and grow closer as a result of their shared experience. Consulting a hospital social worker or joining a support group of people in similar circumstances can help during this period of adjustment.

If you would like further information on support groups and services for cancer patients, call the Cancer Information Service toll-free. The number is 1-800-582-5262 in Minnesota and 1-800-328-5188 in North Dakota and South Dakota.

Half Of New Jobs To Be White Collar

U.S. economy will create nearly 20 million new jobs by 1990, according to projections published by the bureau of labor statistics of the U.S. department of labor. Well over half will be in white-collar occupations — professional and technical workers, managers and sales and clerical workers.

These projections were produced by BLS as part of its biennial occupational outlook program. Two major BLS publications from this program, the occupational outlook handbook and occupational projections and training data are scheduled for publication in the spring.

According to the BLS projections, clerical workers, which include bank tellers, bookkeepers, cashiers, secretaries and typists, constitute the largest and fastest growing white-collar group. Between 1978 and 1990, employment growth in these occupations is expected to generate 4.8 million jobs.

New developments in computers, office machines and dictating equipment will greatly affect employment in many occupations within this group. As computers are used more extensively to store information and perform billing, payroll and other calculations, employment of file clerks and many types of office machine operators will level off or decline. At the same time, however, the need for computer and peripheral equipment operators will increase.

Technological innovations are not expected to affect many clerical workers whose jobs involve a high degree of personal contact. Significant employment growth, for example, is anticipated for secretaries, typists and receptionists.

Professional and technical occupations include many highly trained workers, such as scientists and engineers, medical practitioners, teachers, entertainers, pilots and accountants. By 1990, employment in this group is expected to increase by 2.6 million.

Greater efforts in energy production, transportation, and environmental protection is expected to result in growing demand for scientists, engineers, and technicians. Medical professions are expected to grow as health services expand. The demand for workers to develop and utilize computer resources also is projected to grow. Not all professional jobs are equally promising, however. For example, despite a growing demand for lawyers, competition for jobs is expected to intensify due to a burgeoning supply of law graduates.

About 2.1 million new jobs are expected to be generated for managers over the 1978-90 period. Changes in business size and organization have resulted in differing trends for self-employed and salaried managers. The number of self-employed business managers will continue to decline as large corporations and chain operations increasingly dominate many areas of business. Some small businesses, such as quick-service groceries and fast-food restaurants, still will provide opportunities for self-employment, however. The demand for salaried managers is expected to continue to grow as firms increasingly depend on trained management specialists, particularly in highly technical areas of operation.

Employment growth of sales workers is expected to generate about 1.6 million jobs. Much of this growth will be due to expansion in the retail trade industry, which employs nearly one-half of these workers. The demand for both full-and part-time sales workers in retail trade is expected to increase as the growing population requires more shopping centers and stores. Despite the use of labor savings merchandizing techniques such as computerized checkout counters, more stores and longer operating hours will cause employment to increase.

Blue-collar occupations — craft workers, operatives, and laborers — are expected to account for only about one-quarter of the Nation's employment growth by 1990. Employment growth of the highly skilled, craft worker group is expected to add 2.5 million jobs to the economy. Employment in nearly all construction trades is expected to grow, but particularly rapid increase are anticipated for heavy equipment operators, electricians, ironworkers, and cement masons. Among mechanics and repairers, employment will increase most among workers who repair computers, office machines, air-conditioners, and industrial machinery. In contrast, the long-run employment decline in the railroad industry will result in declines in employment for some craft occupations concentrated in that industry, such as railroad shop workers. Because of advances in printing technology, very little growth if anticipated in the printing crafts.

About 2.2 million new jobs are expected in operative occupations over the 1978-79 period. The projected slow growth of some manufacturing industries, along with improved production processes, will hold down the employment growth for many of these workers. Employment of textile operatives, for example, is expected to decline as more machinery is used in the textile industry. On the other hand, employment of transport operatives such as truckdrivers and intercity bus drivers will increase because of the growing need for transportation services.

Employment of nonfarm laborers, which include construction laborers and freight and stock handlers, is expected to grow slowly as machinery increasingly replaces manual labor.

Service workers — including cooks and chefs, cosmetologists, police officers, practical nurses, and child care workers — is expected to be the fastest growing occupational group, generating 3.8 million new jobs. Factors underlying the projected rapid growth include the rising demand for medical care and the greater need for cleaning and protective services. In addition, rising levels of income should cause more frequent use of food and personal services, such as restaurants and beauty salons. Service workers who are employed in private households will decline despite a rising demand for their services because low wages and the strenuous nature of the work make these occupations unattractive to many people.

Employment of farm workers — including farmers and farm operators as well as farm laborers — will continue to decline as farm productivity raises and the number of farms continues to fall.

Employment growth will represent only part of the demand for workers by 1990. The need to replace workers who die, retire, or leave the labor force for other reasons is expected to produce 47 million job openings between 1978 and 1990, more than twice as many created by employment growth. Even in declining occupations, therefore, jobs will be available.

CAN WE SAFELY DISPOSE OF NUCLEAR WASTES?

By Floyd Culler

Floyd Culler, president of the Electric Power Research Institute, spent 30 years with Oak Ridge National Laboratory. He has been elected to the National Academy of Engineering, and is a fellow of the American Institute of Chemists.

Floyd Culler

There are ways to dispose of radioactive wastes safely which have been technically demonstrated at small scale. The science and technology is available to permanently sequester the wastes. But the controlling factor is public perception and acceptance of the possible technical solutions. Public knowledge and understanding of the issues are, in part, confused by many wrong impressions about the nature of and the potential hazards of radioactive wastes, when fixed as insoluble glass and stored in small zones of geologically stable parts of the earth.

I think that the best solution for disposal of high-level waste starts with making insoluble glass or ceramics from the residues produced, following reprocessing of fuel from nuclear plants. These glasses, protected in corrosion-resistant containers, can be placed in carefully selected geological formations, such as salt beds or dry enclosures in granite rocks. The reprocessing step removes valuable plutonium and uranium from the wastes and returns these fuels to a reactor where they undergo fission to generate power.

If wastes are stored in deep salt beds, there is no problem of contaminating normal water supplies, because all of the normally used water occurs in the first few hundred feet below the surface of the earth, particularly in regions where disposal is considered. These deeply buried, stable, and geologically protected beds are most useful where they are from 1,000 to 3,000 feet deep and are sandwiched between hundreds of feet of very tight layers of shale. Many such natural deposits exist which extend for thousands of square miles. The layers of shale, salt, and again, shale were put down by the great inland seas 300 million years ago. Obviously, the salt beds would not exist if water flowed there, because salt is soluble. The salt is protected from water intrusion, glaciers of the ice ages, and surface floods by thick layers of shale. The salt layer itself is very slightly plastic (somewhat like candle wax); if dug or cracked, it will reseal itself.

Actual subsurface area required for nuclear power waste disposal is very, very small. If the United States were to build 1,000 reactors in the next 20 years, which is now extremely unlikely, the accumulated wastes from all of these plants could be stored in about 1,200 acres of salt under the ground. Compared to this requirement, one single deposit of bedded salt covers about 10,000 square miles, or 6,400,000 acres.

In these 1,200 acres, the nuclear wastes would be contained in six-inch cylinders, ten feet long, placed on 25-foot centers, so that most of the area would be occupied by salt between the canisters. So, there certainly is no problem insofar as availability of a safe disposal site is concerned.

There are other formations, such as granites, tuffs, limestone caverns and, for low-level wastes, the tight shales which will protect radioactive wastes.

Unreprocessed fuel elements from the reactors now operating can be stored very safely in heavily protected water-cooled, or air-cooled, basins at or near the earth's surface. The current practice of storing unreprocessed power fuel is the necessary first step in an acceptable nuclear waste disposal scheme.

But I think the safest course of all is to reprocess the fuel elements after they have been removed from the nuclear reactor. The residual plutonium and uranium can then be used to produce more nuclear fission power. This would remove those long-lived radioactive elements, leaving only those shorter-lived fission products which decay to innocuous levels in 1,000 years or less. Such innocuous levels would be about equal to a natural source, such as the uranium ores on our Colorado Plateau.

Choose Life

A new discrimination is rising...

a discrimination based on prejudice against persons whose lives may create problems for individuals or society — the unwanted unborn or newborn child, the elderly, the critically ill, the handicapped.

Victims of this new discrimination are threatened by:
ABORTION — more than seven million unborn babies have been killed since the Supreme Court legalized abortion on demand on January 22, 1973 and this mentality is leading to a growing acceptance of INFANTICIDE and EUTHANASIA.

We do need to find solutions to the tragic human problems facing America. But should we kill — should we violate individual human rights and justice to solve them? Can't we devote the resources of this great nation to solving our human problems humanely?

Our nation has come to a crossroads: We must choose either life or death as a way of solving social problems.

Your commitment to life cannot help the victims of the new discrimination unless you put it into action to defend life.

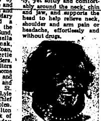
NEWS OF HEALTH

There's good news for millions of Americans who suffer headaches or muscle tension due to neck pains or whiplash injuries.

A new cervical collar has been developed by Dr. J. DeWitt Fox, a prominent California neurosurgeon and medical director of the Neurological Center in Los Angeles.

The new collar fits snugly, yet softly and comfortably around the neck, chin and jaw, and supports the head to help relieve neck, shoulder and arm pain or headache, effortlessly and without drugs.



YOU CAN SURROUND YOURSELF WITH HIGH FASHION even if you have to wear a pain-relieving cervical collar.

Molded of contoured polyurethane foam, it is flexible enough to allow free movement of the head without interfering with eating or talking, yet firm enough to take the weight of the head off tense and painful neck muscles.

Best of all, it eases pain of a more esthetic sort, too: it comes in a variety of fashionable and colorful covers — in contrast with the old "eye-sore" collar. The new Fashion Whiplash Collar has no unsightly fasteners, and its color covers can be coordinated with clothing and decorated with pins, jewels, ornaments or medallions.

Your doctor, or a medical supply house, can give you more information on this new Fashion Whiplash Collar or, for a free booklet and more details, you can call Dr. Fox direct, toll-free, by dialing, 1-800-421-4210. California callers can phone, also toll-free, on 1-800-252-0500.

John Lang Retires From Land O'Lakes Hatchery

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

"I'm going to miss this place," was the frank admission of John Lang as he returned to his office at the Land O'Lakes hatchery building in Thief River Falls to submit to our interview. It was his second day of retirement after having been with the cooperative continuously since 1946.

"Although I'll have to admit I did enjoy the day off yesterday. It looks like I'm going to be plenty busy for quite awhile — there are enough jobs piled up around home. After all these years of saying I didn't have time to get them done, I haven't quite figured out how to avoid doing them now that I don't have to go to work every morning."

The work that John went to every morning always involved work with the poultry operation of Land O'Lakes, Inc. his retirement last week came at a time when he was manager of the hatchery and turkey processing plant, although the hatchery has not been in operation this year. Equipment is being sold and John has been handling the sales.

It was back in 1943 that John went to work for Land O'Lakes hatchery. "There was no question that I started at the bottom," he smiles. "There just wasn't any job lower than cleaning the pans on the brooder batteries, and that's what I did. The hatchery was located in what is now the Wilson Brothers building annex."

Lang was only with the cooperative for a month before he was drafted into the army. "I had sort of wanted to go," he said, "and I guess the clerk of the selective service office knew that and put me up on the list." He spent three years in military service, half of that time in the European theatre of operations.

After his discharge in 1946, John came back to the hatchery and was soon assigned the tasks of selecting chicken and turkey breeding stock and testing breeder hen and production flocks throughout the hatchery area. Only two years later, when manager Roy Sheller left Land O'Lakes to go into the hatchery business on his own, Lang was named manager of the hatchery.

For a dozen years or so he alternated in the manager's job and as turkey service representative, covering the area from the Canadian border to Detroit Lakes and the North Dakota border east to Cass Lake. He called on growers, helped them with their problems, discussed marketing and became acquainted with many turkey producers. Also working in management at one time or another during the period were Al Wilcox and Bill Duke.

In 1960 Lang was also named manager of the processing plant located on Nora street and Pennington

RETIREMENT TIME has arrived for John Lang, manager of the hatchery and turkey processing plant operated by Land O'Lakes, Inc., in Thief River Falls. The hatchery here has been closed and its volume consolidated into a new hatchery built elsewhere, and a new manager has arrived to handle the processing operation. Lang has been with the cooperative since 1943, and after service in World War II has been employed by Land O'Lakes continuously since 1946.

Utilities Rates Change In City

February 1 billing by the Thief River Falls utilities department will be the first under the load management system that is being instituted by the department.

The system is intended essentially for large electric users and will permit the city to reduce its cost of purchasing power by shaving the peak demand for electricity. The city council accepted the proposed electric rate adjustments January 8 and they will take effect with the February 1 billing.

Rate for residences with electric heat will be three cents per KWH for the first 400 KWH, $2.75 per KWH for the next 400 KWH and a $1.50 customer charge added each month. For residences with 80 per cent interruptible load shedding, excess KWH beyond the 800 listed will be 2.3 cents. For those with 100 per cent interruptible load shedding, the excess rate will be 2.10 cents. Former electric heat rate was 1.77 cents per KWH.

Jerry Wigness, city clerk, explained in a letter to city employees that the rate adjustments were necessitated primarily by an increase in the cost of power the city purchases from Western Area Power administration and Red Lake Electric cooperative.

There will no longer be a 350 KWH block of power at reduced rates for the homeowner with an electric hot water heater, Wigness also noted. For residences using 500 KWH of electricity per month, the basic rate will be $16.25 beginning with the February 1 billing, Previous rate for 500 KWH was $14.69 without an electric hot water heater or $11.62 with such a unit.

The new 500 KWH rate is based on a $1.50 customer charge per month, first 400 KWH at three cents ($12) and next 100 KWH at 2.75 cents ($2.75). The $1.50 customer charge plus the $12 plus the $2.75 equals the $16.25 rate. A charge of 2.75 cents per KWH will continue for each KWH in excess of the first 400 used at

Heart Fund In County Seeks $2,858 Goal

Heart fund goal for Pennington county in 1980 is $2,658, it was announced by Ernest Hilkey, 1980 district 1 Heart fund chairman.

In February, American Heart association, Minnesota affiliate volunteers will donate their time and energy to collect money and distribute information on heart diseases. Funds collected will be used for the Heart association's many programs in research, education and community services.

"Deaths due to heart disease continue to decline in Minnesota," Hilkey said. "However, heart disease is still the state's number one killer, causing 51 per cent of all deaths."

American Heart association, Minnesota affiliate, is a statewide health agency and is part of the American association which is represented by 55 affiliates in all states and territories of the U.S. It is the only statewide voluntary health agency dedicated to the reduction of premature death and disability caused by heart and blood vessel diseases.

Elect Tunberg To Board Of First Federal

Roger A. Tunberg, co-owner of Tunberg Motor company in Thief River Falls, was reelected to a three-year term on the board of directors of First Federal savings and loan association at the annual meeting held recently.

Milton Reierson, president of the association, reported that the firm had provided loans for 55 new homes in the area and assisted in the sale and purchase of 128 previously built homes in spite of adverse building conditions during the fiscal year.

In the past five years First Federal has grown from $24 million in assets to nearly $50 million. During the past year the association made loans totaing $6.9 million and interest paid to depositors was $2,875,000.

In addition to Tunberg, other members of the board of directors include Reierson, Charles Ness, John Penn and Donald L. Olson.

First Federal operates branches in Red Lake Falls and Roseau as well as the home office in Thief River Falls, and has an application pending before the Federal Home Loan bank in Des Moines, Iowa, requesting permission to start a branch in the vicinity of First street and highway 59 in the south part of Thief River Falls.

Dorothy Hanson Is Teacher Of Year

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

It was a complete surprise to Dorothy Hanson when she was told she was named teacher of the year.

She will now begin work on the booklet each teacher selected is required to produce, which consists of compiling letters of recommendation from co-workers, various newspaper clippings, and other information concerning her involvement in various activities in the community. Once the book is completed it is sent to Minneapolis where the Minnesota teacher of the year is selected, and from there the national teacher is selected. The state teacher of the year is honored at the Minnesota state fair.

Teachers are also required to submit their philosophy of teaching within their book. In that philosophy, Dorothy has started that she hopes to be a representation of the many teachers who influence the lives of children.

She obtained her two-year teaching degree at Moorhead when she was 19, and finished her schooling with a degree at Bemidji. She taught at St. Hilaire in the beginning of her teaching career before coming to teach at Thief River Falls as a first grade teacher. Dorothy, who now teaches kindergarten at Northrop elementary school in Thief River Falls, feels that kindergarten-age children are eager to learn. "They are pliable and cooperative," she said.

Throughout a regular school day, Dorothy is involved with children, as they read, write and play. Children participate in reading readiness exercises where they learn alphabet sounds and the value of numbers, story-reading, art, music and follow-up activities to help reinforce the students' learning ability.

"I believe a teacher should have a variety of outside interests too, making her a more rounded person," she said.

Dorothy is a member of Trinity Lutheran church in Thief River Falls along with being a member of the Trinity Lutheran church women's circle. She is a member of the Pennington county historical society, and a charter member of the arts council. She is also a member of "Antique Addicts," a member-study club for antique lovers. Some of her favorite antique items she has collected are dolls. So far, she has restored nearly 25 antique dolls, with the oldest dating

A new health, athletic and exercise club for the Thief River Falls community — T.R.F. Racquetball club at 2020 Greenwood street — is well underway with construction of its new building and owner-operator Tom Ritchie is looking toward an opening around April 1.

The new building located east of highway 59 in the southeast part of the city is approximately 114x100 feet in size and will include four regulation racquetball courts and a number of attendant health and exercise facilities.

"Racquetball will be one of our main attractions," Ritchie said, "but I would like the public to realize that what we will have to offer will be much more than that. We will have saunas and whirlpool bath, ladies' exercise classes, Olympic weight training and exercise equipement for body condition as well as body building.

"Men's and ladies' locker rooms will be carpeted, there will be viewing galleries to permit watching play on the courts, a pro shop selling top grade equipment and clothing, rental equipment and clinics and lessons in racquetball as well as supervision in exercising and weight training."

IT WAS CRAZY, but some downtown merchants carried out the plans for a sidewalk sale Saturday for the first winter Crazy Day promotion. Temperatures dipped to about 25 degrees below zero over night — the coldest night of the winter to date — and stayed well below the zero mark throughout the day. Hardy shoppers at least looked hurriedly at the outdoor items, but most were content to shop indoors where most Crazy Day bargains could be found under more comfortable conditions. In the photo above, clerk Carol Ferber of the J.C. Penney company appropriately arranged snowmobile suits on one of the outdoor racks while working a morning shift in the frigid weather. Crazy Day was one event in the Winter Wildness weekend which included a snowmobile parade and dance on the ice Saturday evening, fishing derby and snowmobile radar and slalom races Sunday and arrival of the I-500 snowmobile race here today. Racers will be given a half hour to repair their sleds outdoors today, then leave tomorrow morning from the starting line east of the city and south of highway 1.

Volunteers To Return D-Day Pledge Cards

D-Day volunteers are urged to return signed D-Day pledge cards by the "don't smoke" day sponsors, the Minnesota lung association and American cancer society, Minnesota division.

Statewide D-Day chairman Carl Knutson says, "Our sincerest thanks goes to the Minnesota newspapers, radio-TV stations, physicians, dentists, students and countless volunteers who helped promote D-Day across the state."

He continues, "all our D-Day pledge forms, display stands and posters were distributed prior to January 24 (D-Day)."

Dr. Knutson asks everyone involved in the D-Day health project to collect completed pledge forms and return them to D-Day Headquarters, 614 Portland Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55102.

Knutson explains, "Half our project has been a smashing success. Now we must work on the other half — Getting the pledges back.

"The signed pledge cards provide us with our only means of evaluating our effort. They also enable us to do a random sampling survey of D-Day quitters next fall."

New Passenger Record Set At T.R.F. Airport

Although plagued by heavy fog in late December when an estimated 300 boardings were lost due to flight cancellations, Republic Airlines at Thief River Falls set a new record of 13,492 passengers boarding planes at the regional airport here in 1979.

The new mark shattered the previous high of 12,142 set in 1978 by 1,350 as every month of 1979 except December eclipsed the boarding numbers of a year previous. In December there were 1,026 boardings as compared with 1,188 a year ago. Had it not been for flight cancelations due to fog and storm conditions, December would also have easily surpassed 1978 statistics.

Overall the airline reported a 14 per cent traffic increase for 1979 as passenger miles reached 3.8 billion, compared with 3.4 billion a year ago. Passenger boardings rose nine per cent to 12.2 million from 11.1 million in 1978.

Cargo ton miles — including freight, mail and express — were up 15 per cent to 32.3 million from 28.1 million. Graydon Hall, senior vice president in charge of marketing for the airlines, said that December traffic was severely affected by adverse weather in the peak Christmas holiday period with many airports in the upper midwest closed by fog.

Lang Retires As Manager Of Hatchery

avenue. Improvements have been made there each year since the former egg processing and milk and ice cream plant was converted to turkey processing in 1957. A new office area there is now being finished and the new manager, Howard Espenson from Aitkin, and the accounting staff from the present hatchery will soon be headquartered there.

"When we were processing in the basement of the hatchery years ago, we had a tough time processing 2,000 to 3,000 birds a day," Lang said. "Now we handle four times that number or more. The freezer holds eight truckloads of processed turkeys and in a 24-hour period we can bring 200,000 pounds of turkey from live delivery to frozen at zero degrees."

The hatchery had similar growth until the decision was made to economize by consolidating hatchery operations at a new facility elsewhere. From a combined hatch of turkeys and chickens of about 20,000 a week in the late 1940's, the hatchery had gone to hatches of 85,000 to 100,000 turkeys a week several years ago.

Changes during the years included addition of more and better equipment, better insemination procedures for egg fertility in breeder flocks, improved processing and storage facilities and the change to white turkeys from the traditional bronze type. The white birds have the advantage of having no dark pigment in the feathers which, on the bronze varieties, would cause discoloration in the skin and reduce the grade of the processed bird. Better picking machines and scalding equipment were also mentioned by Lang.

In his turkey service representative job, John recalls a number of auto trips to St. Paul with an ailing turkey, arriving there when the University of Minnesota's diagnostic laboratory opened in the morning. "Diseases, nutrition, over crowding — there were a lot of ways to have problems in turkey raising and it was my job to help—where I could," John explained.

"Once in awhile we would get caught away from home by a snow storm that would cause us to stay over night," he said. "I can remember one time coming back from a Twin Cities meeting with three cars of producers and plant people and getting snowbound in Mahnomen. And when a truck left here with 20,000 poults and headed for Dakota when it was 30 below zero, we worried a little. I don't believe we ever had any major losses."

Several contract haulers had accidents with truckloads of turkeys, but in nearly all cases the birds were confined and not turned loose on the countryside. More often birds made their escape attempts near the processing plant and turkeys wandering about the east side of town for a couple of hours are not uncommon during the processing season.

John has served Land O'Lakes under four presidents of the cooperative — John Brandt, Frank Stone, Dave Henry and Ralph Hofstad. He has supervised about 150 employees at the processing plant and up to 30 at the hatchery, and maintains that the most difficult part of his job was the necessity to terminate a person's employment when, for one reason or another, they were unable to do the work.

Lang has been a member of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Lions organizations as well as the Minnesota and Midwest Poultry federation, North Dakota and National Turkey federations and the Minnesota Turkey Growers association. He was previously active in the local saddle club and still has eight to 10 horses and ponies at his 40-acre farm three miles northwest of Thief River Falls. John also serves on the agri-business committee of the chamber of commerce.

He is married to the former Bess Roisland and they have a daughter, Anita, who is a registered nurse employed by the Inter-County Nursing service. His retirement plans call for refinishing some furniture, working with the farm yard and doing some Lake of the Woods walleye fishing.

A retirement party attended by about 30 friends and company representatives was held at Lon's restaurant last Wednesday evening, and a gathering for about 40 employees and former workers Wednesday afternoon at the hatchery officer.

Penny Orloff Concert Gets Good Review

by Phyllis Dalager

We were smitten! We fell in love with her! The little Russian-Gypsy, Penny Orloff, presented to us on Tuesday night, January 16, one of the best concerts in a long time. There was one thing Penny was not . . . Penny was not "stuffy".

This little young lady in crepe soled shoes, long black skirt, flowing black hair, flirtatious eyes, and broad smile charmed us not only with her beautiful and powerful voice, her convincing acting ability, and her ease and gracefulness on the stage, but also with her impromto stories of her Gypsy mother and grandmother, her life as a vegetable cook in France before she went "straight" and went to Julliard school of music in New York city, and other stories.

This vivacious soprano entertained us with Italian opera songs, French folk songs, and with folk songs from Russia, all songs that are deeply rooted in the land. There was much variety in her choice of music. Her mood was sometimes tender as when she sang "Go 'Way from My Window" arr. by Niles. At other times she sang with brilliance and excitement.

Key Duryea, the expert young accompanist, added vitality and warmth which complemented the soloist in every number. I was especially thrilled with the way in which he played Rachmaninoff.

Thank you, Penney Orloff and Ken Duryea, for an evening long to be remembered.

Natural Family Planning Is Series Topic

Natural family planning will be the subject of a series of two monthly classes taught by the Couple to Couple league at St. Bernard's Catholic church in Thief River Falls. Classes will run from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m. and be held on Sunday, February 3 and Sunday, March 2.

Method taught by the league is a system of fertility awareness called the sympto-thermal method in which several symptoms of female fertility are used in a cross-checking way for the greatest reliability and confidence, according to the series sponsors.

The league says the system can achieve an effectiveness at the 99 per cent level and is definitely not the same as calendar rhythm. Instructors of the classes at St. Bernard's church will be Jim and Pat Kempenich, league certified teaching couple.

The non-profit league is an interfaith organization which emphasizes that natural methods of conception regulation can be practiced for all the fertile years without risk of danger to health. For further information or pre-registration call 681-1711.

PIONEER TALES

from the Pennington County
Historical Society

Happy 1980!

Pennington county will be 70 years old in May, 1980, and this year the county historical society is looking for many new things to happen.

The society was organized in 1938 and has operated continuously since that time, although inactive for about five years due to lack of funds. It was reorganized in 1970.

On Aug. 8, 1976, the historical society dedicated its pioneer village with Mayor Bob Carlson presenting the society with the deed for the grounds. Most of the city council members attended the dedication which was a great day in the history of the society. Since that time many buildings have been added, including the Burlington Northern depot which was a highlight of the 1979 year and which will be used for museum displays.

Second volume of the Pennington county history book is now being compiled but the flow of family histories has been slow of late. Winter is a good time to reminisce and write about some of the interesting items from days past. I hope book chairmen in the townships will remind their friends and neighbors to write their family histories.

Requests to do a second volume of county histories have been received from a number of people but help is needed from the public to get the job done. Right now we have more orders for the second volume than histories to put in it. The first volume has been sold out for some time.

This is a good project for our society to have going. We are interested to have the pioneer stories recorded while those making the history can still recall the events. We hope to run some of the stories in this column later.

During the past month we have been working with clothing contributed to the society. Some of it was worn before 1900 and it should make an interesting display at the village this summer.

Last year we had several Sunday afternoon meetings with speakers including Lenore Johnson of the Norman county historical society; Dreng Bjornaraa of St. Paul, a pioneer resident and speaker at the Sons of Norway picnic; and Melvin Wedul, professor emeritus at Winona state university and author of a book entitled "In Grandma's Woods".

Two church services were also held and the museum was open six days a week. Eight or nine people served as volunteer hosts or hostesses in the different buildings during weekends when the village was open.

As our village grows, we hope for even greater activity this year.

Mylo Carlson Herd Tops In County DHIA

Jerry Hamre, supervisor of the Pennington county dairy herd improvement association lists the following herds as top in the association for November.

In first place is Mylo Carlson, whose herd produced an average of 49.8 pounds of milk and 1.87 pounds of butterfat; followed by Duane Krohn, 47.9 and 1.82; Knute Nesland, 44.1 and 1.62; Clarence Swanson, 37.3 and 1.47; Duane Vatsaas, 36.7 and 1.38; Martin Hanson, 36.2 and 1.37; Warren and Lowell Hamrick, 34.9 and 1.48; and Chester & Steve Gast, 34.3 and 1.40.

Herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd. Amount of milk or butterfat produced is averaged out over all the cows. This gives the farmer a record of the earning power of the herd for the month. If too many dry cows are included in the herd, the average for the month may be low, even though the cows which are milking are high producers.

There were 28 DHIA herds and four owner-sampler herds on November test for a total of 32 herds on test. There were 27 cows that completed records with over 600 pounds of fat in 365 days or less.

he said.

"Racquetball itself is a great game because it takes very little time to learn how to play, provides excellent exercise and is an enjoyable sport. People of virtually any age can play."

Ritchie is a native of Bemidji where he graduated from high school in 1971 and was a member of the Lumberjacks wrestling team. He attended Itasca state community college for one year and then entered military service, serving from 1972 to 1974. While in the army he served 18 months as an athletic specialist, running racquetball programs at Homestead air force base in Florida. He also wrestled on army teams.

Following his discharge he enrolled in Bemidji state university and earned his bachelor of science degree in physical education and health in 1977. He taught in the Bemidji school system and at Redlake until the spring of 1979. Since that time he has been involved in planning and arrangements for the racquetball club here.

Ritchie and his wife Connie, the daughter of his high school physical education instructor, have a daughter Jennifer, age 8, and son Tommy, age 5. He likes to hunt and fish when time permits and is addicted to northwestern Minnesota and its recreational opportunities.

Further information on the club can be obtained by contacting Ritchie at 681-2130.

Utility Rates Increase For City Residents

the three-cent rate.

Under the 1980 rate structure, billing would be as follows: 800 KWH, $24.50; 1,000 KWH, $30; 1,500 KWH, $43.75; 1,800 KWH, $52; and 2,000 KWH, $57.50.

Residential water rates have also increased from $2.95 to $3.65 per month with the minimum use decreased from 3,000 gallons per month to 1,500 gallons per month. The new rate results in a charge of 82 cents per thousand gallons for the next 8,500 gallons and 90 cents per 1,000 for any water use in excess of 10,000 gallons.

Sewer rates were also increased from $1.35 to $1.55 per month with the charge per 1,000 gallons of water used increased from 25 cents to 30 cents.

Commercial users of electricity for heating must have the heat units metered separately and all new installations must have load control equipment installed for interruption during peak times, according to John T. Anderson, superintendent of utilities.

Energy charge will be 2.75 cents per KWH for the first 800 KWH per month, plus a $3 customer charge per month whether or not electricity is used. For customers with 100 per cent load shedding, KWH in excess of 800 will be billed at a 2.25 cents per KWH rate. For those with 80 per cent load shedding, the excess rate will be 2.35 cents.

Small general service commercial rate for customers who have not used more than 15,000 KWH per month for four consecutive months will be four cents for the first 1,000 KWH, three cents for the next 3,000 KWH and 2.75 cents for each KWH in excess of 4,000.

Mrs. Hanson Is Teacher Of The Year

back to 1890. She has also been a member of Delta Kappa Gamma since 1970, an honorary teacher's organization. She enjoys baking, traveling and sewing, she added.

"As a kindergarten teacher I believe that developing attitude is an important consideration. School must be a place where every child is accepted as he is, and where he feels comfortable among his peers."

Dorothy believes that suitable working conditions are an important asset in teaching. Many of the pleasant conditions she finds in her classroom at Northrop are the result of a good custodian, she said.

"A kindergarten classroom should be a warm friendly place where there are interesting and challenging things to do. A child must accept the responsibility of himself and his classmates. He will develop a positive attitude toward learning in a happy situation," she said.

A strong relationship between a child and nature is important, according to Dorothy, as she concluded with further statements from her teaching philosophy.

"We must teach these young children to be concerned for the beauties of nature, so that they are not destroyed for all time. As a child brings home a small tree to plant, he will nurture and watch it grow and gain an appreciation for the preservation of our trees and other natural resources," she said. "As he watches the robin building her nest he will learn that each little creature has its place in the scheme of things. We must show him the beauty of the Monarch butterfly, a snowflake, rain on the window, shadows on the lawn."

"A gift I received this year is an attractive picture of children with this saying — 'A teacher affects eternity — she never knows where her influence stops'. It hangs beside the mirror in my bedroom," she concluded.

Farmers Union Urges Vote In Beeferendum

"Every Minnesota beef and dairy producer should make it a point to register at their county ASCS office during the next week-and-a-half so they can vote in the upcoming national beef check-off referendum," Minnesota Farmers Union president Cy Carpenter said recently.

Beef and dairy producers across the country will vote on February 19-22 to decide if a mandatory check-off will be placed on all cattle, intended for slaughter in the U.S., to raise funds for a beef "research and promotion" pool.

Everyone who owned beef or dairy cattle in 1979 is eligible to vote in the upcoming referendum. However, they must first register to vote at their county Agricultural stabilization and conservation, (ASCS) office. That registration period will begin Monday (today) and will continue through Wednesday, February 6.

"All too often, only a small number of eligible farmers actually vote in these referendums which decide if millions of dollars will be collected from farmers," Carpenter said, noting that only six per cent of the eligible producers voted for a similar unsuccessful beef referendum in 1977. That referendum required a two-thirds majority approval of voters to pass, while through a change in the rules the new referendum only requires a simple majority.

If approved, the check-off on cattle would cost the nation's beef and dairy cattle producers an estimated $60 million during its first year. In Minnesota, producers would likely pay more than $1.5 million the first year.

In addition to beef, the check-off would apply to dairy cattle of any age sold for non-dairy purposes. "Dairymen thus have an important stake in the referendum and should make sure they register to vote," Carpenter said.

"We know there are supporters of this referendum and we know many farmers seriously question the cost and effectiveness of these programs. But the point is, all cattle producers should take part so that somebody else doesn't end up making a costly decision for them," Carpenter said. "It's entirely possible, if registration is no greater than the last time around, that as few as five per cent of the nation's cattlemen and dairy producers could make a decision that would be binding on everyone," he said.

Apply In Person To Register Misc. Vehicles

After February 1 truck and other miscellaneous vehicle owners in Minnesota should apply in person to register their vehicles to make sure they have 1980 registration stickers of license plates ready to put on the vehicles by the deadline of 12:01 a.m., Sunday, March 2.

Miscellaneous vehicles are trucks, trailers, vans, recreational vehicles, buses, motorcycles and motorized bicycles.

"If you mail in applications after February 1, applications may not be processed and returned by mail in time for the March 2 deadline," said Marlene Swanson, acting director of driver and vehicle services division of the Minnesota department of public safety.

To apply in person for vehicle registration, stop at any deputy registrar or at the driver and vehicle services division's main office in the transportation building near the State Capitol in St. Paul. The Twin Cities has 27 deputy registrar offices and each county has at least one.

For vehicles in the prorate class, a $2.50 late fee went into effect January 11 and must be added to the regular registration fee, Swanson, said. For other miscellaneous vehicles, the $2.50 penalty fee is due on any registration effective March 11.

Farm Energy Highlighted At Winter Shows

Energy for agriculture will be a point of discussion for visitors to the Red River Valley winter shows on at least four different days between February 22 and 29.

First, scheduled for Monday, February 25 in Kiehle auditorium at the college campus, will be a technical discussion by agricultural engineers of the University of Minnesota on alcohol as an agricultural fuel. This will be a presentation of the best facts that are known today.

A research project involving single or multiple farm production of alcohol and economical handling of the feedstuffs will be outlined. The university has been trying for several months to launch an alcohol producing and livestock feeding project using corn as the grain. It looks promising at this state and if plans come along, the project could get going this spring.

Second discussion of energy will be a half-hour presentation on American agriculture and the energy question by Gary Heichel of the University of Minnesota, St. Paul, who speaks at the crops and soils seminar on Wednesday, February 27.

Thursday, February 28 has been set aside as energy day and a number of demonstrations will be placed in the strickler arena for one day only. A diesel engine running on sunflower oil, an automobile running on 200-proof alcohol, a model of a farm-size alcohol production unit an information booth by the Minnesota energy agency and other demonstrations will be available for the public to see.

Another thrust with energy is scheduled for Friday, February 29, commencing at 9:30 a.m. in the auditorium of the ag research center at the Northwest experiment station. Gene Miller, ag engineer at the station, has pulled together an outline of facts on solar heating as we know it today and as such applies to the agricultural scene. Darryl Thayer of Redwing will be on hand to discuss the technical systems that are out today. Milo Hellickson, longtime solar expert from South Dakota state university, will present current agricultural systems. Ray Orendorf, farmer-builder, will present his experiences. Gene Miller will conduct a question and answer period.

Cold Weather Rule Prohibits Heat Shutoffs

Months of work by consumer groups, utility companies and state agencies were rewarded today as the Minnesota public service commission received final approval of its revised cold weather rule.

The rule, as it was approved by the state attorney general, prohibits winter heat shutoffs of utility customers unable to pay their utility bills.

"We were greatly aided in the development of this rule by the many people who appeared and testified at public hearings. The office of consumer services of the department of commerce, as well as several consumer groups, gave us considerable input as we listened to the needs of Minnesotans," said Commissioner Lillian Warren-Lazenberry.

Consumer services director Kris Sanda commented, "We're pleased that Minnesota consumers will now be getting the protection they need. The rule is a thorough, balanced approach, and contains assurances that it won't be abused."

"We heard a broad range of interests, from individuals through utility company representatives," commissioner Warren-Lazenberry added. "Their contributions helped make this a good rule."

The final rule will allow utility customers to state their inability to pay to their utility and be protected from shutoffs between October 15 and April 15. Customers who are on payment plans will also be shielded from disconnection.

If there are disputes regarding a customer's financial ability, or terms of payment schedule, the public service commission will hear and resolve those disputes.

The rule will now be sent to the state register for publication. It will become effective on February 11, but the commission is asking all Minnesota utilities to begin operating in conformity with the rule immediately.

Playing Patsy To Efficiency

Following comments were written by Richard Cohen in the Washington Post:

At the moment, the government of the United States is sending out checks to help some people pay their heating bills. The checks are going out whether the people want them or not, whether they need them or not, whether, in fact, they pay for heating or they don't. Anatole France would have understood. He is the French writer who observed that in France both the rich and the poor were forbidden to sleep under the bridges of Paris.

The checks went to persons living in nursing homes and insane asylums and shelters of various kinds. In Washington, the checks were received by women in the women's shelter and presumably men in the men's shelter and maybe some people incarcerated in penal institutions — a phrase I once heard for being in the slammer.

One check was sent, for instance, to a mentally ill patient at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Washington. The patient's brother-in-law was quoted in the paper wondering at the logic of it all, thus missing a wonderful opportunity to question who, in this case, was really crazy.

The government's explanation for all this is that it is saving time and probably money. It would have taken too long and probably have cost too much to have culled the eligible poor — those who pay their own heating bills — from the ineligible poor. Winter was coming on, and some people needed the money. Therefore, the humane and efficient thing to do was to send everyone the money. This could be called the shotgun approach to welfare. If you sent out enough checks, you were bound to hit someone who is eligible.

The trouble here is that this is not the first time the government has worshipped the twin gods of efficiency and humanitarianism and come up with a sham. It happens all the time, and it happens most frequently with welfare programs, where we are told that a certain amount of cheating has to be tolerated. The argument is usually that it would cost too much and take too much time to eradicate all cheating and that the money to do that would come from the welfare program itself. It is as they say counterproductive.

This is pretty much the same argument used to explain why for years almost no attempt was made to collect on student loans. What you were told was that it would cost more to collect on the bad debts than the debts themselves were worth. Similarly, many local governments make no real attempt to collect on bad checks of less than, say, $100. They say it's just not worth the time and money.

Taken individually, the explanations always make sense. They appeal to our desire for efficiency and the liberal urge most of us have to provide welfare for those who need it. If that doesn't do it, you get the ultimate argument, which is that you care more about some welfare chislers than you do about all those who need welfare. With that, you shrink guiltily away.

But after a while the examples add up, and you get the impression that you're some sort of fool. You're the idiot who pays off government loans, and you're the jerk who makes good on bad checks, and you've got some sort of outdated notion that only the deserving should get welfare.

What suffers in the end is public trust in the programs. People think they are being mocked, ripped off and that their government does not care how it spends their money. This is what the relative of the mental patient meant when he questioned the logic of it all. He sent back the check, but most others will keep theirs, and many will have a good laugh at the government's expense.

This is a cost the government does not seem to take into account when it talks about efficiency. Call it the cost of public confidence. Call it anything you want, but what it comes down to is that feeling in your stomach when you see pictures of a man — just one man — parking a Cadillac at the curb and going into a liquor store to cash a welfare check. You feel somehow that you've been made a patsy, and no amount of explanations about efficiency and good intentions will make up for that.

All this is not to say that the government should not have sent those heating checks. Maybe there was no other way to do it. But someone should have thought ahead, started earlier, maybe spent some money to hire some people to go through the files, made some phone calls to find out who should get the money and who should not.

Instead, the government took the quickest and cheapest way out, weighing everything but the damage done to public confidence in welfare programs. In the end, the programs themselves will suffer, which is just another way of saying that this sort of thing will wind up hurting those it is supposed to help.

There's an expression for this kind of thinking, and someone in the government ought to learn it. It goes like this: penny wise and pound foolish.

We Apologize, Teenagers

The following article was contributed to us by one of our readers and originally appeared in a Bible Baptist church publication:

We made two big mistakes, and we're sorry.

We introduced you to American history in such glowing terms that you misrepresented it.

We told you this country was "carved out of wilderness," and it was not. It was dug and hoed and chopped and scratched and clawed out of wilderness, by barehanded men who asked nothing for nothing.

So you had no way of knowing that similar hard work would be demanded of you if the dream was to be perpetuated.

Secondly, we told you "what a wonderful thing it is to be an American."

We neglected to tell you what a difficult and demanding and dangerous thing it is to be an American.

We promised you security. We left you nothing to fight for. We promised you that you would be cared for whether you worked or not, and so left you nothing to work for.

A man has to prove himself a man somehow. So you did it by beating up each other or attacking little girls or stealing cars or sampling narcotics.

So it is our fault, and we are sorry.

I think, however, that it is not too late to set you straight. I am going to let you hear now from a juvenile court judge in Denver, Colorado, named Philip B. Gilliam. He has seen what's happened to you. He knows what's good for you. This specific advice is his: "Go home!"

He says, "Always we hear the plaintive cry of the teenager: 'What can we do? Where can we go?'

"The answer is, Go home!

"Hang the storm windows, paint the woodwork, rake the leaves, mow the lawn, shovel the walk.

"Wash the car, learn to cook, scrub some floors.

"Repair the sink, build a boat, get a job.

"Help your minister. Visit the sick. Assist the poor. Study your lessons.

"Then when you are through and not too tired, read a book.

"Your parents do not owe you entertainment. Your city or village does not owe you recreational facilities. The world does not owe you a living.

"You owe the world something.

"You owe the world your time and energy and talents so that no one will be at war or in poverty or sick or lonely again.

"In plain words, grow up! Quit being a crybaby! Get out of your dream world and develope a backbone, not a wishbone.

"You're supposed to be mature enough to accept some of the responsibility your parents have carried for years. They have nursed, protected, helped, begged, excused, and tolerated you, and denied themselves needed comforts so that you could have every benefit.

"This they have done gladly, for you are their dearest treasure. But now you have no right to expect them to bow to every whim and fancy just because selfish ego instead of common sense dominates your personality, your thinking, and your requests. Start acting like a man or a lady! Grow up!

"And go home!"

Borrowed Nonsense:

The Texas multi-millionaire paid $150,000 for a mynah bird to send as a gift for his mother. The miraculous bird could sing several operatic arias and had a vocabulary of 4,000 words drawn from several languages.

The day after Christmas he called his mother and inquired what she thought of the bird. "Delicious," she replied.

Thin Ice Poses Unique Problem For This Year

Minnesota faces a unique January safety problem this year. Commissioner of the Minnesota department of public safety, John P. Sopsic says that thin ice or open water is causing an unusual number of accidents.

In most winters past, the ice was measured in feet thick. In southern Minnesota particularly, the water is opening and if the warm weather continues, the condition will be statewide.

According to the Minnesota department of natural resources, there have been 10 confirmed ice fatalities since Nov. 15, 1979. That is far above normal, states Kim Elverum, boat and water safety coordinator for the DNR, adding that the open water should be a grim remainder of what it happening.

There were several New Year's weekend deaths, not necessarily connected to ice fishing. In St. Paul, there was no fatality but a St. Paul parks and recreation department vehicle broke through the ice near the Como park pavilion as the operator prepared to clear snow from the lake for holiday ice skaters.

Fisherman normally experience the biggest problem on ice but that may be changed this year. Youngsters playing on lake or river ice don't have the ice experience that fishermen do. They should be reminded by parents to stay off.

The minimum recommended safe ice depth — of clear lake ice not heavily traveled — should be four to six inches for snowmobiles, about eight inches for a car or pickup of up to two-and-a-half tons gross weight, and 10 inches thick for a medium truck of up to three-and-a-half tons gross.

When and if the ice becomes safe again, drivers should make sure they know that other similar-size vehicles have crossed the ice safely, or test the ice thickness by chopping or drilling a hole.

NFO Declines To Endorse Beeferendum

National Farmers organization board of directors considered the beef referendum at its January meeting in Corning, Iowa.

NFO board followed the recommendation of NFO president DeVon Woodland that the organization could not endorse the referendum proposal for two reasons.

"As an all-commodity organization in meat, I don't see how NFO can promote beef without hurting pork and sheep," he said. He also pointed out that provisions for membership on the proposed beef board could preclude NFO participation.

He said that for an organization to be eligible to nominate members for the beef board, it must publish its membership and volume. NFO has historically refused to make public its membership and volume figures, since the organization believes such a disclosure would hamstring its collective bargaining activities.

The NFO board urged its members to register and vote their own convictions on the measure which will be voted on in a producer referendum in February.

Gene Paul, Delavan; Duane Oleson, Detroit Lakes; and David Pawlitschek, Lowry, all directors from Minnesota, participated in the meeting.

Employers Are Sent Notices Of 1980 Tax Rate

The 1980 tax rate notices are being mailed to all employers, the Minnesota department of economic security announced recently.

New employers have been assigned a 1.9 per cent benefit cost rate for 1980. Employers with an unemployment experience record are assigned rates from 1.0 per cent to 7.5 per cent, depending upon the number of workers laid off. Those laying off more workers pay higher rates.

Employers will pay unemployment taxes on the first $8,000 in wages paid to a worker, the same wage base as 1979. These taxes are used to pay unemployment benefits.

Voluntary contributions made within 30 days from the date notices are mailed may entitle the employer to a lower tax rate. For further information or assistance, call 612-296-6141.

Volunteers Are Needed For Special Study

Grain Embargo: Hard on Farmers But Little Effect on Russians

The Soviet Union has been acting up again — this time an invasion of its neighbor Afghanistan — and President Carter is going to get tough by taking its grain away. Unfortunately, this slap at the Russian bear missed the mark and hit the American Farmer square on the jaw.

The embargo on sales means that some 13 million metric tons of grain cannot be shipped. The President's order has halted that shipment and backed up the system from market to farm all the way to the field.

As a result of the action, grain companies refused to buy, grain elevators filled to capacity, and farmers were shut out of the market. Trading in commodities was suspended for two days following the announcement and when it resumed the price of grain dropped the limit on the first day.

The grain embargo does not forecast as bleak a future for the Russian people as the Administration would have us believe. Granted, other countries that supply Russia have given assurances that they will abide by the embargo. But, for the largest suppliers that means little as they have already completed the bulk of their international sales for the year. And, can we be assured that the Russians will suffer a second poor harvest resulting in large shortfalls of grain? It is doubtful.

It is also doubtful that other exporting countries will continue to go along with the embargo through a second crop year. In effect, that means the Russians are without grain to feed their livestock for the next six months at most. The effect may well be that the slaughter of Soviet livestock will increase and the Russians will be eating more meat for awhile. But, in the long run it means only that they will not increase their herds above historical patterns and they will be in basically the same nutritional shape they have been in for years. In the short run, however, they will eat better.

Thus the effect on the Russians is minimal at best. However, the effect on the American farmer and the agricultural exporting policy of this country is anything but minimal. The Administration has in one full swoop thrown a wrench into planned plantings for next year's crop.

America has been moving toward an export oriented agricultural policy that encourages larger production with the implied assurances that export markets will be sought for surplus crops. That type of policy requires a stability in federal policy so that farmers can plan for the long run and obtain in advance the seed, fertilizer and equipment needed to produce larger crops.

Surprise embargoes such as that ammounced by the President contribute nothing to the needed stability. Furthermore, the implications that set aside programs will be offered to reduce potential surpluses leave farmers who are now planning for the next year hanging in mid-air. Are we going to reverse our move toward an export oriented agriculture policy and return to the controlled production policy? Or are we going to continue to produce and put the surpluses in storage to act as a threat to future markets: For the farmer who must now begin plans for this year's planting operation these are questions that must be answered.

More importantly to farmers and grain producers is the fact that the administration's offer to buy up the contracts for the grain consigned to Russia will only create a government owned and held surplus. This surplus will plague farmers for years to come as it depressed the market for grain. Knowing there is a surplus waiting to be dumped on the market is no inducement to buyers to increase their market price for grain.

It is clear to me that American farmers are on the verge of paying the price for an ineffective Administration foreign policy move. And, I can say that this move is not popular with many of my colleagues in the Congress.

I am now reviewing policies which we can promote to ease the burden on our farmers. It would be better for the Administration to remove the embargo, but I find no indication that that will happen. Our first step must be the development of a policy to protect producers from the market depressing effect imposed by the government surplus.

Foreign policy moves that hurt our own people while failing to impact on the opposition are not in the best interest of this country and will never halt or slow Soviet aggression. We must see to it that our farmers are not the victims of such folly while at the same time seeking an effective means of responding to the Russian threat.

Stangeland Comments On Fuel Program

"Over the past few weeks while traveling through the district, I have received inquiries regarding the fuel assistance program and the monies paid to people on supplemental security income. I do hope that this story will help clarify the situation. However, if you have further questions, please call my toll-free number 1-800-432-3770," state Congressman Arlan Stangeland says.

"During consideration of the fuel assistance bill, I supported an amendment that would have distributed fuel assistance funds, in the form of block grants, from the federal government to state governments. Under the provisions of the amendment, the program would have been administered by one federal agency and the administrative problems faced by the States would have been simplified by reducing overlapping regulations and government red tape.

This amendment would have also increased the distribution of fuel assistance monies to those in need and would have eliminated the unfair and often excessive supplemental security income bias which favored warm weather states over cold weather states like Minnesota. The amendment was defeated by a vote of 207 to 183," he said.

"While I was not pleased with the final distribution formula in the bill, I voted for it because it was the only possibility we had to provide fuel assistance funds for needy people for use this winter. The issue needed immediate attention.

"In order to establish a permanent program, I am cosponsoring a bill which would provide aid for people with incomes less than 125 per cent of federal poverty levels or 150 per cent for elderly households. These payments would be for primary residential heating fuels, including oil, natural gas, propane or electricity but not to be used for air conditioning," the congressman added.

"The need to provide further assistance to low income people is great and I will do everything in my power to insure the American taxpayer and participants in this program that government funds are paid only to those in need."

EPS and WIC Clinics Slated In This Area

Four county EPS (early and periodic screening) service will be sponsoring two clinics throughout February. Screening and WIC (Women, Infants and Children) certification clinics are scheduled for area communities.

EPS clinics provide the following services: vision and hearing testing, height and weight determination, dental assessment and instruction in care of the teeth, Denver developmental testing, hematocrit determination, urinalysis, physical assessment and immunizations. Any one or all of these services may be requested.

Certification of participants for WIC food supplemental and nutritional education program will also take place, according to Murial Roley, WIC coordinator.

Because the participant load is increasing, it is necessary for potential clients to call or write the Four-county EPS service in Warren to make WIC certification appointment. New clients will be seen by appointment only.

Initial certification will take approximately one to one and one-half hours. Potential clients must bring the children they wish to have certified with them.

All WIC clinics begin at 9 a.m. and will run until 12 noon with a nutrition class for all clients from 10 to 10:30.

The following EPS and WIC clinics have been scheduled for February: February 4, Grygla — Community center; February 5, Newfolden — Bethlehem Lutheran church; February 6, Hallock — Presbyterian church; February 7, Red Lake Falls — Red Lake Falls city hall; February 11, Oklee — Zion Lutheran church; February 12, Karlstad — First Lutheran church; February 14, Warren — Evangelical Covenant church; and February 15, Thief River Falls — Redeemer Lutheran church.

Governor Asks Flags Flown In Show Of Unity

Governor Al Quie has signed a proclamation requesting the citizens of Minnesota to fly their American flags daily demonstrating support of the efforts of President Carter in obtaining the freedom of the Americans held hostage in Iran.

Governor Quie's proclamation requested that American flags be flown until the hostages are released as an indication of the full support of citizens of Minnesota every day until the hostages are freed from their imprisonment in the American embassy in Iran, and that the actions of the United States government in this matter have the unqualified backing and support of all our people.

It is felt that this type of a show of support will serve notice to Iranian officials that President Carter does speak for the American people and his actions have their total support.

The "Fly the Flag" program to show citizen support is a program enacted by national Commander Frank Hamilton of the American Legion upon the suggestion of a woman from Pengilly who contacted the national headquarters of the American Legion proposing such a program.

The five women contestants in the sport class of the I-500 race are sponsored by Hamm's to encourage greater participation in the sports category.

Farmers Need Aid In Russian Grain Embargo

Board of directors of the Minnesota Farmers Union (MFU, meeting in St. Paul recently appealed to Congress to take stronger steps to aid farmers in offsetting the impact of the Russian grain embargo.

Food will play an ever more important role in international relations, the MFU board further said, therefore permanent standby plans to protect U.S. farmers in cases of future export suspensions should also be established.

U.S. Senate agriculture committee is scheduled to hold a hearing January 22 and the House agriculture committee on January 29 to consider the impact of the grain embargo and the adequacy of steps being taken to ensure that the brunt of the embargo doesn't fall on farmers alone. A group of MFU members will meet with Congressmen in Washington Feb. 3-6 to further discuss the matter.

Noting the current unstable market situation, with prices still below pre-embargo levels, the state Farmers union leaders concurred with National Farmers union's recent recommendations that:

(1) The 1979-80 crop loan levels available to farmers be raised from $2.10 to $2.50 on corn, from $2.50 to $3.90 on wheat, and from $4.50 to $6.25 on soybeans;

(2) A set-aside or paid diversion program for 1980 be established;

(3) The embargoed grain now be held by the commodity credit corporation be prohibited from resale at less than 10 per cent of the grain reserve call level or 20 per cent above the loan level, whichever is higher;

(4) The current farm bill be clarified to require loan rates be set at 90 per cent of parity whenever exports are suspended due to a supply shortage (as it currenctly reads), or national emergency or any other reason;

(5) And to provide economic protection for other farm commodities, such as livestock, which are also affected by the embargo.

MFU board commended the Carter administration for its recently announced program to boost gasohol production and expressed hope that the actions will speed up construction of alcohol fuel distilleries and development of efficient production systems. President Carter's approval of the Northern tier pipeline was also commended as a sound step for the upper midwest's energy future.

In other action, the Minnesota farm leaders urged that the state legislature, set to reconvene Tuesday, Jan. 22, take steps to close the loopholes in the state's law restricting foreign ownership of farmland, pass legislation allowing component pricing of milk, and join Minnesota in the proposed interstate grain compact.

Farmers union directors voiced strong support for the preservation of agricultural land and urged that control of farmland be returned to county governments. Land use will be the key subject of a series of farmer-conferences held by the organization in January and February.

Minnesota Farmers Union board of directors is made up of 82 county Farmers Union presidents from throughout the state.

MJCAA Hockey Tournament Nearly Set

With successive 14-1 and 10-5 Wednesday night wins over Northland, Crookston has virtually locked up a berth in the 1980 MJCAA state hockey tournament, scheduled to be played February 23-24 at Hibbing.

Top four finishers in the six-team Minnesota junior college athletic association earn spots in the MJCAA state hockey tournament. Iron Range rivals Hibbing, Mesabi and Rainy River, while taking turns beating each other, have a lock on the top three places, leaving a fourth berth to be decided between northwestern Minnesota opponents Northland and Crookston since Rochester isn't expected to mount an MJCAA challenge this winter.

Crookston began a month-long series of Wednesday night meetings with Northland on January 16 with a 14-1 rout. It was closer last week in the Thief River Falls sports arena, but the Trojans pulled away in the third period for a 10-5 decision. A win this Wednesday at Crookston will give the Trojans the series edge and a state tournament berth.

With Roseau, Warroad and both Crookston high schools supplying the Trojans with manpower, they have an impressive hockey team. . .on paper. The wins over Northland were the first Crookston victories of the year after the Trojans dropped MJCAA series games to Hibbing, Rainy River and Mesabi.

"I think they have the best team in the league," said Northland coach Bob Lundbohm after Wednesday's loss to the Trojans, "but they have to play hockey," he added in reference to Crookston penchant for penalties and assorted "cheap stuff."

Hibbing also plays a hard-hitting style of hockey, noted Lundbohm. "But they don't have the strength that Crookston has, so they can get beat by trying to play physical hockey," he said.

Mesabi, on the other hand, uses finesse to beat you. "They like to dazzle you with their stickhandling," is the way Lundbohm described the Norsemen.

Rainy River, says Lundbohm, plays a no-nonsense dump-the-puck and forechecking game. "They all have different styles that clash," mentioned Lundbohm when he tried to explain the unpredictable MJCAA results.

In addition to Crookston's size — featured by Bruce and Bernie Foss and Dean Byfuglien, all Roseau products who cast giant shadows — the Trojans have the best goalie in the MJCAA, according to Lundbohm, in Dean Grindahl, another of the eight former Rams on the Crookston roster.

An added treat for the MJCAA state tournament champion this year is the selection of Virginia as the site for the 1980 NJCAA national hockey tournament. Thief River Falls hosted the event in 1974, but it's been headquartered in Canton, N.Y. for the past several seasons.

NWAC Basketball Race Wide Open

With three weeks remaining in the 1979-80 Northwest Athletic Conference basketball race, it's still a wide open title scramble featuring Bemidji and Crookston as the prime contenders. Only Thief River Falls is left out in the cold at this time, but East Grand Forks and Fergus Falls are on the verge of being eliminated from the championship picture.

Using a system that makes games worth one point if teams play each other twice during the year and then doubles that amount for a single meeting, the current NWAC standings show Bemidji 3-1 with four points; Crookston 3-1, three points; East Grand Forks and Fergus Falls 1-2, two points; and Thief River Falls 1-3, two points.

With four points still remaining to be played for, Crookston can win the NWAC title outright with wins over Bemidji, Fergus Falls and East Grand Forks over the next three weeks.

Bemidji, with just two points left, can do no worse than a title tie if the Lumberjacks finish their NWAC schedule with wins over Thief River Falls and Crookston the next two Fridays at Bemidji.

Fergus Falls has just a two-pointer left Feb. 9 at Crookston and would have to win that one, then hope the Pirates beat Bemidji then lose to East Grand Forks, while the Lumberjacks lose to Thief River Falls.

East Grand Forks is in a similar tough spot, needing to take two games from Thief River Falls and one from Crookston, while hoping Bemidji can do no better than a split in its final two conference starts.

Out of the title picture, Thief River Falls' final NWAC games will include a weather-postponed make-up game Thursday here with East Grand Forks, Friday's trip to Bemidji and a Feb. 8 drive to East Side.

Bemidji, although far below .500 overall, made itself an NWAC contender with a 65-56 win at East Grand Forks last Tuesday, a game we inadvertantly had the Green Wave winning in a Wednesday story for the Times. The Lumberjacks, now 4-9, played probably their best game of the year against the Green Wave, according to Whitey Anderson of the Bemidji Pioneer, who wrote, "The defense played very well and the Jacks rebounded much better as they were aggressive under the boards. The whole team played good basketball and they got excellent support from the bench when needed."

A Bemidji conference championship this winter would follow a pattern set last year when the Lumberjacks were NWAC champions with just a 6-12 regular season finish.

Prowlers Outlast Otters 58-57 In Triple Overtime Ball Game

For a $2 adult general admission ticket, it was a real bargain Saturday night as fans watched Thief River Falls outlast Fergus Falls 58-57 in a high school basketball game played here that required three overtimes before a winner could be determined in the exciting Northwest Athletic Conference contest.

Clutch free throw shooting finally won it for the Prowlers when Kyle Hams and Mark Schmitke sank five straight shots from the line in the third three-minute overtime to end Thief River Falls' winless status in the NWAC while all but eliminating the early season leading Otters from the pennant picture.

Field goals were at a premium in the overtime as both teams held the ball in the face of a zone defense. A feed from Hams, whose swish from the top of the key with three seconds left in regulation time forced overtime on a 49-49 tie, found Greg Miller under the basket to tie the game again 53-53 with 1:29 remaining in the first overtime. It stayed that way as Fergus Falls came up with the ball after the two teams swapped turnovers and held it until Clay Moser's long base line jumper went in, but came back out as the buzzer sounded.

There wasn't a point scored in the second overtime that again found the Otters holding the ball — this time for nearly two full minutes — before it fell into the hands of Moser whose long jump shot from the side bounced off the rim with three seconds on the clock.

In the third overtime it was the Prowlers' turn to hold the ball, and after getting the opening tip, they did just that until the Otters' Paul Bakken was whistled for a foul as he tried to come up with a steal with 1:14 to go. Hams made both ends of the bonus free throw situation to break the deadlock.

Another in-and-out job by the snake-bitten Moser with 55 seconds remaining was followed by a Todd Young rebound that led to a pair of Schmitke free throws with 41 seconds showing.

Mike Schneeberger, on an afterthought when he found everybody covered, dropped in a long jumper to pull Fergus Falls within 57-55 with 25 seconds left.

But Schmitke drew a quick foul on the ensuing full court press and made the front end of a 1-and-1 free throw opportunity to make it 58-55.

Knute Rotto came right back to score from the side with 14 seconds still remaining in a 58-57 game and a traveling violation called against Hams gave the Otters another crack at it with six seconds to go. But Schneeberger rushed it, hitting the front of the rim from the top of the key immediately after taking the inbounds pass. Young rebounded to seal the decision.

Winning coach Glen Peters knew the Prowlers were in good shape when Hams and Schmitke were being fouled in the third overtime; they're his best free throw shooters.

"If I had to pick any two guys to put at the line, it would be those two," said Peters. "That's what won it for us — free throws."

It was a strange game in which both teams dominated at times. Fergus Falls started with a 10-4 lead, but the Otters' edge was down to 14-13 by the end of the quarter and then the visitors' offense quit working in the second period when they managed just two free throws for their eight minutes and trailed 26-16 at halftime.

"We played as well defensively in the first half as we have all season," noted Peters who began the game with a man-to-man arrangement, but quickly went to a zone.

It still looked like Thief River Falls' ball game until the Prowlers committed four consecutive turnovers that led directly to eight straight Fergus Falls points and a 34-34 tie in the third quarter.

"We made some mistakes," admitted Peters. "They put on a half-court trap, and we just didn't handle it right."

Thief River Falls managed to nurse a 36-34 lead into the fourth quarter, though, when sophomore Kevin Sanders, making his first varsity start — in place of Schmitke at a guard — came up with a loose ball and got off a 15-foot jumper from the side at the buzzer that caromed high into the air before falling through.

Then it was Fergus Falls' turn to resume control. With Bakken, a 6-1 senior getting give, the Otters ran off seven straight points for a 47-42 lead with just 1:23 remaining.

Hams sandwiched 15-foot and an 18-foot jump shots around a Bakken free throw for a 48-46 game and Young, who was not in the Prowlers' starting line-up that had Miller at center, made the first shot on a bonus free throw try with 22 seconds left, making it 48-47.

Schneeberger followed suit by making the front end of a 1-and-1 free throw opportunity a quick five seconds later. Two offensive rebounds by the Otters, who out-rebounded the Prowlers 44-18 for the game, failed to put the ball back in the basket and with 10 seconds left, Bakken missed the first part of a bonus free throw chance.

The Prowlers gained possession, leading to Hams' game-tying shot.

Hams finished with a game-high 19 points for the Prowlers who were 24-for-52 for 46 per cent from the field and 10-for-17 at the free throw line. Bakken had 15 points for the Otters who were 23-for-62 for 37 per cent from the field and 11-for-18 at the line. The two teams divided 42 turnovers.

Fergus Falls dropped to 5-7 overall with the loss, 1-2 in the NWAC. Thief River Falls is 7-5 and 1-3.

In a sophomore-only contest, Fergus Falls was a 47-35 victor in the junior varsity game, knocking the Lincoln B squad record to 7-5 for the year.

Lincoln Girls Lose 52-35 At EGF; Host Greenbush

Lincoln high school girls basketball team will be trying to end a three-game losing streak tonight (Monday) when the Prowlers host Greenbush at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln gym.

East Grand Forks, with Christmas-time transfer student Vicki Pederson scoring 20 points, beat Thief River Falls 52-35 Thursday, dropping the Prowlers' season record to 3-6.

The two teams played to an 8-8 first quarter draw and Thief River Falls owned a seven-point lead in the second quarter before falling behind 21-17 at halftime. East Grand Forks ran up a 41-23 third quarter difference.

"We stopped playing basketball," said Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg, disappointed in the Prowlers' collapse. "We stopped going to the boards."

Although nine of the 12 Thief River Falls players who got into the game scored, none broke into double figures as the Prowlers struggled with a 16-for-65, 24 per cent shooting. East Grand Forks was 22-for-70 for 31 per cent.

Free throws weren't any easier for the Prowlers who made just one of 11 gift tosses. The Green Wave sank eight of 15 from the line and out-rebounded the visitors 44-38 by allowing the Prowlers just four offensive rebounds in the second half.

In games played earlier in the day, East Grand Forks beat Thief River Falls 38-23 in freshman competition and knocked off the Lincoln junior varsity 48-29. The Thief River Falls B squad, 5-4, meets Greenbush at 5:45 today, but the freshmen, 2-6, will wait until Thurs., Feb. 7, to resume action against Fergus Falls.

Northland Hosts Division Rivals

It's a make-or-break week for the Northland community college basketball team as the Northmen tackle Northwest Division rivals Crookston Tuesday and Brainerd Friday in a pair of 8 p.m. games in the Northland gym.

The Northmen evened their MJCAA record at 3-3 Friday with a 108-99 win over Rainy River, but that still places Northland last in the tight Northwest Division where two of the four teams will earn spots in the MJCAA state tournament.

Northland, tagged with six forfeits, is 4-11 overall.

At 6 p.m. both Tuesday and Friday, the Northland women's basketball team will be playing Crookston and Brainerd before the Northmen take the court.

The Northwomen beat Rainy River 68-38 Friday for a 3-10 season record and a 2-4 MJCAA mark.

Hulings Wins Two Sno Pro Races Sunday

Brad Hulings was a double winner Sunday in the Sno Pro professional snowmobile racing competition at Martin, Mich.

Hulings, driving a Scorpion, won the 440 and 340-X races after a 340 win by Steve Thorsen on an Arctic Cat.

Team Arctic drivers Jim Dimmerman and Bob Elsner finished 2-3 in both the 340 and 440 races. Jaques Villenue was second in the 340X feature on a Ski Doo and Thorsen was third.

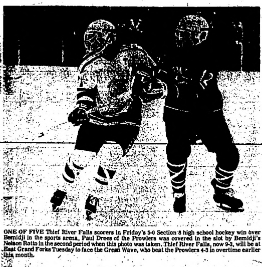
Northmen Are Beaten Twice At Rochester

Rochester was a double winner over Northland community college in an MJCAA weekend hockey series played in southern Minnesota.

The Yellowjackets, returning to the Minnesota junior college athletic association hockey conference after a year's absence, were out-shot both days, but picked up a 12-7 win Saturday night and added a 10-9 decision Sunday afternoon.

It was a long weekend for the Northmen who left Thief River Falls Saturday morning at 8:30 and did not arrive at the Rochester arena until 8 that night after the bus driver ran into mechanical and directional problems.

Northland, winless in ten games, will be at Crookston Wednesday for a 7:30 p.m. game and will visit Hibbing this weekend for an MJCAA series that will feature games Friday at 7:30 p.m. and Saturday at 1.



ONE OF FIVE Thief River Falls scorers in Friday's 5-0 Section 8 high school hockey win over Bemidji in the sports arena, Paul Drees of the Prowlers was covered in the slot by Bemidji's Nelson Rotto in the second period when this photo was taken. Thief River Falls, now 9-3, will be at East Grand Forks Tuesday to face the Green Wave, who beat the Prowlers 4-3 in overtime earlier this month.

Bill Jury Stops Bemidji 5-0 For Second Shutout

Bill Jury earned this one. Thief River Falls' senior goaltender, who shut out Roseau 4-0 six days earlier when strong play by his teammates made for an easy night in goal, blanked Bemidji 5-0 Friday by coming up with several outstanding saves in the Section 8 high school hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

The Prowlers' third straight victory after back-to-back 4-3 overtime losses to East Grand Forks and Greenway-Coleraine earlier this month, lifted their record to 9-3. But winning coach Wendell Grand did not seem satisfied.

"The main thing we're pleased with is the zero on the scoreboard," said Grand. "We had some defensive lapses in our end. But when they occurred, Jury came up with the big saves."

Jury, who could have had himself a strong of three straight shutouts if it weren't for a first period goal scored by Warroad that appeared to go off a skate in the Prowlers' 6-1 win Tuesday, had to share the goaltending spotlight with Bemidji's Jim Qizner who faced a 22-shot barrage in the second period en route to a fine 42-save night. Jury had 24 saves.

"I felt there was excellent goaltending on both ends of the rink," noted Grand. "We feel he (Wizner) is a good enough goaltender to give us problems."

Five different Thief River Falls players scored, beginning with Jeff Ulrich who took a goal mouth feed from behind the net from Wade Hoppe and quickly jammed the puck past Wizner at 7:28 of the first period that featured the brilliant goaltending of Jury.

It became 2-0 when Thief River Falls scored on a two-man advantage at 2:04 of the second period. Hoppe walked in on Wizner for the power play goal, a 12-foot wrist shot that beat the goalie cleanly.

Wizner then frustrated the Prowlers who were turned back on a list of scoring opportunities a mile long until Paul Drees was found standing in front of Wizner by Tom Bjorkman's pass from behind the net with just 17 seconds left in the period dominated by the Prowlers.

It was a big goal, said Grand. "We had terrific forechecking; terrific effort line after line after line. If we would have come out of that without a goal it might have had an effect on our kids," he admitted.

Thief River Falls quickly made it 5-0 when the third period got underway. Jim Thompson, standing in front of Wizner, put the puck through the goalie's pads at 1:14 and Tony Loeffler poked the puck between Wizner's leg and the goal pipe at 2:41.

Then the only issue was whether Jury would get his shutout. He did, but not until after Bemidji's Gary Tobey missed the net on a clean breakaway while killing a penalty at 10:34 of the final period.

Losing coach Bryan Grand, Wendell's brother, accepted the defeat. "I'm satisfied. We feel every kid played very hard," he said. "We had a few opportunities that could have kept us a little closer, but Thief River just has a fine hockey team."

First Period
Scoring — TRF, Jeff Ulrich (Wade Hoppe), 7:28.

Saves — TRF, Jury 8, game total 24; Bemidji, Wizner 12, game total 42.

CLEARING THE puck out of his own end, Thief River Falls defenseman Scott Wiebolt initiated a rink-length rush by the Prowlers during Friday's Section 8 high school hockey game against Bemidji in the sports arena. The Prowlers won the game 5-0 behind the shutout goaltending of Bill Jury.

Key Section 8 Games Are Set For Tuesday

A pair of key Section 8 high school hockey games are scheduled to be played Tuesday when Thief River Falls, the current leader in the Section 8 point standings, will be at East Grand Forks and Crookston, the top challenger, hosts Roseau.

East Grand Forks beat Thief River Falls 4-3 in overtime earlier this winter, but the Green Wave suffered a 5-2 home ice defeat at the hands of Roseau Saturday to drop a notch in the point standings.

The Pirates face a big four-point night Tuesday against Roseau. Section 8 games are worth two points in the standings if teams meet twice during the year, and are four-point affairs for a single meeting.

It'll be the first of two key four-point Tuesday night games for the Pirates who will be hosting Thief River Falls next week.

Lincoln Hockey JV Skates By Bemidji 10-2

Jeff Imgrund, Todd Bergland and Rick Engelstad all scored two goals Friday as the Lincoln high school junior varsity hockey team skated to a 10-2 win over Bemidji.

Dean Dokken, Jeff Milender, Mark Harder and Dennis Cullen scored once for the winners who broke open a 1-1 first period tie with a string of eight unanswered goals, six in the second period.

Thief River Falls is now 8-3-1.

Weasel May Be Fiercest Of Hunters

Lions and tigers look more formidable, but "pound for pound, the weasel may be the world's fiercest hunter," according to the current issue of Ranger Rick's nature magazine.

With its ability to borrow underground after rodents and a fur coat that turns white in winter, thus enabling it to stalk other prey on a snowy surface, the quick, slender weasel — compared to other animals — has an "easy time" in winter, says the National Wildlife Federation's monthly publication for children.

"Like a white, hairy snake, it zigzags over the deepest snow at night, siffing and listening for prey," the magazine reports. "With a quick bite, its sharp teeth crush the base of the prey's skull. This happens so fast that the weasel can easily kill animals much bigger then itself."

Barely a foot long, the weasel, also known as the stoat or ermine, is found in temperate climates on every continent but Australia and Antarctica.

A Gallup poll conducted in October, 1979 found that 11 per cent of Americans surveyed said they were doing absolutely nothing to reduce the use of fossil fuels.

Otters Take Arctic Cat Title

Before the meet started, coach John Kopari of the host Prowlers said Fergus Falls, because of its strong depth, would be an easy winner Saturday in the fifth annual Thief River Falls Arctic Cat invitational swimming meet. After the meet, coach Tom Uvas of the champion Otters agreed it was his team's three-deep line-up that made Fergus Falls a runaway winner in the strong eight-team field.

Fergus Falls finished the 2½ hours of timed finals with 277½ points and a whopping 100-point victory margin over runner-up Bemidji with 177. Rest of the field included International Falls with 166 points, Minot 156, Blake 135½, Thief River Falls 117, Fosston 106 and Detroit Lakes 24.

"We have a really nice team," acknowledged Uvas. "We've got an awful lot of depth — that's what won it for us."

Winning the Arctic Cat title for the second straight year and for the third time in the past four years, Fergus Falls had just one individual winner — Bob Ronning, who took the 100-yard breast-stroke in a Franklin middle school pool record 1:06.44.

But appropriately, the Otters used their team concept to win both relay races, taking the 200-yard medley in 1:48.93 and claiming the 400-yard freestyle final in 3:28.87.

International Falls' strong collection of talent produced four individual wins, including a double triumph by Mike Barker who won the 50-yard freestyle in 22.85 and the 100-yard freestyle in 50.65. Rick Barker of the Broncos took the 500-yard freestyle in a fast 5:17.38 and Jon Pelland was the top diver with 216.35 points for his three dives in the finals.

In addition to Mike Barker of International Falls, the meet also had a double winner in Fosston's Scott Daniels, a sophomore who won the 200-yard individual medley in 2:08.96 and the 100-yard backstroke in 59.08.

Rounding out the list of winners were Chip Schilling and Jim Carl of Blake, the Twin Cities area school whose swimmers stayed with members of the Thief River Falls team Friday night. Schilling took the 200-yard freestyle in 1:53.62 while Carl grabbed the 100-yard butterfly in 57.86.

Bemidji used Fergus Falls' depth format to finish second in the meet despite being blanked in the winner's circle. The Lumberjacks could have used a couple of wins, though, to close the gap.

Host Thief River Falls' best finish was in the meet-opening 200-yard medley relay where Dan Schoonhoven, Steve Poissant, Keith Grochow and Jon Pinkerton swam a second place 1:49.35.

Poissant and Grochow also finished 4-5 in the 100-yard breaststroke, with the Prowlers picking up sixth place finishes in the 50-yard freestyle by Pinkerton, in the 100-yard backstroke by Schoonhoven and in the 400-yard freestyle relay with Schoonhoven, Dennis Booth, Mark Isaacson and Dan Thorstad.

Deer Poachers Paying Price

Five Rochester area men have entered guilty pleas in Houston county District Court for "deer shining" over the Thanksgiving weekend this past fall.

William Brogan, 25; Kent D. Sleeper, 23; Sammuel L. Gaardner, 27; John T. Gaardner, 20; and Timothy J. Herman, 20; were apprehended by conservation officers from southeastern Minnesota and agents of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service with the aid of DNR aircraft from St. Paul.

Each faces a maximum fine of $1,000 and-or one-year in jail. A van was seized in the incident along with a spotlight and a loaded high-powered rifle.

Two nights after Christmas a 1980 Chevrolet four-wheel drive pickup truck with barely 3,000 miles on it was seized in another deer shining arrest by conservation officers in Wabasha county. Two adult Kellogg men were arrested and charged with shining deer.

Fergus Falls Rips Northland 90-40

Fergus Falls shot 55 per cent from the field and 74 per cent from the free throw line Wednesday in a 90-40 win over the Northland community college women's basketball team.

The Spartans, who led 49-20 at halftime, hit 38 of 69 field goal attempts and sank 14 of 19 free throws.

"I suppose you can say it (Fergus Falls' high percentage) was partly our fault because we let them shoot," admitted Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "But you try to stop the inside game, so you have to let a little bit go on the outside."

Five Fergus Falls scorers reached double figures, headed by Joice Ennen with 20 points, Tina Rutten 19 and Kathi Johnson 18. Jacki Nelson led Northland with nine points.

The Northwomen weren't nearly as sharp as the Spartans with their shots, finishing 16-for-59 for 27 per cent from the field and 8-for-23 for 35 per cent from the line.

Rebounds were even at 37 apiece, but visiting Northland committed six more turnovers (34-28) in losing for the tenth time in 12 starts.

Spartans Edge NCC by 89-86

A first-rate MJCAA basketball attraction, was the way Northland community college coach Chet Engelman described Wednesday's Northwest Division showdown between defending co-champions Northland and Fergus Falls, with the host Spartans winning 89-86.

"It was a good ball game. Unfortunately we ended up on the short end of the score," reported Engelman. "We didn't play poorly; Fergus played better than anybody we've faced this year."

The game produced a scoring duel between Northland's Vince Parker, a sophomore from Inkster, Mich., who finished with 33 points, and Fergus Falls' Gary Douglas, a sophomore from Detroit, Mich., who hit 31.

Northland had a 24-14 lead 8½ minutes into the game, but had to settle for a 44-42 halftime edge. With Parker and Terry Harris, the leading scorer in the MJCAA with a 30.3 average going into the game both running into foul trouble, the Northmen had trouble styling with the Spartans in the second half then the hosts often had leads of seven points. Harris finally fouled out of the game at the 18-minute mark of the second half with 22 points and 17 rebounds. Parker left with one minute remaining.

Free throws played a big part in the outcome as Fergus Falls sank 23 of 28 gift tosses for 82 per cent while Northland made just 10 of 18 for 56 per cent. From the field the Northmen were 38-for-76 for 50 per cent and the Spartans were 33-for-67 for 59 per cent.

Mike Carriere made it a three-man attacking force for the Northmen by scoring 17 points, grabbing eight rebounds and coming up with 10 loose ball recoveries. Dave Cresap, with 18 points, Mike Jorgenson 13 and Steve Soenneker 10, joined Douglas in double figures for the Spartans.

Northland, outrebounded Fergus Falls 44-41 and the Spartans topped the turnover charts 21-17.

Water Death Increase Noted During 1979

Minnesota's water death toll was up slightly during 1979, according to Kim Elverum, boat and water safety coordinator for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

According to preliminary year-end statistics, 93 persons lost their lives in Minnesota waters during 1979.

"This figure is seven more than the 1978 figure, which was the second lowest in history, and is still significantly lower than the years prior to 1977 when we were recording 100 — 135 deaths per year," said Elverum. "The safest year for water recreationists was 1977 when 84 persons lost their lives."

One of the primary reasons for the increase this past year is the record high number of ice-related fatalities during November and December, he said. Ten persons died from Nov. 15 to the end of the year — compared to an average two or three.

Not all of the statistics ard bad, however. Boating deaths dropped to 25 (down 13 from last year's figure). When considering the number of registered boats (563,850), this figure is at an all time low.

Reasons for the decline are attributed to the increased awareness of boating safety by the public, resulting from the efforts of the various safety organizations throughout the state, said Elverum. "Evidence of this is the increasing use of personal flotation devices (PFD's or life preservers) by boaters and fishermen."

Water fatality toll is broken down as follows:

+ Twenty-five lost their lives in boating-related mishaps, down from 1978. The two most common types of fatalities were capsizing and falls overboard, with the effect of cold water contributing significantly.

+ Thirty-six died in swimming, diving or wading accidents where over-confidence in swimming ability, diving into water of an unknown depth or lack of youngster supervision were the leading factors.

+ Nineteen persons drowned as a result of non-boating falls in to the water.

+ Eleven died as a result of breaking through the ice (four on foot, four motor vehicles and two snowmobiles).

+ Two persons died in conjunction with the use of air mattresses and inner tubes.

Non-fatal boating accidents reported to the DNR were also down significantly. Most of the 78 mishaps (down from 98 in 1978) were collisions with another craft or a fixed object. Failure to keep a proper lookout, along with the use of alcohol, stress factors and a lack of boat handling experience were determined to be prime factors in these collisions.

"Non-Game" Wildlife To Gain Benefit

New legislation that would provide $24 million over the next three years to benefit songbirds and other non-game wildlife was introduced in the U.S. Senate last month.

Wildlife officials at the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources said the state's current non-game program is limited by financing from the state game and fish fund, which derives its revenue from hunting, fishing and trapping license fees.

Requests for funds from this source must compete with other requests for funds to enhance game populations, it was pointed out.

They said the Senate bill would allow an expanded program with a broader base of public support.

The bill would provide funds to state wildlife agencies to develop plans for non-game conservation and would allow some projects to be implemented immediately.

Funds to finance the program would come from a new excise tax of 11 per cent on wild bird feed, feeders, bird baths and bird houses.

The House of Representatives has already passed a similar bill and the Carter administration is said to support the measure. Officials emphasized however that the Senate bill was introduced rather late in the current congressional session and a strong show of public support will be needed to achieve its passage.

Winning for the ninth time in 11 games, Grygla shot a strong 48 per cent from the field, hitting 25 of 52 shots off fast breaks and a sharp passing game.

"We're vastly improved the last couple of weeks," pointed out Grygla coach Bill Radeunz. "We're starting to pass the ball a lot better. Most of our shots are from inside the free throw line."

It was never close. Grygla ran up a 22-6 first quarter bulge, made it 36-8 at halftime and maintained a 48-17 third quarter spread.

Sherri Anderson joined Saurdiff in double figures for the winners with 14 points. No Badger scorer got more than five points as the Rockets made just 11 of 45 field goal attempts for 45 per cent. From the free throw line the Eagles were 9-for-16 and the Rockets were 3-for-11.

Trout Waters In Wisconsin Are Publicized

Trout fishermen are something special. They seem to want to get off the beaten track and try new streams and battle the wily Wisconsin trout.

All Wisconsin trout streams have been classified into three categories by the Department of Natural Resources:

Class 1 — high grade trout waters with conditions favorable for natural reproduction. Requires little or no stocking of hatchery fish.

Class 2 — some native trout but not in sufficient numbers. Moderate to heavy stocking required to maintain good fishing.

Class 3 — marginal trout habitat. Stocking legal trout necessary to provide trout fishing.

A publication — Wisconsin Trout Waters," provides 58 detailed maps, showing Class 1 and 2 trout waters and surrounding territory and roads. The trout fisherman can pre-plan his trip using the maps and accompanying trout index. The fisherman can spend his time fishing instead of needlessly driving, and wasting gas.

This book can be obtained by sending $4.95 to Wisconsin Trout Waters, Stock Number 775M-1R, P.O. Box 5096, Madison, WI 53705.

Separate from the maps is a complete list of all trout streams in Wisconsin, with notes as to species of trout, stream length and location.

Trailing 36-28 With Three Minutes Left . . .

Nordics Explode At End To Defeat Rams 46-40

Trailing 36-28 with just three minutes remaining in the game, Marshall County Central went on a sudden offensive tear that brought the Nordics a come-from-behind 46-40 North Border Conference high school basketball win over Roseau Friday at Newfolden.

Accurate free throw shooting helped the Nordics down the stretch as they sank 12 of 14 gift tosses in the fourth quarter, finishing 14-for-18 at the line for the game.

"It was an unusual game," mentioned Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "We stood around for most of the game. It looked like nobody wanted it for 3½ quarters."

But Dan Engen, who led Marshall County Central with a 12-point, 11-rebound game, tied it at 38-38 with two minutes left on what Ueland called, "the biggest play of the game," and the Nordics were on their way to a fourth straight North Border win.

Ray Kvalvog and Dan Maki both came off the bench to lead the late game charge for the Nordics as Kvalvog scored all seven of his points in the final three minutes and Maki was 4-for-4 at the line during that time.

It was a 16-16 tie at halftime, with the Nordics relying on Rick Van Camp's 4-for-4 shooting from the outside to stay close. "He kept us in the ball game," said Ueland. "Our offense was totally impotent in the first half."

Marshall County Central shot poorly, finishing 16-for-45 for 36 per cent. But the Nordics got the rebounds, building a 28-19 edge on the boards.

"We really boarded well," confirmed Ueland. "And then we finally started scoring at the end; we got a few breaks and got things going."

Roseau was 16-for-38 for 42 per cent from the field and 8-for-10 at the free throw line.

Middle River 56
Badger 55

An attempt to sit on a six-point lead in the final 1:40 of the fourth quarter backfired for Middle River Friday, but the Skippers escaped from Badger with a 56-55 win when Monty Peterson sank two free throws with 13 seconds to go.

"We didn't play all that well," admitted Middle River coach Eldon Sparby who elected to hold the ball after building a 54-48 lead with 1:40 remaining in the game.

But with the officials letting play get rugged, according to Sparby, the Rockets came up with the ball and a 55-54 lead before Peterson stepped to the line and made both ends of the bonus free throw situation.

It was the Skippers' second straight one-point North Border Conference victory within a week. They edged Roseau 58-57 the previous Friday.

Middle River, 11-2 for the year, will host Grygla Tuesday in a storm-postponed make-up game from Jan. 11, and will entertain Lancaster Saturday.

Climax 47
Goodridge 39

"We made some key turnovers in some inopportune times," explained Goodridge coach Rick Nelson in describing the Huskies' 47-39 Friday night loss to Climax.

Fifteen turnovers for the game isn't all that many, noted Nelson, but when a bunch of them come in the fourth quarter of a close game they are magnified.

The two teams played to a 15-15 halftime tie and Climax went into the fourth quarter with a slim 31-27 edge.

Goodridge shot 32 per cent from the field, hitting 16 of 50 shots, while Climax shot 38 per cent, making 17 of 45 attempts. At the free throw line the Huskies were 7-for-18 and the visiting Vikings were 13-for-24. Goodridge held a 30-25 rebound edge, but Climax was charged with just eight turnovers for the night.

Now 2-13, Goodridge will be at Fisher Tuesday for the Huskies' only outing this week.

MCC 72
Kennedy 43

In a free throw shooting contest, Marshall County Central won a 72-43 decision at Kennedy Saturday.

The Nordics, who raced to a 35-20 halftime lead and were never threatened, were 22-for-31 at the free throw line and the Rockets were 17-for-29 in the foul-plagued game.

Ray Kvalvog led a balanced attack for the winners with 14 points as the Nordics ran their record to 10-3. They'll host Stephen Tuesday and will face Lake of the Woods' unbeaten North Border Conference leading ball club Saturday at Newfolden.

Water Bank Program Fund Is Increased

A successful wetland preservation program — the federal water bank — will be even better because of legislation that became law on Jan. 2, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources reported.

DNR wildlife officials said Public Law 96182 increases authorization for annual payments from the present $10 million to $30 million, provides for rate adjustments five years into the 10 year agreement period and increases the number of wetland types eligible for the program.

Changes in the water bank program do not become effective until October.

Officials said additional details of the new legislation will be released when the information is received from Washington.

National Wildlife Week Scheduled March 16-22

More than 15 million American school children, teachers, and conservationists are expected to participate in the 1980 observance of national wildlife week, March 16 through 22.

"Save a Place for Wildlife" will be the theme for the 43rd annual celebration of the week that was first proclaimed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1938 to rally public support for programs to enhance the nation's wildlife population.

Importance of preserving wildlife habitat — areas where wild creatures can find food, water, cover and a place to raise their young — will be emphasized this year, according to Dr. Frederick R. Scroggin, of Dry Ridge, Ky., president of the National Wildlife Federation, which sponsors the annual event.

The 1980 national wildlife week poster animals are two young red foxes, photographed for the NWF by Brian Milne of Thunder Bay, Ontario. On the reverse of the four-color poster Mark Trail, the conservationist hero of a nationally-syndicated cartoon strip, explains what "Save A Place For Wildlife" means, with illustrations by artists Ed Dodd and Jack Elrod, creators of the cartoon character. More than 800,000 copies of this poster will be mailed to wildlife week participants.

The NWF, which has 4.1 million members and supporters, will also distribute 597,000 copies of a second poster, which bears color photographs of 16 species of wildlife with information on each animal in English and Spanish backing up the pictures.

Teachers across the country, as well as in Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands will receive 394,000 wildlife week education kits, which contain posters, activity booklets and badges. Youngsters will receive 65,000 smaller student kits.

Save a place for Wildlife
March 16-22 1980
National Wildlife Week

POSTER FOR THE 1980 national wildlife week observance March 16-22 features two young red foxes, underlying the theme of this year's observation, "Save a Place for Wildlife."

"Habitat is the key to a healthy and abundant wildlife population," said Scroggin, a physician and lifelong conservationist, in explaining this year's theme. "Without habitat, there would be no wildlife."

"But," Dr. Scorggin continued, "as our demands for more homes, more food and more energy continue to mount, we are putting ever-increasing pressure on our remaining wildlife habitat. In some places, we are needlessly and recklessly destroying wildlife habitat.

"One of the big challenges of the 1980s is to settle the conflicts between our own needs and the needs of our wildlife. We must save a place for wildlife."

Dr. Scroggin noted that President Carter has designated 1980 as the "Year of the Coast." The coast is just one habitat vital to both people and wildlife whose existence is threatened "by pollution, by development, by erosion," Scroggin said. "In addition, our wetlands, our wilderness, our prairies and our oceans are priceless habitats in need of protection."

"We can answer the challenge of the next decade if all of us show our concern," he emphasized. "With careful planning, we can grow and prosper and still 'Save A Place For Wildlife.'"

Northwomen Easy 68-38 Winners Over Rainy River

After opening the 1979-80 season with eight straight losses, Northland community college basketball coach Deb Jacobson might have been willing to beg, borrow or steal for a win. But now with a couple of victories under their belts, Jacobson says winning isn't enough for the northwomen.

Northland easily ran over Rainy River 68-38 Friday night in Thief River Falls, but Jacobson was far from satisfied.

"Sometimes you feel better after a loss than a win because you play better," she said. "We have played much better than what we showed."

Northland, now 3-10 overall and 2-4 in the Northwest Division standings, built a 32-19 halftime lead, then doubled the difference in the second half.

Julie Easton scored 13 points for the winners, with Julie Anderson getting 11 and Tracey Nelson 10.

Northland shot 33 per cent from the field (28-for-80) and 78 per cent from the free throw line (16-for-22). Rainy River struggled offensively, shooting just 24 per cent from the floor (18-for-75) and a mere 29 per cent from the line (2-for-7).

Still, Jacobson said, "Defensively we could have played better."

Northland out-rebounded Rainy River 65-46, with the visitors topping the turnover charts 30-28.

The Northwomen face Northwest Division rivals Crookston Tuesday and Brainerd Friday in a pair of 6 p.m. games in the Northland gym.

Trojans Beat Northmen 10-5

Shorthanded Northland is finding the 60-minute college hockey game 20 minutes too long.

Crookston's roster full of former area prep standouts wore down the thin Northland ranks Wednesday, taking a 6-4 second period lead and turning it into a 10-5 mid-week MJCAA triumph in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

It was the eighth straight loss for the Northmen who suffered similar fate at International Falls the prior weekend when Rainy River swept Northland 16-8 and 10-5 with third period blitzes.

And Wednesday's game should have been a 5-4 affair after 40 minutes. But Northland goalie Charlie Sehler did not come up with a sailing puck shot from the center red line by Crookston's Murray Miller while the Trojans were shorthanded at 7:47 of the second period. The dejected Sehler immediately took himself out of the game.

Miller, Jeff, Goos, Mark Perreault and Bernie Foss all scored twice for the Trojans, with Bruce Foss and Gaylen Erickson scoring once. Scott Bergland had two goals for the Northmen while Jay Kverno, Mike Olson and Roger Ehehorn scored once.

Power play goals by Kverno and Bergland kept things tied 2-2 in the first period. Three Trojans were crowded into the penalty box when Bergland scored on a slap shot from the point at 8:37. Crookston accumulated nine of the game's 15 penalties.

Down 5-2 after just 6:57 of the second period, Northland pulled within 5-3 on a hard slap shot from the blue line by Olson at 7:30, but just eight seconds later Sehler gave the Trojans a freebie. Bergland jumped on the loose puck in front to make it 6-4 at 18:34.

Goals spaced 36 seconds apart by Bernie Foss in the final minute of the game completed the Trojans' third period dominance over the leg-weary Northmen whose ranks were thinned even more when Lyle Johnson suffered a shoulder separation at International Falls.

Sehler and his replacement, Jeff Reese, came up with 50 saves while Dean Grindahl of Crookston stopped 38 shots.

SKI REPORT

by Dr. Hugh Patterson

When we leave Red Lodge we take state highway 307 around the shoulder of some of Montana's most impressive mountains to Interstate 90 at Columbus, Mont. There are lofty peaks on every side. When you go past Big Timber, on the right is impressive Crazy Peak, named after a pioneer woman who went "crazy" there in one of the early wagon trains.

On Bozeman we head west on state highway 293, then south on U.S. 191. Near this corner is a K.O.A. campground with a year around swimming pool heated by a hot spring. We have camped there several times, including last February.

U.S. 191 goes south up the spectacular Gallatin river canyon. Steep mountains on either side reach far into the sky. About 43 miles from Bozeman we reach our destination of Big Sky, Montana. They have fine accommodations from a campers village, to condominiums or magnificent rustic Chet Huntly lodge. They will all give you a fine rest for some wonderful skiing the next day.

When you step out at the base of the gondola in the morning, 1,100-foot Lone peak soars up before you. Twenty-two hundred vertical feet above you, at the base of a tremendous glacial cirque, you start your run down. A low intermediate skier can make it just fine, on a good day. If you are an expert, go back up and come down thrilling and steep Sundown bowl. There is lots of beautiful novice skiing on Killefer, Lone Wolf and White Wing.

On your left are challenging expert runs on a steep mountain. I have enjoyed Tippy's Tumble, Ambush and Hangman's, good western names.

As you face this mountain, new areas and a new chain lift are being developed to your left. From the top you get an unforgettable view of Lone peak and the Yellow Mule mountain range.

Big Sky is lots of fun for all types of skiers. The season is from Thanksgiving through April. Elevation is 7,500 to 9,799 feet and snow dressing is excellent. My advice is to take the gondola up in the morning and run Killefer a couple of times for a warm up, then tackle anything your skill permits.

County Tax Delinquency Is 2.74 Per Cent For 1979

Pennington county closed its books on tax collections December 31 with a delinquency rate of 2.74 per cent on 1978 taxes unpaid during 1979, according to A. E. Jorgenson, county treasurer. With a total assessment of $4,574,143, there was $101,598 in taxes remaining unpaid at the end of the year.

Jorgenson explained that homestead and agricultural credits reduced the amount of money actually levied against county taxpayers by $841,497 and that the amount levied for collection totaled $3,712,845. With $3,601,488 paid of this levy, the delinquency of $101,598 results in the 2.74 per cent delinquency rate. On the basis of total assessment, not counting the homestead and agricultural credits, the delinquency rate is reduced to 2.22 per cent.

Tax delinquency in the county has remained at a relatively low level for a number of years, Jorgenson said, since the previous high of 15 per cent was recorded in 1938. Lowest percentage of delinquency was recorded in 1976 at 1.40 per cent when $50,003 was delinquent on a total levy of $3,712,845. Credits of $544,368 that year reduced the levy from a total assessment of $4,112,369.

In 1938, by comparison, the total levy was $326,078 but there were no credits for homestead or agriculture and the amount delinquent was $48,893.

In 1958 the levy in Pennington county went over the million dollar mark for the first time and in 1959 there was only $25,508 delinquent on the total levy of $1,170,663 for a delinquency rate of 2.23 per cent. This past year was the first time, however, that [illegible] dollars delinquent had been in excess of $100,000.

Thief River Falls tax delinquency was very close to the county figure at 2.94 per cent on 1978 taxes payable in 1979. Total levy for the city of Thief River Falls was $2,074,058 with $2,006,296 paid and only $58,660 delinquent.

St. Hilaire had a delinquency rate of 6.88 per cent with $3,398 unpaid on an assessment of $49,425 while Goodridge had $486 of a $9,408 assessment unpaid for a delinquency rate of 5.18 per cent.

Highest percentage of delinquency in the county was the township of Goodridge at 7.19 per cent with $3,861 delinquent on a levy of $53,708. Next in line were the township of Cloverleaf at 6.29 per cent ($3,629 delinquent on a levy of $57,732) and township of Reiner at 5.46 per cent ($1,976 delinquent on a levy of $36,228).

Lowest percentage of delinquency was .14 per cent in Numedal where all but $76 of a total levy of $54,421 was paid by January 1, 1980. Next lowest was Silverton at .35 per cent ($499 delinquent on a levy of $142,072). Sanders township delinquency was .45 per cent with $362 of $81,268 unpaid while Kratka township was at .90 per cent delinquency with a levy of $128,145 and only $1,149 unpaid.

Largest assessment among Pennington county townships was the town of Rocksbury

New Estate Tax Helps To Preserve Family Business

Handing down family farms and businesses in Minnesota is going to be cheaper and easier from now on, according to Clyde Allen, state revenue commissioner.

This development is the result of sweeping changes to the state's inheritance tax laws which went into effect for deaths occurring from the beginning of this month.

The changes replace the state's inheritance tax with a substantially reduced tax called the estate tax. The inheritance tax had been in effect for 75 years.

Estate tax is expected to cut the number of people who will have to pay taxes on inheritances by 90 per cent, and the number of returns is expected to drop from 24,000 to 3,000.

Minnesota estate tax is especially designed to offset the effects of inflation on farmland values and business properties, and make it easier to keep farms and businesses in the family.

The inheritance tax had become an increasing problem for farm families as a result of skyrocketing inflation of land values.

Over the 10-year period from 1969 to 1979, the average 291-acre Minnesota farm's value grew from $65,000 to $302,000. This represents an increase of 366 per cent — nearly four times the 1969 value.

As a result, many farm families have found themselves inheriting a farm whose value has become far greater than they had been preparing themselves to be taxed on.

A high rate of inflation of business property values has also caused the total value of the average business to increase greatly.

Owners of small farms and businesses — plus others with small estates — will benefit from the new law, because estates with a value of less than $161,000 this year will not be taxed, nor will they be required to file a return. This is the same filing requirement used under the federal estate tax law.

The Minnesota estate tax also has the same filing deadline as the federal estate tax — nine months from the date of death of the estate owner.

Under the state's old inheritance tax law, all heirs of estates of any amount were required to fill out inheritance tax forms to determine if they had to pay a tax.

The new $161,000 filing requirement will mean that as many as five out of six heirs who would have been required to fill out an inheritance tax form will not have to fill out and file an estate tax form.

And, because the exemptions that reduce the value an estate is to be taxed on are vastly larger under the new law, those inheriting estates above $161,000 may find that they owe no tax, or that they'll pay substantially less than the old law would have required.

Under the old law, a surviving spouse was allowed a choice of exemptions which could total either $105,000 or half the value of the estate up to $250,000.

Under the new law's marital exemption, a surviving spouse may exempt up to $250,000 or half the value of the total estate, whichever is greater. But if the spouse's inheritance is less than either of these amounts, the exemption is limited to the amount he or she is scheduled to receive.

Exemptions for other heirs provided under the old inheritance tax law depended on the heir's blood relationship to the decedent. And the exemptions were limited to small amounts.

For example, an adult child — the person must likely to be inheriting a significant portion of the estate — was allowed an exemption of only $6,000. Distant relatives and all non-relatives were offered the lowest exemption — $500.

Under the new estate tax there is only one exemption — a single amount of $200,000 which is applied to the entire estate.

For example, if there were an estate of $1 million with the surviving spouse slated to receive half, and each of two children to receive a quarter, the exemptions for the estate would be as follows.

The spouse would be eligible for an exemption of $500,000 — half of the total $1 million estate. In addition, the entire estate would receive the $200,000 exemption provided by the law. The total of the exemptions would be $700,000.

The $700,000 in exemptions

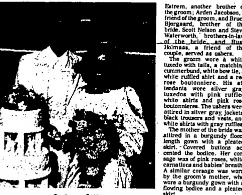
SOCIETY and CLUBS



Bjorgaard And Estrem Marriage Vows Spoken

Miss Tami Bjorgaard and Douglas Estrem exchanged marriage vows on Saturday, December 1, at 2:30 p.m., at the Westaker Free Lutheran church in Newfolden.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bjorgaard of Newfolden. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Estrem of Kenyon.

Rev. Merle Knutson officiated at the double ring ceremony. Organist was Kathy Randall, a friend of the couple. She played Bach's "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. During the processional, Janice Ramsey, a cousin of the bride, sang "Two Hands," and for the recessional, she sang "My Tribute." Other vocal selections were "Wedding Song," sung by Mrs. Ramsey, and "Treasures," sung by Brigitta Nelson, a friend of the bride.

Candelabras with pine greenery, pink mums, babies' breath and white bows graced the chancel. Lighting the candles were Mrs. Debbie Nelson, a sister of the bride, and Kristi Solem, a cousin of the bride. Their gowns were of burgundy satin.

For her wedding, the bride wore a white bridal satin gown which she had sewn. The gown featured a blousey bodice, gathered in front and back to a square neckline, full-length sleeves, gathered into fitted cuffs with pearl button closing, and a four-tiered skirt, fitted at the waistline, by a draped belt. An open headpiece of string pearls held her chapel-length veil. She carried a cascade of pink carnations, red roses, babies' breath and pine greenery. For sentiment, she also carried a handkerchief, a gift from her grandmother. Her opal and diamond necklace was a gift from the groom.

Debbie Bjorgaard of Viking, a friend of the bride, was personal attendant.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Lori Waterworth, a sister of the bride. Other attendants were Vickie Bjorgaard, sister of the bride; Lyn Estrem, sister of the groom; and Brigitta Nelson, a friend of the bride. Their identical gowns of rose colored satin were fashioned with flared skirts with box pleats in front and back. Their fitted bodices, complemented at the neckline by small round collars and ties, featured full, long sleeves, pleated at the cuffline. Self fabric belts accented the waistlines. All carried a solitary long-stemmed pink rose with pine greens and white ribbon streamers. A red rose complemented the pink rose carried by the matron of honor.

Mike Estrem, a brother of the broom, was best man. Groomsmen were Terry Estrem, another brother of the groom; Arden Jacobson, a friend of the groom, and Bruce Bjorgaard, brother of the bride. Scott Nelson and Steve Waterworth, brothers-in-law of the bride, and Russ Holmaas, a friend of the couple, served as ushers.

The groom wore a white tuxedo with tails, a matching cummerbund, white bow tie, a white ruffled shirt and a red rose boutonniere. His attendants wore silver gray tuxedos with pink ruffled white shirts and pink rose boutonnieres. The ushers were attired in silver gray jackets, black trousers and vests, and white shirts with gray ruffles.

The mother of the bride was attired in a burgundy floor-length gown with a pleated skirt. Covered buttons accented the bodice. Her corsage was of pink roses, white carnations and babies' breath. A similar corsage was worn by the groom's mother, who wore a burgundy gown with a flowing bodice and a pleated skirt.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception in the church parlors for approximately 160 relatives and friends. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. John Estrem, uncle and aunt of the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hanson, friends of the bride.

Miss Cheryl Estrem, a sister of the groom, registered the guests and together with Beth Estrem, a cousin of the groom, served the punch. Gift bearers were Marsha Sathrum and Beth. Those presiding at the gift table were Debby Windahl and Joni Potucek.

The round, three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with pink, miniature flowers, wedding bells and miniature angels playing harps. Topping the cake, which was made by Janice Olson, was a cluster of pink roses, white carnations and babies' breath. The cake was cut and served by Pat Bjorgaard, aunt of the bride, and Lois Bauer, aunt of the groom. Pouring coffee were Jean Potucek and Alpha Sathrum, aunts of the bride and groom, respectively.

Waitresses were Marge Nash, Becky Oscarson, Julie Halvorsen and Kristy Knutson, friends of the couple.

Following a six-day trip to the ski report area in Upper Michigan, the couple is now at home at 1020 25th Street South, apartment 304, Fargo, N.D. The bride is employed by Circle Realtors, Inc., and the groom by Carpet by Ron. Photo Neal Fox Studio, Thief River Falls

Sensitivity Needed By Lawyers When Serving Bereaved

Lawyers have a definite role to play as counselors for the emotional needs of clients who need their services as technicians to handle the legal work involved in the death of a loved one, according to speakers at a seminar on probate sponsored by the advanced legal education division of the Hamline university school of law, St. Paul.

St. Paul attorney Glenn R. Ayres told the lawyers that communication with clients during the grief period is difficult, and that often the lawyer is the target of anger by the bereaved because of the paperwork and tax work necessary to be completed. Problems are complicated when the person dealing with the attorney is a widow of a man who did not keep her closely informed about the family's personal and business financial interests. "She can be utterly frustrated by her lack of exposure to the economics of society," Ayres said.

Robert Fulton, director of the center for death education and research at the University of Minnesota, told the law clinic participants that there is a distinction between a "high grief" death — the impact of a death brought about unexpectedly of a person on whom others depended heavily for their well-being — and "low grief" death — the reaction to the deaths of many elderly people in today's society.

Acute grief is a normal process for human beings who experience a loss. Fulton explained the grief syndrome quoting from the writings of Erich Lindemann in the "American Journal of Psychiatry": "Common to all is the following syndrome: sensations of bodily distress occurring in waves lasting from 20 minutes to an hour at a time, a feeling of tightness in the throat, choking with shortness of breath, need for sighing, an empty feeling in the abdomen, lack of muscular power, and an intense subjective distress described as tension or mental pain." The attorney becomes involved in this process, Fulton pointed out, because, according to Lindemann, "The patient soon learns that these waves of discomfort can be precipitated by visits, by mentioning the deceased, and by receiving sympathy. There is a tendency to avoid the syndrome at any cost. . ."

This explains, Fulton said, why some survivors are tardy about appointments with the lawyers, why appointments are broken, and why there is a general reluctance to discuss some or all matters relating to the life and property of the deceased person.

The attorney's role in the grief syndrome is an extremely critical one, Fulton contends. "What the lawyer, in effect, represents — perhaps more so than any other single caregiver or counselor — is the first significant step toward the acceptance of one's loss and the ability or willingness to endure the feelings associated with one's grief."

Attorneys must guard against transference of emotional energies from bereaved persons onto themselves, much in the same fashion as physicians and ministers.

Lawyers who are aware of the grief syndrome will also try to guide their grieving clients away from the tendency to either go into a period of extended inactivity or to become hyperactive. The activity should be to get the client to act and make decisions necessary to satisfy the court, creditors and the state and federal taxing authorities.

Fulton advised that attorneys establish a relationship with psychiatrist in order to get guidance in cases where the client acts contrary to his own best interests. "While this suggestion may have legal implications beyond our present competence, it is offered here only to remind the lawyer of the trust relationship that he or she has the client in the emotionally delicate situation that frequently prevails following a death."

Laws concerning death are functional and do not relate to the emotions of death. Ayres noted, for example, that within 30 days of the date of death a decedent's will must be deposited with the probate court. Within two and one-half months, unless a joint return is filed or an extension granted, the decedent's final income tax return must be filed. Within four months of the appointment of a personal representative, creditors of the estate must present their charges, Ayres said, and within nine months of the death, a U.S. estate tax return is due the federal government.

Because legal requirements may well intensify the emotional distress of the bereaved, Fulton said it is important for society to question whether or not the client as well as the law would be better served if the pace of these matters was less hurried. Under present law the lawyer is one of the first persons the bereaved must deal with, along with the funeral director. Both must offer their services soon after a personal loss, and many persons are suspicious of both the legal profession and the funeral service.

There is an important difference, however. According to studies made at Fulton's center for death education, while the public expressed a general hostility toward the funeral, it is generally trusting of the local or family funeral director. A study by the American Bar foundation, however, found that while the public generally places great faith in the law, it is distrustful of lawyers.

The legal status of the deceased human body is undergoing a major change in our society with the uniform anatomical gift act, Fulton said. Under English common law and down to our present time, the dead body was the property of the court until the state (in the person of the coroner) determined whether or not foul play was involved in the death. Only after this determination has been made is the body turned over the next of kin. The rights of the relatives are protected historically by law and there is no interference with their expressions of grief if they do not intrude upon traditional norms of propriety.

The anatomical gift act promises to change this historical relationship. The act takes the primary right to the body away from the grieving survivors and places it at the disposition of the person who has died.

In most states, including Minnesota, a person before death can pretty well determine what disposition will be made of his body and what services, ceremonies and rites shall or shall not be observed. This restricts the rights of the survivors to arrange a funeral appropriate to their own feelings and needs, and this can cause some extreme problems, particularly in the area of religion, Fulton said.

"What must be recognized is that all of the things that are done at the time of death are done primarily for those who survive and who suffer the pangs of grief. Often, however, the legal concerns for the care and disposition of the body and the disbursement of the estate of the deceased command such attention that the needs and feelings of the survivors are often neglected or obscured."

County Tax Delinquency Is 2.74 Per Cent

with $200,557. Delinquency there was $4,731 or 2.36 per cent. North township had a total levy of $167,669 and delinquency of $6,733 for 4.02 per cent.

A list of delinquent taxes by individual property owners will be published in February, according to C. W. Rodekuhr, Pennington county auditor, in compliance with Minnesota law. Efforts will be made to restrict the list to taxes unpaid at the time the list goes to the printer, he said, and a number of delinquencies as of January 1 have since been paid.

New Tax For Estates Cuts Cost To Heirs

would then be used to reduce the value the estate is to be taxed on to $300,000.

Under the exemptions provided by the old inheritance tax law — $250,000 for the spouse, plus $6,000 each for the two adult children — the estate would have been taxed at a value of $738,000. This is $438,000 more than it would be taxed on under the new estate tax law.

The difference between the exemptions provided by the two laws — together with the fact that the tax rates for each are different — translates to a 50 per cent tax cut. Under the old law the tax would have been $30,099. Under the new law the tax on the same estate would be $15,108.

The new law keeps all the deductions allowed under the old law, and creates a new exemption for pensions going to heirs of the estate.

Larger exemptions are only part of the story — the tax rates have changed, too. Under the old law, each heir's inheritance was taxed separately. Different tax rates were provided for heirs of different blood relationships to the decedent. The farther away in blood relationship, the steeper the tax rates.

There is only one tax rate schedule for the estate tax. The tax is paid according to the value of the entire estate — after it has been reduced by exemptions.

Under the estate tax, heirs of estates of all sizes over $161,000 — even those reduced by substantial exemptions — may be required to pay at least a minimum tax set by the law. This amount is equal to the credit given by the federal estate tax for payment of state estate taxes.

Also, the new estate tax law calls for a new method of determining the value that family farms are to be taxed on.

When the inheritance tax was still in effect, the method of establishing the value that a family farm was to be taxed on was determined by using the probably selling price of the farm.

The new law provides that the measure of value of the farm should be figured according to the average value of similar land rented out in the area.

In some cases this could mean that the value a family farm is to be taxed on may be as much as 50 per cent less than under the old method. The result could be a large tax cut.

The treatly increased exemptions and the simplicity of dealing with the new estate tax compared to the complexities of the inheritance tax should mean that many family farms and small businesses will now be able to survive the deaths of their founders and be passed on intact to family members.

Along with the replacement of the inheritance tax with the estate tax, Minnesota's gift tax has been eliminated altogether.

The gift tax law provided that those persons giving gifts over $3,000 in value should pay a tax on the gift at the time it is given.

Now that the gift tax law has been eliminated, Minnesotans are free to give gifts — and reduce the size of their estates — without having to pay state tax on the gift.

However, they should be aware that the federal gift tax still remains in effect, and they are still required to pay federal gift tax.

'U' M Records Record Winter Enrollment

Figures for the second week of classes show that 53,590 students are enrolled this quarter at the University of Minnesota, an all-time high for the second quarter of the school year.

Enrollment on all campuses is up a total of 2.8 per cent over last winter quarter, with an overall increase of 1,468 students. Of the total student body, 29,657 students are men and 23,933 are women.

Enrollment traditionally drops from fall to winter quarter, but this year's drop was about 400 students fewer than had been expected, according to David Berg, director of management planning and information services. Fall quarter enrollment was 56,290.

The larger-than-expected winter enrollment is due to a number of factors, he said. While 9,690 students dropped out last year between fall and winter quarter, 9,188 dropped out this fall. Further, 2,651 new students enrolled winter quarter compared to 2,157 new students last winter quarter.

Fall-to-winter attrition was also partly offset by the return of 2,656 former students.

Enrollment on each of the five campuses increased over last winter quarter: Crookston enrollment rose 14.1 per cent to 1,107 students, Waseca increased 10.4 per cent to 1,218 students, Twin Cities campus enrollment rose 2.5 per cent to 43,257 students, Morris went up 2.3 per cent to 1,387 students, and Duluth rose 1.7 per cent to 6,621 students.

On the Twin Cities campus, enrollment drops in several colleges were offset by increases in other colleges. Public health dropped 12.5 per cent, forestry 18.4 per cent, and education 8.7 per cent, while general college rose 12 per cent, the graduate school increased 4.7 per cent, and the institute of technology gained 13.5 per cent more students.

Enrollment in the college of liberal arts totaled 16,063 students, a 1.9 per cent increase over last winter.

Darrel Muzzy Receives Green Thumb Award

Darrel Muzzy of Thief River Falls, sophomore at Northland community college and a member of Dr. Samuelson's botany class, was the recipeint of the fourth annual "Green Thumb" award at the end of the fall quarter.

Muzzy received his award for raising the best plant of all the potted garden beans that had been started as a botany class project Septebmer 15. Each student planted garden bean seeds in flower pots and after the seedlings emerged, the plants were taken home for care. The mature plants were returned to the classroom November 15 for the Green Thumb contest.

Dr. Samuelson's instructions at the start of the project were ti give the plants plenty of tender loving care and to do anything that would make the plant respond favorably to the home environment.

When the plants were returned to the classroom November 15, each of the 14 participants explained to the class how he cared for his plants. The students, voting by secret ballot, chose the outstanding plant which was mature, symetrical, had good color, a strong stem and numerous pods containing seeds.

Darrel, a graduate of Lincoln high school, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Muzzy of Thief River Falls.

Problems With KAWE Tower Are Resolved

Numerous problems affecting the completion of the KAWE public TV tower were resolved at a meeting in Bemidji last week. The executive committee of Northern Minnesota public television, Inc., the project's consulting engineer, and the corporation's legal counsel met with the president and legal counsel of the tower contractor, Advance Industries.

Gerald Chesen, president of Advance, agreed that they would complete the tower and have the antenna mounted by April 30 so the station can be operational. Chesen said they have ordered all new steel which should be delivered to their factory by the end of January. The tower sections will be assembled at the factory and shipped to the site in completed 20 foot sections, instead of assembled on site.

Road restrictions during spring break-up were acknowledged as an important factor in the delivery schedule. Chesen said the tower sections should begin arriving on site by March 1.

Chesen explained some of the problems encountered last fall by reporting that several attempts to plumb the tower during construction were not successful. Advance has recently had the soil conditions at the anchor points tested, and preliminary results indicate a higher water table at the tower site than when originally tested.

Chesen said they will need to redesign the anchors to include either an additional anchor for each of the three legs, or will modify each anchor point with additional concrete.

Hopes To Stop Tax On Social Security Check

A joint resolution to make sure social security cash benefits remain exempt from taxation has been introduced in the U.S. House by Minnesota Congressman Arlan Stangeland.

"The advisory council on social security has recommended that 50 per cent of a person's cash benefits from social security be included as taxable income. The purpose would be to financially aid the already ailing social security system, but I cannot abide this type of treatment for this nation's elderly community. They are not responsible for the poor management of the social security program and they should not have to pay for it," Stangeland said.

Currently, social security cash benefits are not taxed and Congress is not actively considering the implementation of the advisory council's recommendation, but it could happen because there is no provision in the law prohibiting the taxation of social security benefits.

"My intent with the legislation is to make sure that such a recommendation could never be implemented. It's difficult enough for elderly people to make ends meet on social security as it is now, but taxing social security would impact heavily the ability of these people to buy food and pay their bills and still live a decent life," Stangeland said.

Snowmobile Registration At Low Point

Registrations of new snowmobiles in Minnesota were the lowest in 1979 since the Department of Natural Resources began licensing the machines in 1967.

DNR License officials said only 25,830 new snowmobiles were licensed last year in the state — the lowest figure since 1977 when 27,682 were registered.

Registration of new machines climbed to 32,586 in 1978 but fell off again last year.

Revenue produced by the license sales is deposited in the general fund and appropriated to the department to build and maintain trails, enforcement and other projects related to snowmobiling.

99 Newfolden Students Gain 2nd Honor Roll

Ninety-nine out of 252 students or 39.2 per cent of the student body at Marshall county central school at Newfolden gained the second quarter honor roll, according to David Kragness, high school principal.

Students must have a scholastic average of 2.67 (B-) or higher to earn a place on the honor listing. An average of 4.00 is equivalent to an A rating, with students earning honor points for advanced mathematics and science classes able to accumulate points beyond the 4.0 standard, Kragness said.

Senior class had the highest percentage of honor students (20 out of 37 for 54.1 per cent) of any of the classes, but the junior class had the most honor students (21 of 47 for 44.7 per cent). Honor students listed by classes and grade points include the following:

Antique Show This Week At Fergus Falls

Fergus Falls will be the site for the area's largest antique exposition February 1-3.

The show, which will feature antique exhibitors from throughout Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota, will run during regular West Ridge mall hours Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Hundreds of thousands of unique items will be displayed.

Public is invited and there is no admission charge.

The value of U.S. farm assets as of January 1, 1980, is expected to total $950 billion, up 16 per cent from a year ago.

COLD TEMPERATURES Sunday afternoon did not prohibit people from gathering for Winter Wildness activities during the three-day promotion for the Winnipeg-St. Paul I-500 snowmobile race. Radar runs and slalom races were two major events sponsored by the Sno-Drifters snowmobile club for snowmobilers who raced down the frozen river at high speeds.

SLALOM RACE, sponsored by the Sno-Drifters snowmobile club in Thief River Falls, was one of several activities conducted Sunday during the three-day winter wildness promotion in connection with the St. Paul International 500 snowmobile race. Winners who competed over a timed 240-foot course include: Men — Jerry Erickson, Thief River Falls, 13.88 seconds; Paul Odette and Dave Meyerhofer, who both completed the race in 15.81 seconds (Odette won in run-off); women — Pat Meyerhofer, Thief River Falls, 18.50 seconds; Mindy Green, 20.19 seconds; and Diane Paulson, 22.19 seconds. Snow Drifters "No-Pro 100" poker run winners were high hand, Jesse Schimke, Thief River Falls; and low hand Marland Kloety. They also received $10 and $5 respectively for membership in the Sno-Drifters club, and Shelley Jacobson, Thief River Falls, was the winner of the door prize.

USDA Seeks Public View On School Lunch

Students and parents with an opinion or two about the size and nutritional content of school lunch servings now have a chance to say so.

U.S. department of agriculture is asking the public to help develop a standardized monitoring system to ensure that each child receives a daily lunch that meets the department's nutritional requirements.

Specifically, the public is invited to respond to a series of questions printed in the January 18 Frederal Register.

For example, what should be monitored — food portions on plates or total amounts of food a school kitchen serves during a particular period? Should food service workers determine portions visually or by some other method? Should frozen pre-packaged meals be measured the same way as fresh foods?

Only lunches that provide specified amounts of four food groups are eligible for reimbursement under the national school lunch program. The amounts are designed to supply about one-third of daily food needs for a 10-12 year old child.

Committee of department and school food personnel will meet in January to condiser alternative ways to measure the adequacy of school meals served to children.

The public is invited to send specific ideas and comments to help the committee develop a system that will satisfy both common sense and the need for strict accountability of federal funds.

Send comments by March 3 to Stanley Garnett, School Programs division, 201 14th St., S.W., Room 4122, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Increase In Boat License Sales Noted

As of December 31, 1979, a record 563,850 watercraft were registered in Minnesota, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

The figure is up 22,648 from the 1978 total, said Kim Elverum, DNR boat and water safety coordinator.

Watercraft total is broken down as follows: 437,733 motorboats; 103,356 canoes; 20,937 sailboats; and 1,824 rowboats.

Greatest increases in registration occured in motorboats of 16 to 26 feet in length (up 10,881 from '78), with motorboats less than 16 feet in length a close second.

Sharp rise in canoe and sailboat registrations noted in recent years tapered off during 1979. Canoes increased by 2,034 (compared with 6,605 in 1979) and sailboats increased only 127 (compared with 1,340 in 1978;.

Nationally, Minnesota ranks third in boat registrations behind Michigan (705,733) and California (565,057).

"Minnesota's per capita boat registration once again tops the nation with one boat for every 7.09 persons," said Elverum.

State Land In Lake County Is For Sale

Department of Natural Resources has compiled a list of the state lands that will be offered for sale in Lake county to comply with the provisions of the legislative act creating Tettegouche state park.

Under the terms of the bill establishing the park, the DNR was directed to offer for sale lands having a total minimum appraised value of $888,000.

The requirement was put in the bill to insure that the county would not suffer a loss of tax revenue when the private lands were acquired by the state for the park. The selection of lands to be offered for sale is the result of a joint effort between Lake county officials and DNR.

Law required that lands were to be selected for sale which would result in a minimum impact on timber production and public recreation, and have maximum potential for private development.

Lands that the DNR is offering for sale will be sold at public auction on Sat., June 21, at 10 a.m. in the senior high school gymnasium at Two Harbors.

Included among the lands to be sold are platted lakeshore lots on Falls Lake, unplatted lakeshose on McDougal Lake, unplatted frontage on the Kawishiwi river waterway and various parcels of unimproved lands located elsewhere in Lake county of at least 40 acres in size. The total amount of land to be offered for sale is nearly 1,350 acres.

No bids will be accepted for an amount less than the appraised value of the lands as shown on the list, and the purchaser will be required to pay cash at the time of sale the appraised value of timber located on the land being bought plus improvements.

At least 15 per cent of the purchase price of the land must be paid in cash at the time of sale and the balance in not more than 20 equal installments. Payments must be made on June 1 each year, including interest at four per cent per annum on the unpaid balance.

All mineral rights on the lands are reserved to the state.

A list of the lands and all of the terms of sale can be obtained at the DNR Bureau of Land, Centennial Office Building, 658 Cedar Street, St. Paul; Lake County Auditor's Office, Two Harbors; and the DNR Regional Headquarters, Highway 2, Grand Rapids.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

During most of the last four weeks, I've traveled throughout Minnesota, visiting thousands of people in more than a dozen communities. Most people don't realize how big our state is until they get out on the road. My trips covered more than 1,600 miles, taking me to Chisholm, Crookston, Duluth, Eveleth, Hallock, Hastings, Hibbing, Moorhead, Red Wing, Roseau, Thief River Falls and Warroad, in addition to the Twin Cities.

Visiting with Minnesotans is an important part of my job. It gives each person a chance to evaluate me and the work I'm doing in the Senate. It also gives me the chance to listen to their concerns and bring their ideas back to Washington. Last year, I spent more than 110 days in Minnesota, more than any other Senator who isn't up for election, while still maintaining my 95 per cent voting record.

What did I learn during my most recent thousand mile trip? The three biggest concerns — inflation, energy and foreign policy — are far ahead of any other issue. The people of Minnesota aren't marching in the streets, but they feel a deep concern for their individual welfare and their country's future.

Minnesotans — whether they were the farmers I met in Red Wing or the Marvin Millwork employees in Warroad — are willing to make the necessary sacrifices. But, they want to know that one group won't be singled out for selective sacrifices. Farmers will do their share, but they aren't going to carry the burden of our foreign policy. The middle class won't pay for all our domestic programs. Consumers won't subsidize the country's energy program.

Just as each person is willing to do his or her share, the people of Minnesota want the government to do its share. The first step is to control federal spending by putting a limit on the amount that can be spent. In 1979 I cosponsored a bill to limit federal spending to a fixed percentage of the Gross National Produce; in 1980, passage of that bill will be a major priority.

People also know we need extensive reforms in our tax system. In 1979, the average income went up 12 per cent, but inflation increased at a faster rate. And, even more disturbing, individual tax payments went up almost 16 per cent. That means that every time you collected a cost of living pay increase just to keep up with inflation, you were pushed into a higher tax bracket. Instead of staying even with inflation, the higher taxes you paid put you farther behind the cost of lining. The persons I spoke with were enthusiastic about my bill to index the inflation out of the tax rates; that is, adjusting the tax rates every year to take into account the impact of inflation.

Other reforms are also necessary. For example, removing the capital gains tax on the sale of a home and increasing the amount of interest income that is not subject to federal income tax will give each of us more control over the money we spend.

I also heard a lot of good ideas on conserving energy and using and producing alternative energy sources. Coupled with my efforts to provide tax incentives for alternative energy and conservation, to put a limit on the amount of oil we import and to get a pipeline built to bring Alaskan oil to Minnesota, these ideas will help form the basis for a solid energy plan.

The people of Minnesota know we face a lot of serious problems. But they're ready to play an active role in the solutions. They will pick their new President carefully, they will let their public officials know how they feel on the issues and they will work together for the common good.

Sincerely,
Dave Durenburger
U.S.Senator

Legislative Report
Marv Hanson
District 1 State Senator

The 1980 session of the Minnesota legislature convened on Tuesday, January 22. The Senate made committee assignments to the three new senators elected since we adjourned last spring and began committee hearings. As you have undoubtedly read, the House elected a new speaker and that body will be taking some additional time to organize.

The Senate session opened in a rather subdued manner noting the recent death of Sen. Ed Schrom of Albany. On Wednesday a large number of us attended his funeral.

Governor Quie presented his "State of the State" address to a joint convention of the House and Senate on Thursday. His speech focused on energy, highway funding, school transportation aids, natural resources and the environment. Most legislators are agreed that there are problems in all of those areas that must be dealt with this session.

On energy concerns there appears to be general agreement that Minnesota needs a stepped-up program of weatherization grants and loans to insulate and save on heating needs and costs. The governor favored about what DFL legislators had been proposing in this area. Other recommendations made by the governor on energy include the expenditure of $2.7 million for retrofitting of state buildings; $2.7 million for a proposed district heating program in St. Paul, $1.3 million for the development of alternative energy sources, a tax credit to encourage employers to set up van-pooling systems, $1.3 million to expand state energy information and education programs.

I am pleased that there is general agreement to place additional funds in the school transportation aids. School districts in our area have been particularly hard hit with the escalating costs of gas for buses. Without additional aid many of the districts' budgets would have been severely pinched.

Governor Quie's proposal for a sales tax on gasoline is the most controversial recommendation he made. Many legislators question an automatically inflating tax like that when gasoline prices are projected by some to go as high as $2 per gallon by this time next year.

There is a critical need, however, to generate additional funding for highway maintenance and construction. This is especially important for northwestern Minnesota in getting our grain and farm products to market. We have to have a good road system, even a better one than we have now.

One approach to raise those revenues would be to transfer the sales tax on cars and trucks to the highway fund. Another is to take out of the highway fund the cost of running the department of public safety. Both of these measures will probably be done on a gradual basis. Nevertheless, additional revenues will probably be needed over what becomes available with those transfers and that is likely to come with a one or two cent increase in the gas tax.

But an inflating tax like the proposed sales tax on gasoline would hit the elevator manager, trucker, farmer and car owner alike.

One aspect of all of this that I'm looking at is the formula on which the cut backs on road projects were made last summer. I believe those cutbacks discriminated against the rural agricultural areas of Minnesota. We don't have traffic numbers like the metro areas and so our road scores are low. This resulted in our road projects getting cut. I hope to establish consideration for the volume of ag products, grains and commodities moving over our roads as a part of that formula. Hopefully, this would put our area back on a fair basis with the rest of the state.

Should you have any questions or comments to make on issues or matters before the legislature this session, please write me at 23 J. State Capitol Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155 or call me at (612) 296-4835. I look forward to hearing from you.

RACERS IN THE I-500 snowmobile race gathered around their machines Monday afternoon to make as many repairs as possible in the half hour maintenance repair time each driver was allotted. Maintenance repair was conducted at the impoundment area near the Thief River Falls sports arena, with security for the area provided by the Jaycees. Drivers were escorted by members of the Snow-Drifters snowmobile club from the finish line located west of highway 59 north of Thief River Falls to the impoundment area.

CROWDED ATMOSPHERE and warm clothing were causes of many racer-reactions during the driver meeting conducted Monday evening in the armory in Thief River Falls for I-500 participants. The meeting was one of many daily events during the I-500 snowmobile race which began in Winnipeg Monday morning.

State Fair's Volume Hits Record High

Minnesota state fair's operating income and expenses reached record levels during 1979, according to financial figures released recently at the 121st annual meeting of the state agricultural society, governing body of the state fair.

Income for 1979 totaled $5,482,072. Expenses, however, reached a record $5,242,092, leaving the fair with a net profit of $239,980. Income and expenses for 1978 were $4,999,714 and $4,866,112, respectively. Net profit for 1978 was $133,602.

Accumulated state fair profits are used to make permanent improvements to the fairgrounds. In 1979, $718,595 were spent on improvements; the 1978 figure was $211,063. Permanent improvement expenditures are not included in the operating expenses listed avove.

Lawrence F. Haeg, Robinsdale, was reelected to a second on-year term as president of the society.

Leonard F. Ramberg, Minneapolis, was reelected to the board for a two-year term as vice president. Arthur Sprengler, Plato, and Sulo J. Ojakangas, Hibbing, were each reelected to serve three-year terms on the society's board of managers.

Mike Heffron, Falcon Heights, was reappointed by the board to a fourth one-year term as secretary-general manager of the state fair.

In other business, Ralph Zimmerman of Eustis, Fla., and the late Kindy C. Wright were elected to the state fair hall of fame. Zimmerman was superintendent of the fair's greenhouses from 1944 through 1957. Wright served as architect and consultant to the fair from 1933 until his death in 1977.

Edward D. LaPointe, St. Paul, was elected to honorary life membership in the society. LaPointe's association with the fair began in 1946. He has supervised the fair's mechanical services since 1962.

MANY RACERS who attended the driver meeting Monday evening for I-500 snowmobile participants were exhausted from their trip from Winnipeg at 9 a.m. However, the meeting was a necessity for all racers who had to prepare for their second leg of the race to Bemidji Tuesday in the 15th annual running of the international snowmobile race classic.

Pre-Schoolers' Screening Is Available here

Cyndy looked like a healthy, energetic three year old when her parents brought her to the pre-school screening clinic. But careful questioning of the parents revealed Cyndy didn't always respond when her parents talked to her, and she seemed to speak less clearly than her friends.

During the simple health and developmental check-up at the screening, Cyndy was found to have a hearing problem. She was referred to her family physician, received treatment, and now hears as well as other children.

This voluntary program for 4-5 year olds is authorized by the Minnesota legislature. It gives all Minnesota pre school children free access to the simple screening procedure used to detect Cyndy's problem.

This screening consists of checking vision, hearing, dental health, immunization record and physical assessment. In addition children are screened for social and educational development. This screening is provided through the Thief River Falls school district by the Northwest regional inter district council of Newfolden. Parents with concerns about child's development may call 874-8215 by February 15.

IRS And Social Security Match Information

A cooperative effort between the internal revenue service and the social security administration, called "Combined Annual Wage Reporting," will allow the IRS to match nearly all wage and pension information documents against income reported on 1978 individual income tax returns, the IRS said.

On Jan. 1, 1979, employers began filing annually Form W-2, "Wage and Tax Statement," and Form W-2P (for pensions) with the SSA. The SSA transfers the information from the forms to magnetic computer tape, and shares it with the IRS.

Prior to combined annual wage reporting, the IRS received much of this information on paper documents, which are much more difficult and expensive to match. For example, it costs the IRS about $200 to process 100,000 documents furnished on magnetic media, while processing the same number of paper documents costs $20,000.

The IRS uses document matching to determine whether taxpayers have properly reported income on their tax returns. Besides identifying taxpayers who have not filed a return, or who have not reported the income shown on the information return, the IRS says its program also identified those who have overpaid taxes and are unaware that they are entitled to refunds.

State Grain Held Near 1979 Levels

Stocks of Minnesota's major grains remained near last year's levels, according to the Jan. 1, 1980 grain stocks report released by the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service.

Although holdings of wheat, oats and corn dropped, stocks of soybeans were record high. Barley, flaxseed, and rye in all storage positions were also above year-earlier levels.

Total storage of these crops amounted to 1,099.4 million bushels compared with 1,098.9 million bushels a year ago. Farm storage at 838.6 million bushels was down three per cent but off-farm storage of 260.7 million bushels was up 13 per cent. Farm storage accounted for 76 per cent of the total versus 79 per cent a year earlier.

There were 678.7 million bushels of corn stored in all positions in Minnesota on Jan. 1, one per cent below the record high set Jan. 1, 1979. Off-farm stocks at 133.3 million bushels were up seven per cent, the highest since 1961. Farm storage of 545.4 million bushels was the second highest on record, just three per cent below last year's record high. Farm storage accounted for 80 per cent of the total compared with 82 per cent a year earlier.

Minnesota's wheat stocks dropped 11 per cent from a year ago. Seventy-five per cent of the 106.4 million bushels on hand were stored on farms versus 78 per cent a year earlier. Farm inventories of 79.5 million bushels were down 15 per cent but off-farm holdings were up two per cent.

Total soybean stocks of 139.6 million bushels surpassed last year's record high holdings by 25 per cent. Off-farm stocks of 47.6 million bushels were at their highest level since 1970 and topped last year's level by 24 per cent. The record high 92.0 million bushels stored on farms posted a 26 per cent of the total, the same per cent as last year.

Oat stocks of 94.9 million bushels dropped 17 per cent from a year ago. Farm stocks fell 19 per cent and off-farm holdings declined 12 per cent. Eighty per cent of the total was stored on farms compared with 81 per cent a year earlier.

Barley stocks of 72.1 million bushels were at their highest January 1 level since 1972, outstripping last year by 15 per cent. Off-farm holdings of 28.0 million bushels gained 77 per cent over last year, the largest since 1972. Farm stocks of 44.1 million bushels were the second highest on record — just six per cent below last year's high. Farm storage accounted for 61 per cent of the total compared with 75 per cent a year earlier.

Flaxseed stocks gained 17 per cent from last year. Farm storage accounted for 27 per cent of the 3.7 million bushels on hand. Farm storage was up 26 per cent and off-farm storage rose 14 per cent.

January 1 rye stocks were 29 per cent above a year ago. Farm storage posted a four-per cent gain while off-farm storage increased 41 per cent. Farm stocks accounted for 25 per cent of total 4.0 million bushels in storage compared with 31 per cent last year. Hay supplies on Minnesota farms at nearly 6.9 million tons topped last year's record high tonnage by 11 per cent.

Capacity of off-farm commercial grain storage in Minnesota totaled 392.8 million bushels compared with 382.6 million bushels January 1, 1979. This was an increase of three per cent in off-farm storage capacity during the past year.

Quie Outlines Program For Energy Needs

"Energy is one of the critical issues Minnesotans will face in the 1980s. While there may be those on foreign shores who predict that the energy crisis will be our downfall, I predict it will be the issue that demonstrates to all the world the deep strength and true endurance of the American people," states Gov. Al Quie.

To meet the state's immediate and future energy needs, the governor has outlined a seven-point $56.6 million energy proposal for 1980 and states his position as follows:

First, the state must set an example in energy conservation. Last spring I requested the state reduce by 10 per cent — or 4 million miles — its travel miles. It appears we will meet that goal. This year I am asking the Legislature to add $2.7 million to the $4 million it already appropriated for upgrading the energy efficiency of state buildings. This $6.7 million investment should pay for itself in five years.

Second, the state must play an active role in influencing federal energy appropriations. We received $79 million in federal money this year and next year we anticipate $100 million. I will be working with my department heads to develop an efficient plan for distribution of these future funds.

Third, I am proposing that the state provide fuel assistance, on a sliding scale, to families with incomes of 125 to 150 per cent of poverty. Under my plan those in the 126 to 135 per cent range will receive a $300 payment for heating fuels other than natural gas; for natural gas they will receive $150. Those in the 135 and 144 range will receive $200 for heating fuels other than natural gas; for natural gas they will receive $100. Those in the $45-150 range will receive $100 for heating fuels other than natural gas; for natural gas they will receive $50.

Fourth, it is essential that the state encourage conservation.

I am requesting that the Legislature approve $11 million for additional weatherization grants to family homes.

As an incentive to reduce gasoline consumption I am asking the Legislature to appropriate $1.5 million for energy transportation conservation measures.

Included in this transportation program will be a 15 per cent tax credit for employer-sponsored vanpools. Currently there are approximately 340 such vanpools in the state. My goal is to see that number increase to 750 by 1982.

This program also calls for:

— An increase from 20 to 79 state vans by June 1981.

— Additional funds to the Minnesota Ridesharing program, a service sponsored by the Department of Transportation to assist employees with individual ridesharing plans.

— Increased enforcement of the state's 55 mile-per-hour speed limit.

In total this transportation proposal will save the state approximately 52 million gallons of gasoline annually.

Further, to encourage local conservation, I am proposing that local government (counties, cities, school districts) be allowed to exceed their levy limit by 1 mill, specifically for energy conservation purposes.

Fifth, to ensure Minnesota will have adequate oil supplies I am supporting construction of two pipelines, one from the west and one from the south.

Sixth, we must explore development of alternative energy. I am asking for $1.3 million to be used for an alcohol fuel demonstration program, a fuelwood management project and a state alternative energy contingency act, which will provide state funds to be matched with federal funds for participation in wind, biomass and agricultural residue projects.

In addition, I am seeking a state contribution of $2.7 million for capital costs of the Northern States Power Company district heating project in St. Paul.

Seventh, to see that all people of this state learn more about our energy needs and understand the importance of energy conservation I am asking for a $1.3 million appropriation for state energy public information programs.

And finally I am asking for $9 million to cover the state's increased energy costs and $12.4 million for increased school transportation costs.

I presented this energy proposal to the Legislature as part of my State of the State address on Thursday, January 24. Within the next few weeks I hope legislators will look at my proposals and soon approve a measure that addresses my seven energy priorities.

Ladies were also encouraged to sew layettes for LWR next fall and the ALCW will furnish material for the Esther garments sewing project. Jeannie Lane read the offering meditation. Present besides the Pastor were the new ALCW president, Janice Olson; also, Effie Pederson, Ardith Olson, Florence Knutson, Ann Dyrdal, Lillie Mae Hible, Evonne Moe, Pauline Vatsaas, Jodie Swanson, Carol Waswick, Jeannie Lane, LuAnn Lewis, and the hostesses.

Mrs. Roger Solem and Ralph Doyle of Thief River Falls spent a week ago Monday at the home of Cecelia Koropatnicki in Smiley, where they spent the day and were dinner guests. That same evening Mrs. Solem, Rog and Cindi visited at the Ron Hanson home in Thief River Falls.

Jury, Prowlers No. 1

After watching his team play well and still come out a 4-2 loser to Thief River Falls Tuesday, East Grand Forks high school hockey coach Tony Palmiscno said, "I would have to say Thief River is the No. 1 team in Section 8 right now." But he was quick to add that the Prowlers still do not have a clear-cut edge over the rest of the field whose top challengers include the Green Wave, Crookston and Roseau who skated to a 3-3 overtime tie last night, along with Warroad.

"There probably isn't more than two goals difference between the top four teams in the section," noted Palmiscno whose team faces a tough season-ending regular season schedule that will have the Green Wave playing six of their final seven games on the road, including trips to Warroad, Roseau and Crookston. The schedule concerns the first-year Green Wave coach, but not terribly. "We have played better on the road this year," he said. And that includes a 4-3 overtime victory at Thief River Falls, the Prowlers' only Section 8 loss this winter.

Looking at the Section 8 hockey picture and noting that defending champion Roseau is not in its usual position atop the standings, Ralph Anderson of the Becker County Record in Detroit Lakes says "I wouldn't want to be guilty of writing an obituary for Roseau's 1980 team at this January date, but from all appearances I think it would be safe to say that there will be a new sectional champion crowned on Friday, March 7, when the Section Eight finals are played at Thief River Falls."

Anderson noted, "It would seem right now the logical chief contenders for the sectional championship would be Thief River Falls, Crookston Central and East Grand Forks (pick your own order of finish, he says) and the schools like Roseau, Bemidji, Warroad and Moorhead surely have the potential to give the tournament that surprise factor."

If Thief River Falls has an edge, it's Bill Jury, the Prowlers' senior goaltender who has been nothing short of sensational over the past four games when he shut out Roseau 4-0, beat Warroad 6-1, blanked Bemidji 5-0 and last night stopped East Grand Forks' strong skaters 4-2.

Looking back at last week when the third-year starter in goal posted two shutouts and narrowly missed a third when a puck went off a skate for Warroad's only goal, Thief River Falls Wendell Grand lauded the work of Jury by saying, "It's been a long time since anybody up in this neck of the woods has done anything like that."

Jury was outstanding again last night. The Green Wave doubled last week's goal total against him because "East Side is better," than Roseau, Warroad and Bemidji, said Grand.

Earlier this winter Thief River Falls fans were concerned because the Prowlers were giving up a lot of goals. Like now when he's in the headlines for his outstanding play, the goalie received a lot of attention then.

However, Grand said, "I felt from the beginning to the end Billy has played well. Some people got excited when we got some goals scored on us. But they didn't see what kind of goals they were. He wasn't getting much help in his end of the rink."

Jury got that help at Roseau, but had to come up with some outstanding individual play in the last three games to lower his goals-against-average.

Miscellaneous

+ Larry Peterson, the Thief River Falls native and one-time Roseau basketball coach who has turned the losing basketball program into a winner at Appleton this season, watched his first-year Aces lose a one-sided 81-63 game to Ortonville recently in a battle of Little Sioux Conference leaders.

+ Frank Fee of KROX radio in Crookston says his current Section 8 hockey ratings show 1. Thief River Falls; 2. Crookston; 3. Roseau; 4. East Grand Forks. He also says Hallock is the most improved team in Section 8; East Grand Forks is the fastest; and Moorhead, who will be here Saturday, is the biggest.

+ Plagued by foul problems that severely limited his playing time, Crookston basketball standout Tim Knotek failed to score in double figures for the first time this winter Saturday, getting just two points in the Pirates' 57-56 loss at Detroit Lakes. The night before the Lakers, who will host Thief River Falls Feb. 15, edged Wadena 57-55.

+ That Crookston squad that was here last night for an MJCAA Northwest Division basketball game against Northland set a new school scoring record Saturday in a 103-80 win over Rainy River, breaking a one-year-old record by a single point. The win also provided coach Jim Sutherland with his highest single season victory total — nine — in his three years with the Trojans. But with the 93-85 loss to the Northmen Tuesday, Sutherland is still winless in seven tries against Northland.

Clauson, Jury Are Leaders In Section 8

Bob Clauson of Crookston is the leading scorer and Bill Jury of Thief River Falls is the top goaltender in Section 8 high school hockey statistics announced Monday by Frank Fee of KROX radio in Crookston.

Clauson scored 23 points and picked up 16 assists for 39 points in the Pirates' first 12 games this winter. That's a one point edge over Matt Baab of Mount St. Benedict and Wade Hoppe of Thief River Falls going into last night's Section 8 schedule.

Jury, after giving up just one goal in three games last week, dropped his goals-against-average to 2.6 and upped his save percentage to 91 per cent by stopping 281 shots while giving up only 29 goals in 11 games.

STRIKING AN imposing figure on defense was Thief River Falls sophomore LeAnn Paetznick who kept Shellie Taggart of Greenbush away from the basket in the first half of Monday's girls high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym. The Prowlers beat the Tigers 53-37.

Prowlers Host Fertile-Beltrami Friday . . .

Girls End Slump With 53-37 Win Over Tigers

It wasn't artistic, but Thief River Falls needed a win Monday and they got one — a 53-37 triumph over Greenbush in a whistle-slowed girls high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym.

The victory snapped a three-game losing streak for the Prowlers and brought their record to 4-6 heading into and Friday night assignment against Fertile-Beltrami. The Falcons will be here for a 7:30 game.

"We needed that," noted Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg after the Prowlers' first win since Jan. 12. "Maybe that'll get us out of our slump."

Thief River Falls scored the game's first eight points and was threatened only once when Greenbush, after falling behind 14-4 early in the second quarter, out-scored the Prowlers 8-1 over a two-minute stretch that brought the Tigers to within 15-12 on Shellie Taggart's basket from underneath on an in-bounds play with 3:23 remaining in the first half.

But that's when the Prowlers came up with their best basketball of the night, and maybe their best play since going into their recent tailspin. Rebounding, running and pressing, Thief River Falls controlled the action the rest of the half for a 23-14 cushion.

Junior guard Ann Goodrich, the game's high scorer with 18 points, got the Prowlers going with a free throw, then added a steal and a fast break lay-up with 2:02 to go. Paula Reese answered with a pair of Greenbush free throws for an 18-14 game, but Thief River Falls scored five points in the final 49 seconds as sophomore LeAnn Paetznick sank a free throw and team captain Roberta Engel was there to score on the rebound when Paetznick missed her second attempt. Goodrich completed the surge with a fast break lay-up.

That spark carried over to the start of the second half when the Prowlers scored the first 12 points of the third quarter to salt the game away with a 35-14 bulge. It was 40-22 before the quarter ended, but the caliber of play at both ends deteriorated.

"We seem to play to our competition," admitted Sjoberg. "But at least tonight we got the lead and didn't give it up."

Thief River Falls dominated the boards, finishing with a 54-31 rebound advantage, and consequently put up 28 more shots. The Prowlers were 19-for-78 from the field for 24 per cent while the Tigers went 10-for-50 for 20 per cent.

Whistles stopped play for 46 fouls, 45 turnovers and a bundle of jump balls. Thief River Falls was 15-for-29 at the free throw line where Greenbush was 17-for-32. The Tigers topped the turnover figures 25-20.

Crookston 57-52 Winner Over Northland Women

Fouls, free throws and turnovers were commonplace Tuesday as Crookston defeated Northland 57-52 in a women's college basketball game played in Thief River Falls.

There were 46 fouls called, 55 free throws shot and 73 turnovers charged in the ragged game.

Northland led 28-21 at halftime and was even, 36-36, at the 10-minute mark of the second half before a parade of Crookston free throw shooters decided the issue. The Trojans scored 15 of their final 21 points at the free throw line.

Officiating, said Northland coach Deb Jacobson, wasn't good, "and we didn't play our best game, either."

Julie Easton and Julie Anderson of Northland shared game-high scoring honors with 18 points apiece, but nobody else got more than six. Patty Biebel led Crookston with 16 points.

Both teams scored 19 times from the field, with the Northwomen hitting 26 per cent of their 72 shots and the Trojans dropping 44 per cent of their 43 attempts. From the free throw line Northland was 14-for-23 and Crookston was 19-for-32.

Northland held the edge in rebounds, 49-39, but also topped the turnover figures, 42-33.

Now 3-11 for the year and 2-5 in the Northwest Division, the Northwomen face division leader Brainerd Friday at 6 p.m. in the Northland gym. They'll be at the University of North Dakota for a 7:30 p.m. game against the Sioux junior varsity Monday.

Prowlers, EGF Face Each Other On Thursday

Fresh from a confidence-building 58-57 triple overtime victory over Fergus Falls Friday that ended Thief River Falls' winless plight in the Northwest Athletic Conference basketball race, the Prowlers return to NWAC competition this week with games Thursday here against East Grand Forks and Friday at Bemidji.

Both games start at 7:30 p.m. The unusual Thursday date is a storm-postponed make-up game from Jan. 11. The game has been billed as band night, with the 100-plus member Varsity Blue band, under the direction of Doug Engstrom, presenting a halftime show with a Walt Disney theme.

On Friday the Prowlers, 7-5 overall and 1-3 in the Northwest Athletic Conference, will be cast in the role of the spoiler as they tackle the defending NWAC champion Lumberjacks, the current conference leaders.

An 83-71 winner here earlier in the season, Bemidji is just 4-9 overall, but 3-1 in the NWAC where they have a one-point edge over Crookston even though the Pirates have an identical 3-1 record. Bemidji and Crookston will probably decide the NWAC title when those two meet the following week at Bemidji.

Boosters Club Plans Meeting

Chet Engelman, Northland community college basketball coach, will be the guest speaker Thursday when the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club meets for its weekly 12 noon luncheon meeting in the basement of the Rex Cafe.

TRF Takes 4-3 Overtime Win In JV Game

Jim Dillon's second goal of the game at 1:23 of a three-minute sudden death overtime period gave Thief River Falls a 4-3 win over East Grand Forks Tuesday in junior varsity high school hockey.

Goals by Dillon, Jeff Imgrund and Rick Engelstad taked Thief River Falls to a 3-1 lead through two periods, but a series of dramatic events in the final minute of the third period tied the game and produced overtime.

East Grand Forks started the late game excitement by pulling its goalie in favor of an extra attacker with 1:01 remaining. A rink-long Thief River Falls shot at the open net missed by inches with 49 seconds left and an argument broke out when officials ruled no goal when the Green Wave thought they had a tie with 27 seconds on the clock.

Then with just five seconds to go, East Grand Forks' Jim Derrick did get the equalizer.

The win avenged a 3-1 Thief River Falls loss to East Grand Forks earlier this year and improved the winner's record to 9-3-1.

Prowlers Defeat Green Wave 4-2

Tony Palmiscno said his team is in a scoring slump. And to complicate matters for his Green Wave Tuesday, they were facing the best goalie in Section 8 in Thief River Falls' Bill Jury. The result was a 4-2 win for Jury and the Prowlers.

Combined with a 3-3 overtime tie between Crookston and Roseau on a night when the top four teams in Section 8 high school hockey were paired off, the win at the East Grand Forks civic center arena opened up a four-point edge for the first place Prowlers over all three challengers — the Green Wave, Pirates and Rams — in the all-important loss column in the Section 8 point standings that will determine post-season tournament pairings.

Continued excellence in goal by Jury and the Prowlers' point-producing Jeff Ulrich-Wade Hoppe-Jim Thompson line made Thief River Falls a winner over an East Grand Forks team that had taken a 4-3 overtime victory out of Thief River Falls earlier this month. Jury matched the play that saw him give up just one goal in three games last week with an excellent 33-save performance and the HUT line did all the scoring as the Prowlers pushed their record to 10-3 with their fifth straight win.

Ulrich had himself a four-point game with two goals and two assists, including a back-breaking slap shot as he skated through the slot with just 10 seconds left in the second period. The shot, a high, hard one, was a power play goal after East Grand Forks' Dave Swanberg picked up his second of three penalties, pushing the Prowlers' lead to 3-1.

"That goal really hurt," acknowledge Palmiscno. "That put us down two, and against a good goaltender like Jury, goals are hard to come by." And to make matters worse, Palmiscno said, "I honestly believe we're in a scoring slump. The kids are getting frustrated."

Jury would frustrate most opponents. The senior netminder entered the game with a Section 8-leading 2.6 goals against average, which was a remarkable 1.7 against Section 8 foes only.

"Jury was himself," described Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand who let his goaltender's past work speak for itself.

But Grand wasn't particularly pleased with the rest of the Prowlers' play that looked shaky through the first period that ended in a 1-1 tie.

Tom Mishler put aside any thoughts of a third Jury shutout just 39 seconds into the game. Standing in the goalie's face, Mishler got a rebound up after Swanberg hit a pipe.

Ulrich tied it on a clean breakaway. A pass at center ice from Hoppe put Ulrich behind the Green Wave defense. He came in on goalie Mark Pagnac, waited for him to go down and lifted up a point-blank backhand as he skated by the net at 13:56.

"We had trouble with their forechecking," admitted Grand. "They may forecheck harder than anybody else in Section 8."

Thompson put Thief River Falls ahead 2-1 by matching Mishler's quick first period goal with one at the 44-second mark of the second period, slamming home a rebound off Pagnac that came off a shot from the opposite side by Ulrich as those two approached the East Grand Forks net 2-on-1.

Six of the game's nine penalties were called in the second period, with Thief River Falls collecting four of them. In fact, three Prowlers were crowded into the penalty box early in the period when Thief River Falls skated two men short for 64 seconds.

"Turning point of the game was the fact we were able to kill off all those penalties in the second period," noted Grand who said he was worried about finding an effective penalty-killing combination when three Prowlers were in the box and a fourth — wing Paul Drees — was sidelined with a shoulder injury suffered in the first period.

"I felt if we could get out of the (second) period even, we'd be in good shape," said Grand who got a better deal than that when Ulrich scored as time dwindled down. "Was that ever," was Grand's response when asked if Ulrich's goal was a big one.

Hoppe finished a three-point night by scoring at 4:20 of the third period to make it 4-1. Stationed in front of Pagnac, Hoppe had plenty of time after receiving a pass from Ulrich to pick a spot and score his 15th goal of the year.

Less than a minute later Brian Larson of East Grand Forks got the crowd excited when he scored to make it 4-2. But with Jury holding firm, that's as close as the Green Wave got. Pagnac had 28 saves.

Northmen Win 93-84; Host Brainerd Friday

Things are getting interesting in the Northwest Division of the Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA). With 2½ weeks left in the 1979-80 schedule, all four Northwest Division rivals — Brainerd, Fergus Falls, Crookston and Northland — are within one game of each other in the tightly packed standings that will qualify the top two finishers for the MJCAA state basketball tournament.

In fact, Brainerd, Fergus Falls and Crookston are all deadlocked for the lead with 4-2 records following Tuesday's 93-84 Northland win over Crookston that brought the Northmen to 4-3.

Another key confrontation is scheduled Friday when Northland hosts Brainerd in an 8 p.m. showdown.

Northland's one-two knockout punch of Terry Harris and Vince Parker flattened Crookston Tuesday. Harris, the leading scorer and No. 2 rebounder in the MJCAA, poured in 39 points and pulled down 19 rebounds with a devastating inside game while Parker dazzled the Northland gym fans with 26 points on outside bombs and still had time to hand out seven assists.

"Parker was fantastic," praised Northland coach Chet Engelman who said the 5-6 sophomore guard was 9-for-14 from the field in the second half that did not include a single lay-up. "Harris played well, too," added Engelman. "But it wasn't just those two kids who won it for us."

It was close in the first half as the lead changed hands seven times until Northland finished with eight straight half-ending points — by Harris and Parker, of course — to open up a 48-38 lead at intermission.

The second half belonged to the Northmen as they ran up a 70-50 lead with 12:07 remaining and built it to 90-66 with 2:51 left.

Keith Strickland starred for Crookston with a 37-point performance, but Crookston needed 32 free throws to stay in the ball game. The Trojans made 26 of them. Northland was 7-for-13 at the line.

But Northland had a big edge in shooting, going 43-for-83 from the field for 52 per cent while Crookston was 29-for-73 for 38 per cent.

Huskies Top Flyers 54-42

Goodridge made good on 22 of 37 free throw attempts Tuesday to pull out a 54-42 high school basketball win at Fisher. And coach Rick Nelson said the Huskies earned those 37 free throw opportunities.

"We took the ball to the basket and made some breaks for ourselves," he reported as his team won for just the third time in 16 games this winter.

Fisher led 9-8 after one quarter, but Goodridge was up 23-15 at halftime and carried a 29-25 edge into the fourth quarter.

"For the first time all year we were able to play a man-to-man defense the whole game," said Nelson who has had to compensate for a lack of quickness with a zone much of the year. "The kids hustled on defense."

Randy Henrickson scored 13 points for the Huskies and Nelson praised the play of Rick Cullen and Kurt Wiseth who finished with 11 and 10 points, respectively, and also cited guard Neil Race who was credited with five assists.

Goodridge shot 40 per cent from the field, hitting 16 of 40 shots. Stephen, 12-for-27 at the free throw line in the foul-plagued game, finished 15-for-45 from the field for 33 per cent.

Stephen 60
MCC 53

Stephen converted 24 of 39 free throw attempts Tuesday to beat Marshall County Central 60-53, snapping the Nordics' five-game winning streak.

Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland wasn't happy with his team's play. "We didn't play well. We didn't play our style of game," he said.

And even in the one area the Nordics did well, they got themselves in trouble. "We rebounded well. We were really aggressive on the boards," noted Ueland. "But that was part of our foul problem."

It was a 25-25 tie at halftime, but Stephen pulled ahead 44-37 in the third quarter and dropped Marshall County Central's record to 10-4.

The winners shot 55 per cent from the field on an 18-for-33 showing. The Nordics were 20-for-64 from the field for 31 per cent and finished 13-for-23 at the free throw line.

Marshall County Central will be at Badger Thursday for a storm-caused make-up game before hosting North Border Conference leader Lake of the Woods Saturday.

Sullivan's Is 23-2 Winner In City Play

Sunday's games in Thief River Falls men's city league hockey ranged from a 23-2 Sullivan's rout of McDonald's to a 6-6 overtime tie between Harger's and Sooline.

Sullivan's ran its record to 10-0 with the 21-goal victory over McDonald's.

A history of close Harger's vs. Sooline games surfaced again when an eight-minute overtime failed to break the 6-6 deadlock. Earlier this year Harger's edged Sooline 6-4. A year ago Harger's won 8-7.

Wennberg's avoided an upset bid by Peterson Lumber by winning 6-4.

Johnson out-scored Hoard 12-10 to complete the schedule.

Games this Sunday in the sports arena begin at 5:30 p.m. with Harger's vs. Johnson, Peterson Lumber vs. Hoard and Sullivan's vs. Sooline. In the old arena at 8 p.m. it's McDonald's vs. Wennberg's.

City League Basketball Has Division I Tie

Wins by Bud's Auto Sales and Rusty Nail Monday in the Thief River Falls men's city league basketball program, created a three-way first place tie in Division I of the two-division, 10-team league.

The tie was created when Bud's, led by Mike Singer, Jon Nelson and Duane Dicken, knocked off the Division I-leading Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) squad that featured Henry Holte and Larry Rickles. At the same time, Rusty Nail defeated last-place Melvie Trucking to cause the three-way log jam.

Tonight (Wednesday) Hartz, boasting a league-best 8-1 record, will try to pad its Division II lead against First Northwestern State Bank in the second portion of a three-game card in the city auditorium that starts with a 6:30 p.m. Plummer vs. Rusty Nail game and ends with a game matching Bud's Auto Sales and Newfolden. The defending league and playoff champion Hartz squad is led by Tom Bendickson, Howard Vigen and Don Grabowska.

On Monday, FCA plays Melvie Trucking and Newfolden faces Brite-Spot in a double header that starts at 6:30 p.m. in the city auditorium.

Girls B Squad 60-12 Winner Over Tigers

Karmon Espe scored 17 points and Patty Blackstad had 13 Monday as the Lincoln high school girls junior varsity basketball team handled Greenbush 60-12.

Thief River Falls, 6-4 for the year, ran up a 19-2 first quarter lead, made it 33-5 at halftime and pulled away 49-5 in the third quarter.

DEFENSIVE WORK BY Thief River Falls captain Roberta Engel (11) kept Mary Sovde of Greenbush away from the baseline during Monday's girls high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym. In the background, Thief River Falls' Tara Nicholson (41) kept an eye on Karen Sovde of the Tigers. The Prowlers won the game 53-37, improving their record to 4-6 heading into a Friday game in the Lincoln gym against Fertile-Beltrami.

Goodridge Girls Put Up 101 Shots, Win 70-49

Full court press defense and fast break offense produced 101 Goodridge field goal attempts Monday as the Huskies ran past Oklee 70-49 in a girls high school basketball game played at Goodridge.

"They are really moving," said coach Susan Saurdiff of her winning Huskies. "They were really fired up for it."

Four Huskies scored in double figures as Angie Berndt finished with 17 points, Sue Johnson, who spearheaded the press, had 14 on several steals, Vicki Troska 12 and Judy Kiesow 12. Donna Stenberg scored a game-high 21 points for the Bobcats.

Oklee led 17-16 at the end of the high-scoring first quarter, but Goodridge went on top 33-27 at halftime and pulled away to a 50-37 third quarter cushion.

Goodridge made 33 of those 101 field goal attempts for 33 per cent while Oklee hit 18 of 52 shots for 35 per cent. From the free throw line the Huskies were a not-so-good 4-for-15 and the Bobcats were 13-for-29.

The win improved the Huskies' season record to 8-3. They'll be in Crookston to play Mount St. Benedict Thursday.

Roseau 31

Marshall County Central won 38-31 at Roseau Monday by making six key free throws when the game was on the line in the fourth quarter.

"We made some clutch free throws in the fourth quarter," confirmed Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde whose team finished 10-for-17 at the line where Roseau was just 3-for-13. And that produced the win since both teams scored 28 points from the field.

Roseau began with a 10-6 first quarter lead, but Marshall County Central turned things around to build a 23-15 halftime edge and the Nordics carried a 28-19 cushion into the final eight minutes.

Rosalyn Knutson and Sue Olson scored 10 points apiece for the winners, and they were both key figures at the line where Olson made four of five gift tosses and Knutson sank four of six attempts.

Neither team shot well from the field. Marshall County Central was 14-for-51 for 27 per cent and Roseau was 14-for-60 for 23 per cent.

Marshall County Central, now 11-1, will host Hallock Thursday and will entertain Strandquist Monday.

Zimpel, "playing her best game ever," according to Plummer coach Rick Koivisto, led the trio with 26 points. Fisher had 25 and Westlake added 17.

Plummer had no trouble breaking the Eagles' full court press as the host Cardinals exploded for a 20-8 first quarter lead, made it 34-13 at halftime and upped the count to 56-22 in the third quarter.

Winning for the fifth straight game, Plummer shot 58 per cent from the field by hitting 35 of 60 shots. Zimpel, open for a bundle of press-breaking lay-ups, was good on 13 of 17 shots. TRF YOUTH HOCKEY

This week's Thief River Falls youth hockey schedule starts Friday when East Grand Forks visits the sports arena Friday for a 7 p.m. Bantam A game.

On Saturday, the Bantam A team hosts Warroad at 1 p.m. in the sports arena, while games in the old arena that afternoon feature Hallock — the Squirt B teams playing at 1 and Bantam B teams at 2:30.

Weekend road games will be highlighted by a Pee-Wee A tournament at Fergus Falls. Also, on Saturday the Squirt A team will be at Crookston for a 10:30 a.m. game and the Pee-Wee B team will be at Bagley for a 1 p.m. contest. On Sunday the Squirt B team will be at Crookston at 1 p.m., Bantam A at Fargo South at 1:30 and the Pee-Wee B at East Grand Forks at 3:30.

Pee-Wee A team split a pair of weekend games for a 5-13-0 record. Thief River Falls beat Grafton 6-1 Saturday as Al Erickson and Jim Brieland scored two goals each, but lost to East Grand Forks 7-2 Sunday. Scott Novak and Bob Geatz scored in that one.

Jeff Grand's hat trick and two goals from Steve McGann led the Squirt A team to a big 7-3 win over Roseau Saturday. Bill Dicken had 15 saves for the winners who expanded upon a 3-2 second period lead. McGann came back with a hat trick Sunday and Kent Hamre and John Matson scored two goals apiece in a 9-1 victory over East Grand Forks.

Bantam A team played in the Roseau Lions invitational tournament. In quarterfinal action, Thief River Falls was a 3-2 loser to eventual champion International Falls. In consolation round play, Thief River Falls beat Roseau 5-3 but lost to Cloquet 6-3 in the consolation championship game.

Squirt B team edged Roseau 6-5 in overtime but lost to a strong Crookston team 9-0.

Bantam B team improved its record to 10-4 with three wins last week. Lon Aune scored five times in an 11-1 Friday win over Bemidji and Rob Raymond added a hat trick. Lee Genereux shut out Moorhead 3-0 Saturday, then on Sunday, Aune scored twice, with Raymond and Chris Blankenfeld adding single goals, in a 4-1 victory over Red Lake Falls.

SKI REPORT

by Dr. Hugh Patterson

Just a few days ago I received a letter from my friend, Harry Baxter, marketing manager for Jackson Hole ski area at Teton Village, Wyoming. This is one of America's largest, and certainly its highest vertical elevation, 4,129 feet. It is a great one, with fun for every skier but a special Mecca for the experts. The year before last I ran it from the top twice and four thousand feet of vertical is real adventure and a test for those legs.

You get a new respect for the vitality and skill of American youth when you see them coming down those vast slopes in deep powder snow. This is a place to match skill with exciting challenge. The scene is sheer magnificence.

The Tram that goes to the top carries 65 skiers to a load, the largest built by a North American company. It hangs on a cable and at one point it is a mile between towers supporting it. At the top of Rendezvous peak you are in the midst of the grandeur of the Tetons at 10,450 feet elevation. Stop and have a good look for you have some real problems in the over three fourths of a mile vertical drop ahead of you.

First there is the very steep 1,200 foot drop of Rendezvous bowl. From the bottom of this you follow the Gras Ventre traverse two ski tracks wide along the top of a lofty cliff on your right. On the left the mountain soars up into the wild blue yonder. The valley thousands of feet below is awesome, but I tend to keep my eyes on those ski tracks. Gras Ventre run the rest of the way is steep but delightful. It certainly does beat those legs. It is one of those precious experiences one will never forget.

For those not as daring, Opre Vaus mountain has lovely skiing with 2,200 feet of vertical. New Casper basin is delightful intermediate skiing. Novices have ample ideal terrain.

Snow dressing is very good. There are excellent lodging facilities and fine restaurants. I particularly enjoyed the "Mangy Moose".

There are two other ski areas nearby. Grand Targhee we have described, and Snow King in the delightful town, Jackson, Wyoming.

Deadline Near For Turkey Hunt Permit

Department of Natural Resources has 1,200 permits to issue for the coming spring turkey hunt in southeastern Minnesota but to date has received very few applications for them.

Deadline for submitting an application is Feb. 6. Hunters have a choice of five zones and four five-day hunting periods from April 19 through May 11.

Hunters will be selected through a computerized drawing.

Application blanks and details on the hunt became available Jan. 16 at county auditors' offices and from most license agents.

Applicants must be at least 16 years old by April 19, be Minnesota residents for 60 days preceding that date, not have had a Minnesota turkey license during either of the previous two years, and not have had their small game hunting privileges revoked within one year prior to March 21, 1980.

Public Waters Explained In DNR Brochure

A new illustrated pamphlet explaining Minnesota's public waters and wetlands permit program is availble without charge from the Department of Natural Resources.

The pamphlet explains what public waters and wetlands are, contains photos of the various types of wetlands, tells when a permit is needed — or not needed — to do work in public waters and wetlands, explains what rights of access the public has to such waters and why the state regulates public waters and wetlands.

Copies of the brochure can be obtained from the DNR Bureau of Information, 3rd Floor Centennial Building, St. Paul; from DNR regional offices; and from various other DNR offices and facilities around the state.

In Memoriam

Gone But Not Forgotten

A precious one from us is gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
God in His wisdom has recalled,
The boon his love had given,
And though the body slumbers here,
The Soul is safe in Heaven.

In loving memory of our mother, Sarah Wilson, who passed away two years ago Jan. 30, 1978.

Guarded Treasure

What infinite pains we take to guard our valuable possessions! Yet not all our possessions can be given protection in a safe. What about the priceless treasure which each of us possesses — our eternal happiness?

To safeguard this great treasure, where can we go?

The answer lies in the Church. It gives us the combination that opens the door to our spiritual riches — the combination of faith and good works. The Church guards and guides us along the way that leads to the treasure — the way led by Jesus, our Savior. It invites everyone to join in service to God and to our fellowmen. In this way, we inherit new riches of the spirit that no man or circumstance can steal or destroy.

Mister Rogers To Discuss Monsters

Fred Rogers will present a week of five all-new Mister Rogers' Neighborhood broadcasts concerned with how children look upon television super-heroes and frightening monsters. Featuring visits to the set of The Incredible Hulk and a dinosaur exhibit at Pittsburgh's Carnegie museum, the shows will premiere at 4 p.m. Mon., Feb. 4, on Prairie Public Television.

The five new Monday through Friday Mister Rogers' Neighborhood broadcasts will be introduced by a special for parents, Mister Rogers Talks With Parents About Superheroes, which will deal with the same issues and concerns from the perspective of adults as the new Mister Rogers' Neighborhood broadcasts. The special for parents will be seen at 4 p.m. Sun., Feb. 3.

During the week of new Mister Rogers broadcasts, Rogers shows his young viewers that superheroes and scary monsters are imaginary.

Visiting the set of the television series The Incredible Hulk, Rogers demonstrates that this huge green superhero is a kindly man (Lou Ferrigno) made to appear menacing by makeup, costume and special effects. In an interview, Rogers talks about superheroes with the show's star, Bill Bixby (who plays Dr. Banner). Bixby and Ferrigno (who plays the Hulk that Dr. Banner supposedly turns into when he gets angry) appear together so that children can see that they are two separate people. As Bixby says to Rogers, "We're glad to show you our kind of make believe."

Rogers reassures his young viewers that "all monsters and superheroes on television and in the movies or comic books are either pictures or somebody dressed up in costume. They are not real, but they often scare people because they look so real — usually because of special effects."

Young viewers also will learn about other kinds of creatures when Rogers visits the Carnegie museum. There, the curator, Dr. Mary Dawson, tells visiting children interesting facts about prehistoric dinosaurs in the exhibition hall. She explains that dinosaurs did inhabit the earth millions of years ago, but reassuringly adds that "they don't live here any more. The only place dinosaurs are ever found now is in some people's dreams."

Scary dreams also are discussed in the Neighborhood of Make Believe, where Prince Tuesday is bothered by a nightmare about a dinosaur. The Prince learns that, while people sometimes do have dreams about frightening things, those things are make believe. Rogers emphasizes the need for children to talk with understanding adults and "with the people they love" about things that worry or frighten them.

Rogers notes that because children are small and feel vulnerable in a world that seems big and sometimes scary, they tend to identify with the superheroes they see on television and to fantasize that they themselves are super-big, super-strong and super-fast. He tells children that pretending is a very important part of growing. He emphasizes, however, that people love them exactly as they are.

In another scene, Rogers introduces youngsters to a backhoe — a truck with a scoop crane — a mechanical "monster" that might frighten them. After watching the backhoe dig up the earth with its imposing teeth, Rogers reassures his young viewers they need not fear this machine, "because it does not go by itself but requires a responsible operator to run it."

Fifteen new Mister Rogers' Neighborhood broadcasts, which will be integrated into the continuing Mister Rogers series, have been produced for the 1979-1980 season, Fred Rogers' twenty-fifth anniversary in children's television. The first five, which premiered just prior to the start of school this past fall, dealt with children facing their first days of school. The second five examine superheroes. The last five broadcasts in this current series, which will describe the making of an original children's opera, will premiere in the spring of 1980.

They're "Starhops." The tasty trio of super carhops, Sterling Frazier, Jillian Kesner and Dorothy Buhrman turn a failing drive-in restaurant into a smash success. The fast and funny comedy opens Wed., Jan. 30 at the Galaxy Twin theatre.

One would hardly expect—or want—an office copying machine to produce anything original. But the originality of the "copy cats" who use them is a subject close to the heart of John Poppen, director of marketing of Minolta Corporation's Business Equipment Division. Here are some copier classics:

A Florida pet shop operator was up to his knees in baby alligators—until he got an office copier. His uncommon union of reptiles and reprographics enabled him to spread copies of his toothy specimens among prospective buyers all over the country—they bought!

Mug shots might haunt muggers and other criminals whose mugs are shot. A Midwest police department used its Minolta copier to take fingerprints of suspects by having them press their palms on copy paper. "Mug shots" were positioned on the copier's platen, providing copies of faces and fingers on one filable sheet!

A desperate dearth of designer clothes for dolls prompted a St. Louis lady to turn to a reduction copier. She bought up-to-the-minute style patterns in regular sizes. She reduced them to make Barbi-and Ken-sized haute couture an off-the-shelf item for her style-conscious customers.

Money-Wasting Survey

Following editorial is from the Fargo Forum:

We wonder just how much money the federal dreamers have to spend.

One of the latest fantastic undertakings, to be financed by no less than our own U.S. Department of Agriculture and announced by former Minnesotan Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland, is a nationwide survey and study of farm women and their role in agriculture.

If the U.S. Department of Agriculture doesn't know how important farm wives and their daughters have been in the maintenance of the family farm, where the family farm is still a recognizable unit, there is little they would gain from a nationwide survey. They simply would file and forget it, the same fate that awaits most federal studies.

"The intent of the survey is to provide a record of farm women's experiences with USDA services and farm programs and their perceptions of the department," Secretary Bergland said. "It will also provide us with a knowledge of women's roles in making farm management decisions. This knowledge will help the department better serve the needs of farm women who can and do use USDA programs, and it will help identify opportunities where women can participate in USDA farm programs at management and advisory levels."

What the secretary is really saying is that the survey will give the department some written reports on how the department itself functions among farm women. It will do nothing to uplift the level of farm women, or to increase their role in the farm scene they know so well.

The survey will be conducted next summer by the National Research Center of Chicago, at a fee that will come out of the taxpayers' bounty. The USDA's share is $280,000, small by comparison with some federal studies, but we doubt that a year from now whether Secretary Bergland or anybody in the department will be able to tell whether the department got its money's worth.

The study will report on the legal rights of farm women in relation to USDA programs and services, and it will identify funds for which farm women are eligible. It is also intended to determine the current rate of participation by women in USDA farm programs. If the department can't figure out these things for itself, then there is little sense in spending some hundreds of thousands of dollars trying to put it down on paper.

This is just another make-work job, in order to keep some staffers or consultants busy. We cannot conceive of what good the information to be gained will do the department in its long-range goal of bettering the status of American agriculture.

Take Moscow Out Of The Olympics

Following editorial is from the Ely Echo:

Testing the national mood and apparently determining which way the vote may go, President Carter is now loudly proclaiming that the summer Olympics should be moved out of Moscow because the Russians are currently training their reserve troops with living targets in Afghanistan. Howls of anguish and cries of victory have greated this pronouncement. The pro-Carter hawks cry "Right On!" The pro-Plympic people howl that "Politics has no place in the Olympics" and the games should go on.

Both sides are a little dippy. First, to maintain that politics has not been a part of the Olympics defies history. Has everyone forgotten the last Olympics could not be held until Free China was removed as a competitor at the request of the Communist Bloc, third world, et al. At Munich, some of the Arabs protested the inclusion of Israeli athletes in the games and took the direct route. They sent some gunmen into the Munich hotel housing the Israelis and shot them.

However, these little episodes in what used to be an athletic contest pale alongside the real politics of the Olympics. . and that is the emphasis on winning for national prestige. For several decades, the Olympic committee has tried to peddle the fiction that the Olympic games are for competing amateurs.

Certainly there are some students from the U.S., Canada and other western nations who are watched to make sure no taint of commercialism brushes off on their track shoes. But the vast majority of nations have no such problems. In most competing nations, the government or "athletic clubs" sponsor the athletes.

Once a young athlete shows promise, he or she is placed in the program and thenceforth becomes what would be considered a professional over here. He is paid to run, jump, throw, slalom, skate or go off a ski slide. Or paid a wage on a "make work" job, so he or she can run, jump, throw, slalom, skate or go off a ski slide. The editor of this newspaper had the good fortune to interview foreign Olympic competitors, at one point in time, and they were quite frank to admit such sponsorship.

To get back to the title of this editorial: "Take Moscow out of the Olympics. "Moscow" is broadly used to mean any of the authoritarian governments which concentrate state funds, coaches and facilities to mass produce winners. Those nations have no problem with amateurism vs. professionalism. They merely proclaim all athletes are "amateur" paid or not. It is simple, direct, and Olympic officials decline to argue.

There appears one possible way out. The fiction of amateur competition should simply be eliminated. Let the best athletes compete, paid or not. Without doubt, the origins of the Olympics, in early Greece, saw the best paid athletes of the Hellenic area in competition. In this century, it is only in such places as the U.S. where the fiction of amateur rules are enforced.

There is one other facet of politics in the Olympics that would be somewhat ameliorated if the facade of amateurism was dropped: that is the political control the Olympic committee has over who can be on the Olympic teams. If the athletes were free to get their own sponsors, set their own schedule and pay for their own coaches, the only test of who competes on the national team would be the scores posted in the trials. It eliminates the political pick-and-choose of a few committee members who decide who can and cannot compete.

By throwing the Olympics open to anyone, it will at least get back on the basis of athlete vs. athlete instead of nation against nation and political system vs. political system. Jimmy Carter started something for other reasons, but if it means a hard, cold look at what the Olympics are really about, it may be all worthwhile.

Change In Lifestyle

Following editorial is from the Lakefield Standard:

Americans don't accept change easily.

That's not easy to explain when you consider that we are descendants of a people who had to accept conditions as they were when they came to the New World several centuries ago.

We've had things pretty much our own way for too long, apparently, to return to the philosophy of our founding fathers without someone forcing us to do so.

The change that is necessary now is one in lifestyle. The energy situation here and across the world demands that we change our lifestyle or face the prospect of either fighting or yielding to those who do so.

The gasoline shortage, for example, has created confusion, complaints, has raised prices dramatically, but it hasn't affected to any measurable extent the amount of driving people are doing.

Car pools haven't caught on in the big cities and rapid transit systems capable of transporting large groups of people just haven't caught on.

The main reaction of the American people has been to accuse the oil companies of deception.

While there may be some deception involved, the fact that has to be accepted is that the supply of oil in the bowels of the earth isn't limitless and that the supply is going to grow more critical as its uses expand.

Besides the shortage of energy, the American romance with the automobile and with power contrivances of all types has made us a nation of riders, of people who have to jog and walk to maintain minimal fitness.

The irony is that we have surrounded ourselves with all the helpful gas-guzzling implements in order to have more leisure time, then have to spend that leisure time getting the exercise from which the "work savers" have deprived us.

Anyway, the time has come to change our viewpoint and lifestyle.

The energy shortage is real and it's going to get worse with each generation.

That may be hard to accept but until we do accept it, it's going to be difficult to change from the wasteful lifestyle that has characterized the past 25 years.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

U.S. Chamber of Commerce

OSHA'S Cancer Policy Needs Radical Surgery

Not content to leave bad enough alone, OSHA — the Occupational Safety and Health Administration — is now pursuing the worst of all worlds. The agency the American business community uniformly condemns as inept and a cancer within the federal bureaucracy, has itself, decided to wage war on cancer. Ironically, by making such a mistake, by forcing this wrong policy, by the wrong people, on the wrong place, OSHA could create an even greater tragedy: It could permanently disable our economy while having no significant impact on the problem of cancer itself.

The battle against cancer is terribly frustrating. Under OSHA's authority, it will become even more so. Our only hope against this dreaded disease is to allocate our health efforts and resources in the most intelligent and efficient possible way. But OSHA, which some believe is already afflicted with a terminal disease of its own — runaway regulatory extremism — is ill-suited to lead such a common sense approach.

During the 25 year period preceding OSHA's creation in 1971 — when industry was handling safety and health concerns on its own — serious injury and fatality rates steadily declined. Since 1971, however, since the huge 380 per cent increase in OSHA's budget, and over $25 billion in regulatory expenses to industry and consumers, a curous thing has happened. The serious accident trend has reversed direction and begun climbing again. Consistently pressured by OSHA's red tape, and by other government regulation, higher inflation and taxation, businesses have had to reduce their investments in new and safer plants and equipment.

This is a typical example of government's own policies producing the opposite results intended. OSHA's fundamental incompetence and failed performance have significantly contributed to our present status quo.

How then, can we justify entrusting an agency which has already caused misallocation of $25 billion with a regulatory program five times as large? That is what OSHA's cancer program is estimated to cost — somewhere between $100-125 billion. How could American industry ever generate such colossal sums of capital? OSHA's proposals would trigger costs equal to more than one and a half times the total capital expenditures of all manufacturers in 1976. Ultimately, of course, consumers bear these extra costs by paying sharply higher prices.

It seems callous to speak of cancer in terms of dollars and cents, because if a dear one is hit by this deadly disease, money should be no object. That is precisely why we must spend our funds where they are needed most. Yet OSHA would drain enormous resources society does not even have, in order to wage a war where the enemy isn't.

Leading independent physicians and health specialists believe only 5 per cent of all cancer is caused by workplace exposure. Nonetheless, consider how OSHA would apply just a part of its ambitious program to "protect" a small segment of the endangered workforce.

Richard Wilson, acting director of the Energy and Environmental Policy Center at Harvard, estimated that compliance with OSHA's benzene regulations would cost $150 million a year. Theoretically, that should permit us to save one-half of a hypothetical life. But wait! Wilson also warns that while producing the required equipment to protect our one-half a person, we would risk losing two more. Oops!

There is a better way. First, let's remember that industry alone has the greatest incentive to keep workers well — it must pay the most through worker's compensation when employees are stricken ill. Second, let's begin listening to authentic cancer experts who insist the real causes are usually bad personal habits — excessive smoking and drinking, and poor nutrition. Third, let's aid institutions like the National Cancer Institute and the American Cancer Society where the real battle is underway, and where genuine progress is being made through better research, treatment and promotion of early diagnosis.

Finally, a personal recommendation, which some might consider radical, but which I believe is necessary, and would be successful, is this: Strip from OSHA all the money it wastes each year — essentially its entire budget — and devote these funds to effective cancer research.

The menace of cancer can be tamed, but not in a place where silliness and stubbornness substitute for intellect . . and where what once preoccupied those who fuss and fret was the shape of toilet seats and the perils to farmers exposed to barnyard manure.

Avoid These Investment Blunders

A golden rule for investors is "Know thyself." Before you invest — or take someone else's investment advice — be very clear about your goals. To increase capital? To realize income? To have some fun? To fund retirement? If, for instance, regular income is your goal, steer away from high-risk speculations.

Some people overlook the low-risk, high-average annual yield of tax-deferred vehicles, like pension and profit-sharing plans, and deferred annuities. The interest and dividends on these are not taxed until a future time. Thanks to the compounding of the untaxed interest, long-term yields on your original investment may be 15 to 20 percent a year or more.

A costly blunder for stock market investors may be failure to take advantage of dividend reinvestment plans (DRPs) where they exist. A DRP allows a stockholder to apply dividends from a particular stock to the automatic purchase of the number of shares that the dollar amount of the dividend will buy. In addition to charging very modest or, in some cases, no fees, many companies also offer their DRP participants a five percent discount on prevailing stock prices. More information about DRP's, and a list of 700 listed companies that offer them, is available by sending one dollar to DRPs, Standard & Poor's Corp., 25 Broadway, New York, NY 10004.

As the economic picture changes, so should your investment strategies.

Don't make the all-or-nothing blunder. Balance your investments in such a way that you'll have something going for you, no matter which way the market moves. You may decide, for instance, to keep half your money in stocks, half in bonds. Then, if the market is in a broad uptrend, increase the percentage of stocks. When the market enters a declining trend, increase the proportion of bonds. Diversity can be a good hedge against adversity!

Prunes Make This Cake Delicious

There is always an occasion when friends drop in unexpectedly. With a little planning ahead and help from the freezer you can have a dessert ready anytime that looks beautiful and tastes delicious.

This cake, filled with the moist, sweet flavor of prunes, crunchy nuts and laced with a hint of sherry, is deceptively easy to make. The secret begins with a prepared cake mix and a package of pitted prunes.

California prunes are simply dried plums. Picked at the peak of juicy perfection, they are quickly dried into bite-size morsels of naturally sweet, fruity flavor. Prunes, rich in vitamins and minerals, are a good tasting, wholesome snack that's always ready to eat.

Whether you use prunes to add moist, delicious flavor to baking or enjoy them right from the package as a chewy snack, you'll find they provide a sweet taste of summer all year long.

QUICK PRUNE AND NUT POUND CAKE

- 1 package (12 ounces) pitted prunes, coarsely chopped
- ¾ cup sherry
- 2 teaspoons grated orange peel
- 1 package (1 pound 2.5 ounces) yellow cake mix
- 1 package (3¾ ounces) instant vanilla pudding mix
- 4 eggs
- ¾ cup vegetable oil
- 1 cup chopped nuts
- Powdered sugar

In small bowl combine prunes, sherry and orange peel; set aside 15 minutes. In large bowl combine cake and pudding mix, eggs, oil and liquid drained from prunes. Beat with electric mixer at medium speed 5 minutes, scraping side of bowl often. Fold in prunes and nuts to blend thoroughly. Generously grease and flour a 12-cup bundt pan. Turn batter into pan; smooth top. Bake in 350 degree oven 50 to 55 minutes until springy to the touch and pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pan 10 minutes; turn out onto rack to cool completely. Dust with powdered sugar. Makes 12 to 14 servings.

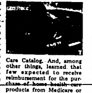
NEWS OF HEALTH



Most people want what's coming to them. Yet, sometimes, for a variety of reasons, they don't get it.

One such group that may "miss out" are those eligible for Medicare reimbursement, under the Medical Insurance part of the plan, for certain medical equipment prescribed by a doctor. Those eligible to receive Medicare benefits fall into three groups: (A) persons 65 or older; (B) those who have been on Social Security disability for two years; and (C) individuals who need dialysis treatments or kidney transplants because of permanent kidney failure.

Of the estimated 35 million handicapped people in the United States, some four million of them are age 65 or older. Those that require "durable medical equipment" (DME) are eligible to receive up to 80 percent reimbursement of the purchase or rental price, if covered by Medicare's medical insurance plan. DME is equipment, prescribed by a doctor for in-home use, which (1) can withstand repeated use (2) is primarily used to serve a medical purpose, and (3) generally is not useful to a person in the absence of an illness or injury.

A recent report by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare indicates that 4 percent of the Medicare population submit claims for DME reimbursement.

A few years ago, Sears conducted a consumer research study of the customers of its Home Health Care Catalog. And, among other things, learned that few expected to receive reimbursement for the purchase of home health care products from Medicare or any other medical insurance. Part of the problem stemmed from a lack of information about benefits or a "fear of forms."

Sears 1980 Home Health Care Catalog is trying to remedy this situation. For the first time, included among the 44 pages of health care items, is a four-page section devoted to easy-to-read, step-by-step instructions for filing a DME claim.

This section includes: a definition of "durable medical equipment;" an explanation of how the DME benefit works; facts to consider before buying or renting such equipment; a "Certificate of Medical Necessity" form (for the physician to fill out); the official government "Request for Medical payment" form; and instructions on "How to Fill Out Your Medicare Form."

A copy of the 1980 Home Health Care Catalog can be obtained free at the catalog order desk in Sears stores or at any Sears catalog sales office.

Severinson Succeeds Penn As President Of Arctic

John Penn

Kenneth Severinson

John Penn, president of Arctic Enterprises, Inc. since Jan. 1, 1973 and president and chief executive officer since October of 1977, has been relieved of his responsibilities by the board of directors of the corporation. The action took place at a meeting of the board in Minneapolis on Friday.

Named as the new president and chief executive officer is Kenneth Severinson, 38, who has been president of Larson Boat company at Little Falls since 1978. Severinson was an employee of Arctic Enterprises here from 1971 to 1976 in several positions, including chief financial officer and executive vice president. He held the latter position at the time he left the company in 1976.

Larson Boat company was acquired by Arctic Enterprises in December of 1979. Continuing as chairman of the board of Arctic is Irwin Jacobs of Minneapolis who purchased controlling interest in the company in October of 1977 from Lowell Swenson.

"I hold high regard for this community and the employees of this company," Penn told the Times in a telephone interview, "and I care how the community feels about me. It is not my choice that I have been taken out of the job, and it's with regret that I have had this decision thrust upon me, but I accept it."

Penn said that he did not feel at liberty to comment on the direction the company may be taking or its economic condition, indicating that such information would more properly come from the board chairman or the new president.

Severinson, who is in Thief River Falls today, was involved in a heavy meeting schedule this morning and would comment only that he is "looking forward to this new opportunity as a challenging experience". A more comprehensive viewpoint will be presented in the Wednesday edition of the Times.

Arctic Enterprises reflected reduced sales of 1980 model snowmobiles due to lack of snow and general economic conditions by recently executing a number of personnel lay-offs here and in associated operations throughout its system. Jacobs said in announcing Severinson's election that results from the company's third quarter are expected to show a substantial loss and will be reported within the next 10 days.

Penn said that he had been involved in meetings in the Twin Cities for the past week and was unable to discuss numbers of people who had been placed on lay-off. He had instructed supervisory personnel to make percentage payroll reductions, he said, but he had not received reports prior to Friday when he was relieved of his responsibilities.

The former president also said that Severinson is a close personal friend. "He's a good man and I've asked my people to support him," Penn said.

He also said that the board

While Emergency Crew Watches...

Klamar Lands Plane Here On Single Ski Thursday

In a landing described by Thief River Falls regional airport assistant manager Lynn Josephson as "beautiful. ...just perfect", pilot Roland Klamar of Gatzke brought his Cessna 180 aircraft into the airport about 6:15 p.m. Thursday on a single ski.

With Klamar were his wife Mildred, brother Clifford and Clifford's wife Mary. They were met by the airport fire truck, Northwestern hospital services ambulance, Pennington county sheriff's department cars and crews for each. About a dozen people were involved in the procedure and all were thankful they weren't really needed.

The Klamar brothers and their wives had spent the day fishing at 16-mile reef on Lake of the Woods, leaving about 4:35 p.m. for the routine trip home to the Klamar farm near Gatzke. Roland said that snow conditions on the ice are better than normal, that there was no wind and that he had taken off toward the southwest.

About the time the plane was ready to lift off the lake surface he heard a thump and then something slapping against the fuselage. His wife saw the left ski hanging loose.

"My main concern at the time was keeping the plane flying," Klamar said. "There was quite a bit of pull to the right side and the loose ski was doing quite a bit of slapping on the fuselage."

Shortly after being airborne, Klamar said he dipped the plane sharply to the left and that action flipped the hanging ski upside down onto the wing strut and the step. It seemed stabilised—there although it had a lifting effect on the left wing.

Klamar radioed the Warroad airport and the fire department and ambulance responded there, but after making several passes over the airport he decided there was no area where he would like to attempt landing. Warroad officials suggested to fly to the Grand Forks air force base.

Klamar decided instead on coming into Thief River Falls where he was familiar with the facilities. Radio contact was established here and the emergency preparations were made. The airport was closed to other traffic and in about an hour's flying time from Warroad the Klamar plane was ready to attempt landing here.

The pilot selected the area between the main runway and the taxiway as a landing site and made his approach from the southeast. The Klamars had discussed emergency procedures during the flight from Warroad — things like shutting off the fuel, shutting down electrical systems and evacuation procedure with rear seat passengers exiting first. It was agreed the ski might block the left door so the plan was to have everyone exit from the right.

Klamar said the plane is equipped with a short take off and landing (STOL) system which enabled him to bring it in at about 45 miles per hour instead of the normal 58 to 65 mph required of that type of plane. Since his hands were occupied with controlling the plane, his wife shut off the fuel by reaching forward from the back seat and turning the manual switch.

"We were concerned about the ski coming loose when we were on the ground," Klamar admitted. "If it had hit the ground and been forced back into the cockpit, that wouldn't have been so good." The ski is made of a high tensile strength aluminum-steel alloy.

Klamar brought the plane in on the good ski and held the other side up, landing in an estimated three to four inches of snow. The plane traveled about 150 yards from touchdown to stop, with the broken ski dragging for about 400 feet.

"I never saw people get out of a plane so fast!" Josephson said, recalling the plane coming to rest right next to where he waited with the airport fire truck. "I'm sure glad they didn't need us. He did a beautiful job, just perfect."

Klamar said he and the passengers certainly appreciated the efforts of the emergency crews at Warroad and Thief River Falls, although he minimized the skill required for the safe landing.

"I had to do this back in 1958," he admitted. "We hit a rock on take-off and broke a ski that time. I landed at Thief River airport that time, too. Didn't do any damage other than what broke when the ski hit the rock." He has now logged nearly 2,500 hours of flight time since starting flying in 1955.

There was only minor damage to the plane this time as well. Investigation after landing indicated that the gear leg had broken, leaving the ski hanging free by a couple of cables. Repair is being done locally and the plane should be ready to go again in about a week.

"It was just a normal landing," Klamar says of the experience. "Really, the biggest inconvenience out of the whole thing, other than having to return a borrowed car, was cleaning the fish."

These two performers, Ray McGregor and Clarice Sundberg, were members of the Rocking Chair Rollers who performed during the afternoon show. Agassiz Refuge Pays Marshall Co. $22,584

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has announced that $22,584.00 has been paid to Marshall county by the Agassiz national wildlife refuge. Joseph Kotok, refuge manager, presented a check for that amount to county officials January 25.

This payment is provided for by the refuge revenue sharing act of 1964, as amended October 17, 1978, by public law 95-469.

Payment is based on three-quarters of one per cent of the land value, 25 per cent of the yearly net refuge receipts, or $0.75 per acre, whichever is greater.

These funds can be expended by the county for any governmental purpose and are to distributed to those local units of government which have incurred the loss of real property tax revenues because of the existence of the refuge.

Because of insufficient funds to cover this year's shared revenue obligation, the payment to Marshall county represents only half of the amount due the county. This law authorizes Congressional appropriations to make up any shortages in net receipts. Accordingly, the Fish and Wildlife Service has submitted a request for a supplemental appropriation to cover fiscal year 1979 shortages. The request probably will not be acted on before February or March, but favorable action is expected. Therefore, the checks for the balance of the payment are expected to be ready in April 1980.

75 Scouters At Park Rapids Winter Camp

Nearly 75 Boy scouts, Webelos and adult scout leaders attended the annual Voyageur Trails district winter camporee which was held at Camp Wilderness Boy scout camp near Park Rapids recently.

The camporee, under the chairmanship of Tom Wang, consisted of a winter survival demonstration, fire building demonstration, compass instructions, knot tying competition, and a Klondike derby sled race. Each troop constructed its own Klondike sled to participate in the competition.

In addition to the scheduled events, each troop had time to work on advancement, cooking, hiking and sliding. All troops cooked their evening meal outdoors. The weekend was concluded with a Scout's Own church service followed by a campfire and awards.

"Numerous brave and prepared scouts qualified for their 'Zero Hero' award by sleeping in an outdoor shelter," Wang said.

Elect Rundell Governor Of Lions District

Ralph Rundell of Grygla was elected governor of Lions district 5M-11 to succeed Ellsworth Jorgenson of Thief River Falls at the mid-winter convention held recently in Crookston.

Delegates from the 48 Lions clubs in District 5M-11 voted on the new governor who will take office in July of 1980 when Jorgenson's term expires. Jorgenson presided over the business session of the mid-winter convention.

Rundell is a soil conservationist for the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district with offices at Grygla. He and his wife Grace have three children, sons Steven and David who live in Thief River Falls and a daughter, Mrs. Dale (Patty) Anderson of Goodridge; and two grandchildren, Shonda Anderson and Jason Rundell.

An officer of the Grygla Lions club since its beginning in 1972, Ralph is a charter member of that club. For five years he was secretary-treasurer and for two years served as secretary.

On the district level he served one year as zone chairman, two years as deputy district governor and two years as extension and retention chairman, as well as sergeant-at-arms and a chairman of the elections committee.

Speaker at the convention brunch was Davie Stromlund of Thief River Falls, who had been legally blind and recovered his sight through cornea transplants. He discussed the Lions' programs for the blind, especially the sight restoration program.

Scout Week To Be Noted Here

Over 225 cub scouts, Boy scouts, and Explorers and their nearly 100 adult leaders will observe Scout week this week. February 8 will mark the 70th birthday of the Boy Scouts of America and Cubbing will celebrate it's 50th anniversary.

There are presently three cub packs, three Boy scout troops, and two Explorer posts active in Thief River Falls serving over 225 young people. Mayor Bob Carlson issued a proclamation for Scouting anniversary week and noted that for 70 years the Boy Scouts of America has provided a program of character building, citizenship training and personal fitness for the youth of our area.

Scouting is emphasizing the theme "Scouts Yesterday, Leaders Today" noting that many of our community leaders were formerly scouting members and may continue to serve young people through scouting.

"Our community organizations use the scouting program for the benefit of 225 boys and young men and women through eight Cub scout packs, Boy scout troops and Explorer posts," Mayor Carlson said. "I ask all of our citizens to give their recognition to "Scouting. . . the Better Life."

Reports from around the council indicate a variety of blue and gold banquets, pack open house events to observe the 50th anniversary of Cub scouting, troop parent's nights, potluck dinners, court of honor, Explorer family nights, special outdoor activities, and recognition of former scouting members as part of the scouting anniversary week program emphasis, "Scouts Yesterday, Leaders Today".

Council activities for the anniversary celebration will confirm the nationwide program theme "Scouting. . . the Better Life." Courts of honor, window displays and blue and gold banquets will be part of the observance in Thief River Falls.

The following institutions are chartered partners with the Boy Scouts of America to provide the scouting program to the youth of Thief River Falls: St. John Lutheran church — Pack and troop 199; Zion Lutheran church — Pack and troop 59; St. Bernard's Catholic church — Pack and troop 57; Law Enforcement center — Law Enforcement Post 200; and Northwestern hospital — Medical Explorers Post 46.

The program of scouting is made possible by Northern Light council, BSA, through contribution from the area United Ways and sustaining memberships, according to Art Heinze, district commissioner.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Susan Kaye Sistad And Richard L. Olson Wed

Susan Kaye Sistad of Grygla and Richard Lowell Olson, Wannaska, exchanged marriage vows recently at the Grace Lutheran church at Grygla.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Sistad, Grygla, and Mr. and Mrs. Marlin Olson, Wannaska.

Rev. Owen Christianson officiated at the double ring ceremony witnessed by approximately 340 relatives and friends. At the organ was Mrs. Roy Nordby, Grygla, a cousin of the bride. She played appropriate nuptial selections as the guests were ushered in by Robert Cwikla and Rick Beito, Grygla, brothers-in-law of the bride. As the bride was escorted to the altar by her parents, Mrs. Nordby played "Bridal Chorus." The recessional, was the traditional "Wedding March."

As the candles were lit by Mary Jo Stein, friend of the couple, and Debbie Sistad, cousin of the bride, the groom's uncle, Walter Storey, Wannaska, sang "Evergreen". He also sang "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple knelt at the altar. As the bridal attendants approached the altar, Terry Ruud, Gatzke, a friend of the couple, sang "Colour My World". At the conclusion of the ceremony, he sang "Follow Me," as the guests were ushered out. During the ceremony, Marie Anderson, Grygla, a cousin of the bride, sang "The Twelfth of Never", "The Wedding Song," and "Walk Hand in Hand," which was rendered as the couple lit the unity candle.

For the ceremony, the chancel was graced with arrangements of fresh flowers on the altar and an arrangement of greenery on the organ.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a floor-length gown of white nylon organza featuring a Chantilly lace empire bodice with a sheer yoke outlined with lace and seed pearls. Matching lace formed the high collar and the fitted cuffs on her sheer bishop sleeves. Lace also headed the wide flounce that edged her A-line skirt and chapel-length train. Her walking length veil of bridal sheer, edged with lace, was held by a headpiece of Chantilly lace. She carried a white Bible topped by yellow roses, bronzed daisies, babies' breath carnations and greens, accented with apricot daisies tied to cascading ribbon streamers.

The bride's personal attendant was Julie Santl, Salol, a friend.

Matron of honor was Bonnie Cwikla, Grygla, a sister of the bride. Other attendants were Connie Beito, Grygla, another sister of the bride; Bev Bykium, Moorhead, and Denise Thomas, Grygla, friends of the couple. Their identical floor-length gowns of apricot polyester crepe were complemented by capes featuring autumn floral print. They carried two long-stemmed apricot tinted carnations and greenery tied with bronzed ribbon. Their heart necklaces were gifts from the bride.

Wearing similar attire and carrying a basket of yellow roses, orange daisies and babies' breath, was the flower girl, Chrissy Olson, Minneapolis, a cousin of the groom. The rings were carried by Ryan Cwikla, Grygla, a nephew of the bride. Like the men of the wedding party, he wore a brown adventurer tuxedo with deep velvet trim, a brown bow tie and an apricot ruffled shirt. His boutonniere, like the groom's attendants, was an apricot carnation. He carried the rings on a white heart-shaped pillow, designed and made by Cheryl Sistad, a cousin of the bride.

For his wedding, the groom as best man was his brother, Duane Olson, Wannaska. Groomsmen were Kenny Olson, Minneapolis, Tim Olson, Wannaska, cousins of the groom; and Brian Olson, Wannaska, a brother of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Sistad selected a long-sleeved, floor-length gown of a beige crepe with autumn floral print, accented with brown accessories. Her corsage featured three roses in apricot, bronze and beige. An identical corsage was worn by the groom's mother, who was attired in long-sleeved, floor-length gown featuring a brown and peach floral print on a tan background.

Honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Willard Sletten, Thief River Falls, godparents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. John Storey, Warroad; grandparents of the groom; and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Santl, Salol.

Host and hostess at the reception that followed were Mr. and Mrs. Larry Nordby, Grygla, cousins of the bride. Debbie and Jack Sovde registered the guests as Denise and Jim Morrissey served the punch. All are friends of the couple.

Centering the serving table was a four tiered wedding cake, baked by Janice Peterson of Grygla. The cake was topped with a miniature heart and cherubs. At the base was an open Bible. Marlys Loken, Roseau, and Mavis Olson, Wannaska, aunts of the groom, cut and served the cake. Pouring coffee were Elsa Nomeland, and Bernice Sistad of Grygla, aunts of the bride.

Waitresses were Tammy, Kim and Jody Sistad and Shirlene Peterson. In charge of the head table were Carol Nomeland and Carol Sistad. The ice cream was served by Casanda Sistad and Terry Sistad. All are cousins of the bride.

The rice packets were distributed by Greg Olson and Darin Storey, brother and cousin of the groom, respectively. Greg Olson, brother of the groom, and Kathy Olson, Donna Loken and Shelly Storey, cousins of the groom, served as gift bearers. Darlyne Moe, friend of the bride, and Deanna Olson, a cousin of the groom, arranged the gifts.

Jusy Storey, aunt of the groom, and Barb Smith, a cousin of the bride, were in charge of the flowers. The wedding programs were distributed by Debbie Sistad, cousin of the bride, and Mary Jo Stein, a friend of the couple. Jayne Morrissey, a friend of the bride, distributed the thank-you cards.

Following the reception at the church, the parents of the couple hosted a supper and private party at the Grygla Community center. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Anderson, cousins of the bride. Music from 9 p.m., to 1 p.m., was provided by "Foolish Pleasure".

The couple is now at home in Grygla. The bride is a 1979 graduate of Grygla high school and the groom is a 1975 graduate of the same school. He is presently employed by Benson Construction company. Photo, Haugan Photography.

Alert Network Has Scientific Values Around The World

by Madeleine Jacobs
Smithsonian News Service

It was 9 a.m. on Friday the 13th when the call came to David Squires in Washington, D.C. Calmly, the voice at the other end of the line announced that the Soufriere volcano on the Caribbean island of St. Vincent had begun to erupt explosively. Soufriere had a particularly ugly history; thousands of people perished as the result of an eruption there in 1902.

In quick response to that phone call last April and long before the news services carried notice of the event, Squires had cabled or telephoned scientists around the world, alerting them to a rare opportunity to study a volcano during its eruption. At the same time, endangered islanders were being evacuated by the authorities there.

For Squires it was all in a day's work as operations officer for the Smithsonian Institution's Scientific Event Alert Network, or SEAN (pronounced Say-on).

"Basically, SEAN is an international clearinghouse for the rapid receipt and dissemination of information about natural events," Squires explains. "Based on information received by SEAN, research teams can be mobilized to collect information that might otherwise be lost forever."

After being alerted by SEAN, scientists from all over the world traveled to St. Vincent to study the Soufriere eruption first hand. Over a period of months, they collected information by land, from sea, from low-flying airplanes, high-flying research aircraft and satellites. From these studies they gained valuable insights on the eruption and its effect on the atmosphere.

The powerful, rare, disastrous and curious — Squires never knows what his next telephone call may bring. It could be a report that 41 sperm whales have stranded on a desolate beach in Oregon, that a shower of meteorites has rained on Norway, or that a tsunami (tidal wave) of unknown origin has suddenly killed several hundred people in Indonesia. All these occurred during the past year.

"The study of transient events in nature seems to hold a special fascination for scientists," Squires says. "Most of these events, like the Soufriere eruption or earthquakes, occur with little or no warning. Scientists do not know why whales strand on beaches or when volcanoes are going to erupt, sometimes with catastrophic consequences. A great many of these events occur in isolated areas of the world, beginning and ending before most people are even aware of them. SEAN provides a kind of early warning system so that scientists may study the events while they are going on."

Events sometimes occurring in remote reaches of the globe are reported to SEAN by a remarkable volunteer network of more than 1,000 scientific observers in 136 countries. In a tribute to international cooperation, every continent and ocean is covered. With countries from Afghanistan to Zambia, the only major gap is the People's Republic of China and some regions of the Soviet Union where military installations are located.

In addition to its network of "correspondents," SEAN receives notice of events from news services, the national earthquake information service, aquariums and research centers on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, environmental groups and scientists at the Smithsonian's museum of natural history in Washington, D.C.

SEAN, a part of that museum, concentrates on reporting and disseminating information about natural events that are of concern to the museum's scientists, as well as scientists elsewhere. These include phenomena of all kinds, ranging from fireballs (extremely bright meteors in the sky) to earthquakes. On learning of these events from SEAN, scientists frequently jump in their cars or catch the next plane or boat to gather data firsthand. Similarly, scientists often learn about occurrences from their colleagues and report them to SEAN for dissemination to other scientists worldwide. Other natural events, such as the appearance of 100 dead loggerhead turtles on a beach in South Carolina last year, are also reported to SEAN.

"Events such as these can tell us about dynamic changes in our environment," Squires says. "A tremendous volcanic eruption, for instance, that injects a great amount of ash into the upper atmosphere may affect the weather around much of the world to some extent. The weather, in turn, could have a considerable effect on yields from food crops. Or a large fish kill will often indicate polluted or oxygen-poor water, which can be due to natural or man-induced causes."

Since SEAN was formed in 1975, hundreds of events have been reported and passed on to scientists. Squires is assisted in the reporting task by administrative assistant Betty Grier, by Shirley Maina, an ecologist who tracks and reports events in the life sciences, and by Lindsay McClelland, a geologist who specializes in the physical sciences. Together, the four publish a monthly alert bulletin containing details on events and an information contact for follow-up.

Not all the calls received by SEAN deal with natural or earthbound phenomena. Frequently, the SEAN team receives calls about the Bermuda triangle, parapsychology, solar flares, comets and eclipses of the sun and moon. Usually, the caller is given an appropriate organization to contact. And although SEAN is not normally involved with man-made satellites, it is cooperating with NASA on a project to have specimens of Skylab which re-entered the atmosphere last summer turned in for scientific study. Like meteorites, these pieces may tell scientists about processes occurring in space.

"At its best, SEAN records natural events as they occur and gets the information out to the widest possible audiences," Squires says. "Our hope is that the collected and accumulated information will itself become a tool for people concerned with studying the natural environment."

Clinics Slated To Vaccinate For Measles

Ruth Kruta of the Marshall-Kittson county nursing service reports a number of confirmed cases of hard measles (Rubeola) in the schools. For this reason, the service will be offering special measles vaccination clinics.

"Many of the older children were immunized only for Rubella (German measles), Mrs. Kruta said. "They should receive the Rubeola vaccine. In addition many children immunized before 1969 are contracting measles. For this reason the Minnesota department of health is recommending that any child immunized before 1969 and children immunized between 12 and 14 months of age should be reimmunized."

Law requires that students should be immunized to be in school.

Clinics will be held Tuesday February 5, at Strandquist, 8:30 to 8:45 a.m.; Gatzke, 9:45 to 10 a.m.; Grygla, 10:30 to 11 a.m.; and Stephen, 2 to 2:30 p.m. On Thursday, February 7, the clinics will be held at Newfolden from 8:30 to 9:15 a.m., Argyle from 10:30 to 11 a.m.; Oslo from 11:30 a.m. to 12 noon; and Warren beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Complex Legal Problems Slow Loan Program

Increasing legal and financial complexities involved in modern agriculture have slowed Minnesota's national model farm security loan program, agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin reported this week. One farm security loan application was approved in January.

The farm security advisory council, which reviews all applications and recommends disposition of each application, ruled at its January meeting that hereafter all partnership agreements involved in applications must be submitted in co-signed written form. Verbal partnership agreements will not be accepted in farm security loan applications.

Commissioner Seetin said that experience during the past year has prompted the farm security advisory council's new requirement. The purpose is to minimize misunderstandings and problems that may be experienced later due to changing weather, market disruptions, national policy and other unanticipated circumstances.

Inflated land and farm production costs along with increased interest rates have increased the problems for buyers, sellers and lenders involved in the farm security loan applications.

Administrator Wayne Marzolf said that the farm security office of the Minnesota department of agriculture has 21 applications in process but that several of these need more information, including written partnership agreements on labor, machinery, management and financial obligations.

The January farm security loan guarantee approved for Mr. and Mrs. Randy Wittenburg of Gibbon for the purchase of a 160 acre dairy farm in Sibley county increased to 187 the total number of new farm owners established under the program. The overall loan volume guaranteed now exceeds $31.3 million on 30,049 acres of Minnesota farm land.

FmHA Boosts Lending For Energy Projects

U.S. Farmers Home administration (FmHA) is making farm loans available for on-the-farm production of fuel alcohol and other petroleum-saving sources of fuel and energy.

FmHA state director John Apitz announced that national agency officials have given a go-ahead for the use of FmHA farm real estate and production loans for "energy alternatives that are shown to be reliable and practical for use on the farm."

Director Apitz said FmHA county offices in Minnesota are prepared to receive applications for financing of fuel-alcohol or other energy devices that applicants propose to install on their farms.

Most fuel produced with the loans is expected to be made from the farmer's own grain or other raw material and used by the producing farmer as a homemade substitute for petroleum products.

Apitz said the agency's action is "in keeping with President Carter's objective of reducing dependence on imported petroleum."

"Farm ownership and operating loans may also be made for a wide variety of energy-related purposes such as insulation, solar heating and drying equipment, windmills, methane gas facilities and fuel alcohol distilleries. Much of this technology is just emerging from the experimental phase," Apitz added, "but the time has come to begin to use it on the farm."

Regulations on lending by FmHA, a U.S. department of agriculture credit agency, limit its farm ownership and operating loans to the owner-operators or tenant operators of family size farms. Others may qualify for loans under a special economic emergency program or for improvement of farm soil and water resources. Loans can be made only to applicants who show they cannot get credit from other sources.

In non-emergency farm loan programs, loans obtained directly from FmHA are limited to $200,000 for real estate purposes and $100,000 for operating purposes. Limits are $300,000 and $200,000, respectively, if loans are made by commercial lenders and guaranteed by FmHA.

Apitz said FmHA also has been authorized to open its rural business-industrial (B & I) loan guarantees to help establish more large industrial alcohol fuel distilleries and methane plants. Methane is a gas produced from animal and other agricultural waste.

Secretary of agriculture Bob Bergland has approved making $100 million of the agency's B & I loan budget available for that purpose during the current fiscal year ending September 30. His announcement said that $100 million worth of projects have been proposed to the agency to date. The $100 million of FmHA loan guarantees, Bergland said, could account for about 25 per cent of President Carter's goal of a 500 million gallon annual gasohol production capacity in the U.S. by 1981.

Severinson Is New President Of Arctic Here

had put him into a position of vice chairmanship — a position which he said he appreciates and which "gives me a chance to go out and look for a new job."

He emphasized that he feels very strongly and very positive about this community and the people in it. "I'm sorry that I have to go from the company because I've given it everything I can muster. Some people have thought that I was resigning and that I was walking away from the situation. That's very troublesome to me because I'm not that kind of a guy. I've been in trouble before and I don't walk away from trouble."

Penn also said he has put a major part of his business career into trying to build the company and would "do everything in my power to help the company and to help the people associated with it," but that he would be looking for other situations because that is his only choice.

He noted that personnel cutbacks are always painful, but that they were necessary to reflect the change in the production schedule. It was necessary back in 1973 and 1974, he said, and he had asked his administrative personnel to accomplish the current cutbacks as expeditiously as possible. It had been his intention as president of the company to have the cutbacks made by February 1, he said, and to reserve comment until the action had been taken. He would not speculate on the course of action to be taken by the new management.

Penn came to Arctic Enterprises from Arthur Andersen & Company, an accounting firm with which Lowell Swenson had also been previously associated. He was named secretary-treasurer after about six months with the company and later elevated to the vice presidency. He became president when Swenson assumed the position of chairman of the board.

Gallagher said the appraisal workshop will start at 9 a.m. and the loan processing workshop at 1:30 p.m. Participants can attend either or both workshops.

Dear friends,
Education about death is proceeding in some communities throughout the country, with this stated objective: "To help people understand their feelings and attitudes toward death and dying so that death will be less fearful, and living more enjoyable." Books are also being written on the subject. Death is a subject that has been taboo too long.
Respectfully,

BANNERING CONTINUES at Thief River Falls schools as members of the School District 564 faculty express publicly their dissatisfaction with progress of local collective bargaining. Faculty representatives and school board have been unable to reach agreement on a two-year contract and the board has petitioned for declaration of impasse and third party arbitration. Wheat Growers Plan Winter Shows Seminar

Citing transportation as the single most critically important issue for Minnesota wheat farmers in the past year, the Minnesota association of wheat growers is sponsoring a transportation seminar to be conducted in conjunction with the Red River Valley winter shows. The half-day seminar will begin at 8:30 a.m., Thursday, February 28 at the Crookston Best Western inn.

Bob Tosterud will open the "Transportation and Farming" seminar with an 8:30 a.m. report on the operations of USDA's task force on transportation. Tosterud is chief of the USDA transportation division's research and economic analysis committee, and recently headed an extensive transportation investigation task force. That task force is in the process of making its final written report.

Farmers will have an opportunity to "ask the experts" beginning at 9 a.m., when a one-hour panel discussion is scheduled. Panel members will include Davis Helberg, manager of the Port of Duluth-Superior; Robert Johnson, executive director of Minnesota Good Roads, Inc., Minneapolis; Ralph Avery, vice president of Burlington Northern railroad; and Buster Slaughter, vice president of International Longshoreman's association.

"Fuel costs and supplies are as important to transportation as weight restrictions and rail car availability," said wheat growers officials, and with that in mind, the wheat growers have asked Einer Satter, Norcross, member of the national gasohol commission board of directors and Minnesota wheat council, to speak on gasohol programs.

Satter's presentation is entitled, "The Fuel Crunch — Is Gasohol the Answer?"

"And that's only half the program," enthused wheat growers executive vice president Charles Rhoades. "We feel we've put together the best, most diversified program, with the best speakers possible, and we've compacted it all into a half-day," Rhoades continued.

Growers president Jorgen Knutson shared that enthusiasm. "We're excited about putting this program together. The wheat growers association will continue in its efforts to find either the answers to farmers' problems, or to find the people who know those answers. That's exactly what we've done for February 28," Knutson asserted.

"When you find the people with the answers, the solutions can't be far behind."

U of M Arena May Be Closed For Next Year

Fire and safety code problems that could cost millions of dollars to correct may close Williams arena, the site of Gopher basketball and hockey games, at the end of this season.

Possible closing of the building was announced recently by University of Minnesota president C. Peter Magrath, along with a list of immediate steps the university will take to keep the building open for the rest of the season.

Magrath made the decision after receiving a report Friday, prepared by a private consultant, on the condition of the building. The 12-page report includes a long list of major and minor problems. Most severe deficiencies are the lack of fire alarms, the lack of an emergency lighting system in case of light failure, and an exit system that would not be adequate in case of fire.

Further, the report states, there is no sprinkler system, there is no emergency lighting over paths of exit, several of the concession stands have wooden roofs and doors, and electrical equipment is obsolete.

The building is structurally sound, according to the report, but roofs, floors and structural members are not fireproofed.

More detailed study of deficiencies is needed, Magrath said, but "unless this assessment contradicts previous studies, I might well be seeking the approval of the board of regents to move the men's basketball and hockey games to alternate sites in the Twin Cities for the 1980-81 season and beyond, until we have resolved the question of permanent facilities for the men's basketball and hockey teams."

The consultant was brought in after concern arose during long-range planning discussions at the university about the age of the 50-year-old building. Williams arena is the second oldest athletic arena among Big Ten schools; Iowa's arena is older, but a new one is currently under construction.

After receiving the report, Magrath said he met with other top university officials and asked the Minneapolis fire department to review the report. "The fire marshall expressed the opinion that the consultant's report seemed to be valid and that corrective actions were appropriate," he said.

Williams arena houses many university athletic events each year, including hockey, wrestling and men's and women's basketball. Basketball arena holds 17,500 people, and the hockey arena seats 7,775, although the two arenas are never used at the same time.

Magrath said several changes will be made immediately to ensure fan safety for this year's remaining five basketball games and four hockey games. Smoking will be banned in the arena, doors between the hockey rink and the basketball arena will be unlocked during games to provide more exit space, and more police officers will be assigned to the building during games, he said.

Land O'Lakes, Dawson Mills Plan To Merge

Directors of Dawson Mills, an oilseed processing cooperative based in Dawson, approved plans January 29 for consolidation with Land O'Lakes, Inc., a Minneapolis-based farm supply and food marketing cooperative. Minneapolis-based farm supply and food marketing cooperative.

The agreement is subject to approval by Dawson Mills' members at a shareholder meeting February 20. Final approval must come from the Land O'Lakes board of directors February 26.

Dawson Mills has production capacity to process 1,500 tons of soybeans daily, turning out vegetable oil, feed, meal, flour and protein concentrates for food processors. Annual sales exceed $100 million. The cooperative employs about 300 people and draws its soybeans from approximately 160 local farm elevator cooperative members, primarily in Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota.

One aim of consolidation, according to a Land O'Lakes spokesman, is to increase the return to the soybean producer by combining the processing knowledge of both organizations with Land O'Lakes' expertise in food marketing and sales.

If plans are approved, the consolidation will take place March 1.

Optometrists Attend Meet In Twin Cities

Drs. Orion D. Beich and Hal B. Freeman of Falls Vision clinic in Thief River Falls were among 600 doctors of optometry from seven upper Midwest states who attended the North Central states optometric conference (NCSOC) in Minneapolis January 25-27, for the purpose of attending continuing education required for members of the health care professions.

Drs. Beich and Freeman indicated there were over 50 courses, offering education on subjects from nutrition, headache, vision problems of children and elderly and contact lens to indepth courses in pathology and pharmacology.

"Issues and Answers" is a pre-conference day devoted to exploring prime issues and concerns of the time, Beich and Freeman said, which brings the attendees from the seven state area closer together in meeting these concerns.

SPECIAL DUET was performed by Mildred Fritzinger and Paulette Culver during the Friday afternoon variety show conducted at Valley Home in Thief River Falls. Title of the selection was "Wait Till the Sun Shines Nellie."

Truckers Get Stiff Penalty For Violations

"The Courts are beginning to hand out stiff penalties for trucking violations, so illegal truckers should watch out," says Dan Stewart, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) motor carrier field operations supervisor.

A firm with 11 prior trucking violations was recently cited for hauling for hire without a permit, he added. The court fined two of the firm's officers $500 each and added a jail sentence of 60 days. The jail sentence was stayed on the condition that no motor vehicle laws or weight restrictions were violated for a year.

"This should warn truckers who wish to haul for hire to apply to Mn-DOT for a permit that grants this authority," Stewart said.

Mn-DOT motor vehicle representatives (MTRs) issue citations for violations. Arrests are made primarily for lack of driver health certificate, driver's logbook either not current or entirely lacking, and lack of identification tag authority, showing that vehicles are properly registered and insured. Warning and compliance tickets are issued mainly for minor mechanical and safety defects and for faulty equipment.

"Safety for everyone in the road is the reason that we have truck inspections. We are interested in seeing that truckers' rigs are in safe operating condition and that drivers are in good health and getting enough rest. This is in addition to seeing that truckers are operating with proper legal authority," Stewart said.

MSU To Offer 22-Day Study Tour In Europe

A 22-day study tour of Europe in "Comparative Education and International Understanding" will be offered this summer by Moorhead state university.

Leaving Moorhead June 11 and returning July 2, the tour will include 10 days in London plus a choice of three alternatives: a trip through Belgium, Lunxembourg, France, Switzerland, Austria and Italy; a Mediterranean cruise with visits to Egypt, Israel, Greece, Crete and Rhodes; or an independently planned tour in Europe.

This is the sixth year MSU has offered the European study tour. It qualifies for six graduate or undergraduate credits.

Students will visit several schools and historic places in Europe, with plenty of free time for sightseeing.

Basic costs will vary from $1,165 to $2,695 depending on which of the three alternative tours are chosen. That includes transportation from Fargo-Moorhead and back, most meals, lodging, city tours and a pre-trip orientation.

For more information about the tour, or to register, contact Dr. Howard Freeberg, coordinator of the international studies, at (218) 236-2148, or write to him at the university.

Mn/DOT Tests Liquid Calcium Chloride Use

Reduced chemical use on state highways could result from experiments being conducted in three Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) districts, according to Commissioner Richard P. Braun.

"The aim is to cut down on the amount of chemicals applied to the roadway when removing ice-glaze, while still providing a safe driving surface," he said.

A solution of liquid calcium chloride is being experimented with to remove ice from the road surface more quickly with less chemical. The liquid solution is poured over a truckload of sand and salt, thoroughly coating the sand throughout the load, Braun said.

The usual practice has been to mix calcium chloride pellets with sand. But when winds come and vehicles pass, sand, salt and pellets blow off the roadway. When the new method is used, more of the mixture sticks to the roadway to provide greater melting action because all of the material is a source of heating or melting action. With the old method, only the pure calcium chloride pellets and salt provide melting action.

The new method should reduce the need for recurrent chemical application. This will mean less chemicals on the roadway and roadside vegetation, he said.

The liquid calcium chloride method is being tried in Mn-DOT's Rochester maintenance area for the first time. The Virginia area, which tried the method last year with promising, but inconclusive, results, is continuing the experiment this year.

A salt brine application method is also being experimented with in the St. Cloud maintenance area under a grant from the federal highway administration.

The features here are a salt brine solution and a spray bar that is located under the box of a sanding truck. Salt brine is sprayed forward at a flat angle to the roadway under high pressure, Braun said. "This provides a 'liquid cutting edge' or blasting action that penetrates the ice-glaze and literally blows it away," he said.

"We will have to wait for test results to see if we can actually accomplish our goal of cutting down on chemical use on our roadways and still continue to provide a safe driving surface," he said.

State's Sheep Inventory Up Four Per Cent

Minnesota's January 1 sheep and lamb inventory posted its first increase since 1961, with a four per cent rise in total numbers to 264,000 head, according to the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service. For the second consecutive year the breeding stock (now totaling 217,000 head) posted a three per cent increase. The remainder of the inventory of 47,000 sheep and lambs on feed was up four per cent from the previous year.

Sheep and lamb numbers in the United States on January 1 totaled 12.5 million head, up two per cent from the record low 12.2 million head a year earlier and the first increase in sheep numbers since 1960. The inventory included 10.9 million stock sheep, two per cent above Jan. 1, 1979. Sheep and lambs on feed for slaughter totaled 1.6 million head, up three per cent from last year.

A record high average of $69.50 per head, up 24 per cent from last year, pushed the state's Jan. 1, 1980 inventory value of all sheep and lambs to over $18.3 million, the largest value since 1953.

National average value per head was also a record high at $77.90. As a result, U.S. inventory value climbed to $974.1 million versus $875.9 million a year earlier.

Minnesota's 1979 lamb crop totaled 198,000 head, one per cent below the previous year. The U.S. lamb crop of eight million head was unchanged from the previous year. The estimated 8,000 farming operations with sheep in Minnesota is unchanged from last year.

Little Man Triumphs

Following editorial was written by Dale Whitesell, executive vice president of Ducks Unlimited, in the current issue of "Ducks Unlimited" magazine:

Those of us who sat down in front of our TV sets in 1975, anticipating a CBS documentary celebrating hunting, were betrayed instead by "The Guns of Autumn." The entire hunting fraternity took it on the chin that day, as did many non-hunters interested in wildlife. It appears now this program that generated shock waves across the continent is not only still being discussed in media circles and the out-of-doors, but was in fact calculated and contrived to misrepresent hunters.

Fortunately, there are still those willing to accept the hunter's rightful place in society's scheme of things — individuals who have remained objective enough to sort through the false witness and innuendo served up by certain major networks. Uhl versus CBS is a good case in point. Uhl, a Pennsylvanian, was filmed by CBS while hunting geese. "The Guns of Autumn" footage was arranged to make it appear that Uhl had shot a goose on the ground, when he had, in fact, not done so. Justifiably outraged by the unethical implications of the film, Uhl sought legal counsel and sued CBS. On August 29, 1979 a Federal Jury found that Uhl had indeed been misrepresented by CBS's "The Guns of Autumn" and awarded him one dollar as compensation. An appeal by CBS for a reversal of this verdict was also denied by Federal Court Judge Gerald C. Weber.

In one of its many appeals to the Federal Court Judge, CBS contended that Uhl and his lawyer failed to present evidence to defeat the defendant's (CBS) constitutional privilege under the First Amendment. Judge Weber informed CBS that Uhl was not a public figure whose position automatically made him fair game for the news media. Weber stated, "The plaintiff here is a private individual who traveled a few miles from his home to go hunting for a day. He sought no public office, he interjected himself into no controversy, he did not seek to have his picture taken, although he knew of the presence of the crew."

The significance of this case lies not so much in the verdict or token money awarded Uhl, as it does in the refreshing and discerning common sense shown by this member of the Federal Bench. It also proved that warranted redress can be sought by the common man, hunter or otherwise, in the highest courts of the land to right wrongs, regardless of how powerful or influential the adversary. In another of his appeal denials to CBS, Judge Weber stated that the defendant (CBS) had implied to the court that "a poor man or even a man of some means has no business bringing litigation in court unless he can afford the services of a large double-breasted law firm with platoons of young credit-card-carrying associates who can fan out all over the country on a search and depose mission." If this case does nothing more than restore faith to the nation's hunters in American jurisprudence, it will have succeeded. Perhaps, too, it will send a signal to all members of the media that irresponsible reporting will no longer be tolerated by the man on the street.

What is even more conspicuous by its absence is the media coverage by CBS and others concerning the outcome of this important case. Could it be that justice is still too hard a pill to swallow for some undisciplined media brats who are not used to taking their medicine like a man? Maybe now this network and its counterparts will respect a bit more the integrity and the heritage of the vast majority of America's hunters.

Aging Is When....

So you think old age may be creeping up on your friends but you're just as good as you used to be? An area newspaper provided the following guide to help you put things in perspective. As it points out, you know you are aging when:

The gleam in your eye is from the sun hitting your bifocals.

You feel like the day after, and you haven't been anywhere the night before.

Your little black book contains only names ending in M.D.

You get winded playing chess.

Your children begin to look middle aged.

You're still chasing women but can't remember why.

You know all the answers. But nobody asks you the questions.

You look forward to a dull evening.

You walk with your head high trying to get used to your bifocals.

Your favorite part of the newspaper is "25 Years Ago Today".

You turn out the light for economic rather than romantic reasons.

You sit in a rocking chair and can't get it going.

Your knees buckle and your belt won't.

You're 17 around the neck, 42 around the waist and 96 around the golf course.

After painting the town red, you have to take a long rest before applying a second coat.

Dialing long distance wears you out.

You're startled the first time you are addressed as an old timer.

You remember today that your wedding anniversary was yesterday.

The best part of your day is over when your alarm clock goes off.

You burn the midnight oil until 9 p.m.

Your back goes out more often than you do.

Your pacemaker makes the garage door go up when you watch a pretty girl go by.

The little gray haired lady you help across the street is your wife.

You get your exercise acting as a pallbearer for your friends who exercise.

You have too much room in the house and not enough room in the medicine cabinet.

You sink your teeth into a steak and they stay there.

State Of The World

Following editorial is from the Lake Region Press at Alexandria:

President Carter was right when he told Congress Wednesday night that the State of the Union depends on the State of the World. It's just too bad that he and other liberals didn't recognize that fact before this latest crisis developed. His speech sounded tough but it lacked specifics and events of the next several weeks will determine whether our antagonists truly believe that this country will unify on all fronts and do what must be done to preserve the safety and freedom we all cherish.

The Soviets have been methodically but surely increasing their military prowess over the years. Because of the Vietnam disaster in which U.S. troops began participating under President Kennedy in the 60's, politicians listened to Americans pleading to cut back military spending when that war was over in the 70's. Our defenses have weakened by comparison to the Russians. Now all of a sudden, President Carter has been squeezed into a situation that forces a change in policy that completely contradicts his positions of the past. He promised improved relations with Moscow if he were elected president. Three years later he announces a military build-up, an extended presence of American arms, draft registration and a tough stand on U.S. protection against any "attempt by any outside force to gain control of the Persian Gulf region. . ." All of this because the Soviets were misjudged again.

It would seem the Afghanistan take-over was timed to coincide with the U.S. presidential election year. Carter has been criticized recently by other presidential hopefuls from both parties of having a "weak and vacillating" foreign policy. Ironically, the Russian invasion will enhance the president's re-election efforts as history proves that the nation almost always rallies behind a president under international pressure. Politically — though unfortunately for the American people — the threat to world peace couldn't have come at a better time for a floundering president seeking re-election.

We can be aggressively, mercilessly and caustically critical of President Carter and others for their heads-in-the-sand attitude toward Soviet intentions. It could be the Russians purposely staged the Afghanistan onslaught in order to help keep a "soft" U.S. president in office. Whatever, President Carter has finally found an issue upon which he can muster a cry for national unity.

We found little to disagree with in the president's message Wednesday night. While we firmly believe a stronger president and a militarily stronger country could have possibly obviated the need for such measures outlined by the president, we nonetheless will back his proposals as we suspect others will do.

It must be made clear that our interest in the Persian Gulf area can not be compared with our military involvement in the Vietnam fiasco. The crisis more closely resembles the events prior to WWII. It's a serious threat which sadly is no longer avoidable and one that only a unified U.S. population can control.

VARIETY SHOW Friday afternoon at Valley Home in Thief River Falls involved both staff and residents joining in various activities. Blanche and Fred Protz were two residents of the home who watched and joined in activities. Blanche also read a poem entitled, "I'm Pretty Good for the Shape I'm In."

Issues of 1980

Congress has just reconvened in Washington to debate the important issues of this session and I am certain we can expect to see energy, the economy and the nation's defense capabilities highlight much of the debate.

During the first half of the 96th Congress, I concentrated a great deal of my efforts on improving our energy situation. As each day passes and we experience higher fuel and gas prices, it becomes easier to understand that we must develop an energy policy which tries to establish a degree of security for the future. It is my goal to continue advocating during this session that we improve trade relations with our North American neighbors, Mexico and Canada. Both countries have the potential for greater trade with the United States in energy — Mexico with oil and Canada with natural gas. By improving our ability to trade and mutually cooperate, it will be possible to better the position of North America and lessen our increasing dependence on oil rich Middle Eastern countries and their unpredictable supply and pricing procedures.

I am not advocating a trade agreement which will allow the United States to benefit solely, but an agreement designed to further the interests of all three countries. Last year I proposed a resolution calling on the President to meet with leaders of Mexico and Canada to discuss how we can work together to solve many of our mutual problems. Hearings were held by various House Committees and the overall reception of the idea was good. Over 75 other Members of Congress have cosponsored my resolution and further hearings are expected to take place soon. As the world situation becomes more critical because of Iran and Afghanistan, the need for increased cooperation becomes increasingly urgent.

In addition, Congress must also develop programs which stress conservation, greater domestic production and increased development and use of alternative fuels. We must also act to expedite decisions on the proposed Northern Tier Pipeline to assure an adequate supply of crude oil to Minnesota. It is also my intent to work closely with Minnesota officials to make sure the state receives its fair share of the windfall profits tax.

Controlling Federal spending must also be addressed by Congress. The size of the Federal budget has increased dramatically and it is time for Congress to act responsibly and assure taxpayers their hard earned tax dollars are being used wisely. During debate of the 1981 budget, as in prior years, I will continue efforts to eliminate wasteful and unnecessary government spending by examining the true needs of people and how they can most effectively be addressed. The government should not fund every program proposed and Congress must establish priorities based on need and not desire.

Efforts must also be made to lessen the burden of inflation. Each year the cost of living has risen tremendously while the buying power of the average American citizen has gone down. Often higher wages do not offset the effects of inflation because people are pushed into higher tax brackets and must pay higher taxes. I am hopeful that measures designed to index the Federal tax system against inflation will be approved and people will be prevented from paying additional taxes because of inflation.

Our defense capabilities and foreign policy will also be examined closely. The invasion of Afghanistan and the crisis in Iran point out the need to maintain a strong defense and a foreign policy which is capable of preventing further aggression by nations like the Soviet Union.

Sno-Fest Events Stress Idea Of Sportsmanship

Freshmen, Jeff Storhaug and Brenda Blazek were crowned sno-fest king and queen during coronation ceremonies Friday afternoon in the Lincoln high school gymnasium.

Competition for queen and king included various activities conducted based on a point system including button sales, wall decorating, attendance at games, Mr. Irresistible, wood gathering, and skits. Point system for competition included 30 points for first place in button sales and wall decorating, 20 points for second place, and 10 for third place. Twenty points were awarded for first place winners of attendance at games, 15 for second place, and 10 for third. In the Mr. Irresistible competition, wood gathering, and skits, 15 points were awarded for first place, 10 for second and five for third.

Freshmen won first place in the button sales, as students sold as many buttons as possible out of a total of 125. Buttons sold included the picture and slogan designed by Christy Stromlund, freshman student at Lincoln high school, which stressed "sportsmanship week." Theme of the entire week this year was, "I So Love You . . Still."

In the wall decorating competition, each class was given one wall in the school cafeteria to decorate. Freshmen won first place in that competition, followed by the sophomores, and finally by the juniors.

Attendance was taken for all games that occurred at home during the week, beginning with girls' basketball game Monday against Greenbush, in which the Prowlers won the game 53-37. The next game was the Thursday night boys' basketball game against East Grand Forks, in which the Prowlers again won with a score of 15 to 55. Another girls' basketball game with the Fertile-Beltrami girls occurred Friday night in which Fertile-Beltrami won with a score of 55 to 47. Finally, the hockey game Saturday night between Moorhead and the Prowlers, resulted in a 6-6 tie between both teams.

Sophomores won in the competition between classes for attendance at games, with the freshmen coming in second and juniors in third place.

During Mr. Irresistible day, girls bought three ribbons for 25 cents in the morning and were not to talk to boys all day. If a girl accidently talked to a boy, he took one of her ribbons. The boy with the most ribbons at the end of the day was named Mr. Irresistible. The class with the highest percentage of their girls buying ribbons received the most points. Freshmen also won competition points in that event, followed by sophomores, with seniors in third place.

Four Mr. Irresistibles from each class included Kevin Kinsman, freshman, Duane Lewis, sophomore, Bob Purdy, junior, and Jon Lerud, senior. Overall Mr. Irresistible voted upon was Jon Lerud.

Ninth graders placed first in the wood gathering competition in which each class gathered wood for the bonfire conducted Friday evening behind the city arena.

A three-way tie resulted between the freshman, sophomore and junior classes following judgment of class skits. Seniors won competition points in that event.

Total points for each event in each class were 115 for the freshmen, 60 for sophomores, 50 for seniors and 35 for juniors.

Sophomores won the broom ball game with the freshmen conducted Saturday at the old arena in Thief River Falls. Final homecoming activity was the dance conducted Saturday in the Lincoln high school cafeteria from 9:30 p.m. to midnight with the band Kaptin performing.

Egg Collection Has Modern Day Value

Smithsonian News Service Photo by Doc Dougherty

JOHN BARBER, a technician at the Smithsonian's national museum of natural history, inspects an ostrich egg as part of a museum-wide inventory. With more than 125,000 specimens, the Smithsonian's egg collection is one of the largest and most comprehensive in the world. The eggs are valuable to researchers for the biological information they supply about the past.

Smithsonian News Service

Wanted: whole egg of elephant bird of Madagascar (Aepyornis), largest bird that ever lived. Bird has been extinct for about 1,000 years. Intact egg should be about the size of a football. Contact: Smithsonian Institution.

This advertisement never appeared, but Dr. George Watson, the curator of birds at the Smithsonian's national museum of natural history, admits that he would dearly like to acquire a real egg of the elephant bird to add to the Smithsonian's collection, one of the largest and most comprehensive collections of bird eggs in the world.

Much of the Smithsonian's collection was amassed during the 19th century, when collecting bird eggs was such a rage that thousands of people climbed trees and scaled cliffs to pluck eggs from nests — often risking life and limb in the effort.

For professional ornithologists, the quest for eggs was a scientific endeavor. But most amateur collectors were seeking eggs as trophies for the same reasons that many people collect postage stamps — for their beauty and value.

The egg-collecting mania is over now, probably forever, Watson says. "Not only is scientific collecting carefully regulated by the government," he notes, "but today egg collecting is scorned. With the growth of the modern conservation ethic, the collector who takes an egg from a nest is looked upon as an environmental rapist."

The run on eggs did serve a useful purpose, however. Collectors frequently made field observations that added to our knowledge about the breeding and natural habitats of the birds, Watson says.

Many enthusiasts, as well as such famous ornithologists as John James Aubudon, donated their egg collections to the Smithsonian and to other museums and research institutions, furnishing generations to come with an important historical and scientific legacy.

The eggs, like all the museum of natural history's holdings, are valuable to contemporary researchers for the biological information they supply about the past. Watson cites a recent example.

"In the late 1960's," he notes, "populations of fish-eating ospreys and brown pelicans stopped reproducing. The eggs were breaking as soon as the birds began incubating them."

"At that point, scientists came to the Smithsonian and started to compare our old eggs with the newly broken ones to see if there was any change. There was. The older osprey and pelican eggs had much thicker shells.

"We soon learned that DDT and other chlorinated hydrocarbons were interfering with the deposition of egg shell calcium and the result was that the eggshells were becoming paper-thin."

Since that time, the Smithsonian's collection has been used as a conservation tool by wildlife management experts.

"To avoid a repeat of the osprey and pelican disaster, wildlife experts carefully monitor the thickness of the eggs of threatened and endangered birds like the California condor," Watson says. "If comparative measurements using Smithsonian eggs reveal the slightest thinning of their eggshells, action is taken to find any chemical contamination of the birds' food chain. This may make it possible to reverse the thinning trend before it reaches a crisis point."

The egg collection also provides valuable information to the scholar. "There is a lot of interest in studying eggshells, because the arrangement of the pores on eggs as seen through an electron-microscope reveals detailed characters useful in bird classification that may have been previously unsuspected," Watson explains. "We can also learn a great deal about the bird's life history and evolution by studying eggs and associated information on breeding."

Currently, the museum's egg collection is being sorted, checked and counted as part of an immense top-to-bottom inventory at the Smithsonian.

The egg collection is stored in cabinet drawers in compartmented, cotton-lined trays. Each compartment contains at least on clutch, or set of eggs laid by a bird. Egg clutches can number from one to almost two dozen eggs; generally each bird species lays a specific number of eggs.

Museum technician John Barber is sorting through each clutch, comparing each label against the old handwritten catalog ledger to make certain the eggs are in their proper place and properly identified. He estimates that the total number of clutches approaches 45,000; the total number of eggs is more than 125,000.

All of the data Barber and his five helpers record is computerized, making it possible for researchers to locate egg clutches swiftly and efficiently and to print out the information associated with them.

Barber simultaneously is checking out a large collection of bird nests, ranging in size from hummingbird nests no larger than a half dollar to raven nests four feet wide. One of the oddities in this collection is a human skull which had been taken over by a house wren as a shelter for its next. It was found in the woods in the 19th century in New York and donated to the Smithsonian by a noted ornithologist.

The Museum's collection of old eggs continues to grow through gifts. The collection of North American eggs is relatively complete, but study samples of many tropical species are still lacking, Watson says.

The rarest eggs are those of extinct birds such as the elephant bird.

"We have fragments of the elephant bird egg and we have a plaster cast of the egg," Watson says. "But when people come to a natural history museum, they want to see the biggest and the smallest; they want to see the real McCoy. We can't put a plaster model on display."

There's reason to believe, Watson notes, that the elephant bird's egg was the stimulus for the Giant Roc in the legend of Sinbad the Sailor. "There are a few intact Aepyornis eggs in private collections, and someday we hope to receive one."

Grain Embargo Poses Soviet Difficulties

Suspension of grain sales to the Soviet Union is likely to cause some political and economic difficulty in that country, G. Edward Schuh, agricultural economist at the University of Minnesota, said Jan. 22.

The embargo of about 17 million tons of grain and other economic sanctions could also slow the rate of growth in U.S. export markets for years to come, Schuh said. He heads the university's department of agricultural and applied economics.

"There's little doubt in my mind that the suspension of sales will impose some political and economic pain on the Soviet Union," Schuh said. "Government officials there are still quite sensitive to the Polish food riots of a few years ago. They have taken improvements in the diets of their consumers as a measure of how well they are doing compared to the United States."

The turn to imports as a means of building livestock herds and adding more meat to the Russian diet was a major policy shift for the Soveits, Schuh added. Until they began buying grain in the mid-70's, the Soviet Union did not want economic relationships with capitalist countries.

"For them to turn to dependence on the United States for something as important as food illustrates how important that trade was to them and how potentially damaging it could be when it's taken away," Schuh said.

Actions by American allies could determine how much the Soviets are affected. Canada, Australia and the European community have agreed they will not replace the grain that the U.S. would have sold. Schuh said some difficulty may arise because other grain-exporting countries were not consulted before the suspension was announced.

A serious long term impact on the U.S. economy could be a loss of confidence by the world trade in this country as a source of grain. "The suspension of sales to the Soviet Union, following hard on the heels of economic retaliation against Iran, could well cause a crisis of confidence among our trading partners," Schuh said. "Then we can expect to see sizable efforts to diversify sources of imports and a serious drive toward self-sufficiency."

As a senior staff economist of the President's council of economic advisors, Schuh helped shape the original grain agreement made with the Soviet Union in 1975. That agreement committed both countires to a minimum yearly grain sale. He was deputy assistant U.S. secretary of agriculture for international affairs and commodity programs during 1978. He joined the University of Minnesota in July, 1979, after several years at Purdue university.

U.S. grain markets have recuperated "much better than expected," from the suspension, Schuh said. The administration can sustain grain prices in the short term, but officials could over-react. Possible crop failures and the fear of war, coupled with U.S. moves to isolate domestic grain from the market, could result in panic buying and a rapid grain price rise.

Government actions could also add to inflation, the economist said. He estimates the administration will spend about $4 billion to keep grain prices up. More money may have to be printed to cover this addition to the budget deficit, a move that usually fuels inflation.

American Host Program Seeks Visitor Homes

Host families are needed to host English-speaking European teachers as guests in their homes for a seven to 10-day period this summer, it was announced recently by the American Host foundation.

American Host is the only nonprofit, nongovernmental program designed to show the American way of life to European teachers by pairing them with American families. It is a nation-wide home hospitality program which is endorsed by the department of state.

Now in its 18th year, American Host has opened the doors to better understanding for more than 11,000 English-speaking European teachers who have passed on their new understanding to their students, friends and colleagues when they have returned to their homelands.

Being a host family is open to anyone who has the desire to increase understanding and friendship between Europeans and Americans. Host families are required to provide a private room and meals for their guest and to give their guest the opportunity to meet friends and neighbors and to see local sights.

American Host foundation arranges all transportation but host families are asked to meet their guests on arrival in their area. Visitors and host families have the opportunity to correspond for at least a month prior to the visit.

Anyone interested in being a host family or learning more about the foundation's activities may write to American Host Program, 12747 Brookhurst Street, Garden Grove, California, 92640; telephone (714) 537-5711.

Record Sunflower Crop Produced In Minnesota In 1979

Minnesota farmers harvested record soybean and sunflower crops in 1979, according to the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service's annual crop summary. The state's corn crop was the second largest on record but small grain output fell.

Spring planting and crop development averaged two weeks or more later than normal for nearly all crops during the season. Fortunately, moisture was adequate and temperatures were favorable — neither too hot for small grains nor too cool for row crops. Because of the late season, many farmers were concerned that an earlier than normal frost could seriously damage the corn crop. However, statewide frosts stayed away long enough for the crop to mature. Corn grain moisture remained high all during harvest and substantially increased artificial drying costs.

For the third consecutive year, Minnesota farmers harvested a corn crop that yielded 100 bushels or more per acre. Production totaled 606 million bushels, six per cent smaller than the record 1978 crop, but the second largest in history. The 100 bushel-per-acre yield tied the 1977 yield but fell four bushels below 1978. Acreage for grain amounted to 6.06 million acres while corn cut for silage totaled 750,000 acres. Total planted acreage was 6.9 million acres, less than two per cent below 1978.

Sunflower output jumped to 1.87 billion pounds, up 74 per cent from the 1978 crop. Although acreage nearly doubled to 1.4 million planted acres and 1.347 million harvested acres the average yield of 1,389 pounds per acre dropped 147 pounds. Oil-type production rose 82 per cent but non-oil production declined 10 per cent. Oil varieties accounted for nearly 96 per cent of the total sunflower production.

The 1979 Minnesota wheat crop totaled 90.384 million bushels, three per cent smaller than last year. Yields averaged 35.1 bushels per acre, up from 33.6 bushels in 1978. Seeded acreage declined seven per cent to 2.64 million acres and harvested acreage to 2.578 million acres. By types, production of spring wheat other than durum was down two per cent to 85.75 million bushels. Durum wheat production dropped by almost one-fourth to 2.849 million bushels. The winter wheat output of 1.785 million bushels increased six per cent above last year.

The 1979 oat crop fell 14 per cent to 84.93 million bushels. The 57 bushel-per-acre yield topped both last year and the 1974-78 average yield of 43.7 bushels. Seeded acreage totaled 780,000 and harvested acreage 770,000, both down 27 per cent.

Farmers harvested 2.275 million bushels of rye in 1979, three per cent less than the previous year. The 25 bushel-per-acre yeild was up one bushel from last year and up one-half bushel from the five year average. Seeded acreage of 100,000 acres was down 13 per cent while harvested acreage of 91,000 acres was down only seven per cent.

The flax crop at 2.2 million bushels gained one per cent from the previous year. Harvested acreage totaled 153,000 acres with an average yield of 14.5 bushels per acre compared with 15.5 bushels in 1978. Farmers seeded 160,000 acres.

Sugarbeet tonnage declined by one-fourth as harvested acreage dropped seven per cent to 244,000 acres and yields fell 3.4 tons to 15.5 tons per acre.

Production of all types of hay equaled 9.03 million tons, one per cent more than a year ago. Farmers harvested 3.01 million acres with an average yield of 3.00 tons per acre. Alfalfa hay accounted for 7.31 million tons of the total production and all other types 1.72 million tons.

Final Funds For Fuel Aid Are Received

Inter-county community council, Inc. has now received its final allocation in the emergency crisis assistance program (ECAP) that will assist low-income people with fuel assistance.

Inter-county serves the counties of Clearwater, East Polk, Pennington and Red Lake and received grants for federal funds for the ECAP program from two sources — $233,800 from the community service administration and $635,511 from the U.S. department of health, education and welfare. It is estimated that this will provide assistance to over 2,000 households in the area.

Eligible families may receive up to $400 provided they meet specified guidelines (guidelines are listed in the council meeting story in the January 23 issue of the Times).

Morris Owen, retired city superintendent of utilities, will staff an intake office in the city auditorium to take applications from those in Thief River Falls who need assistance. Any person in Thief River Falls who feels he meets the specified guidelines may contact Owen at 681-6382.

Region 8AA Tournament Seeding

It's just speculation, but you might be seeing Thief River Falls and Bemidji paired off in a first round tournament game when the 1980 North Half Region 8AA boys basketball tournament gets underway Tues., Feb. 19, at Moorhead State University.

Under the new North and South Half format for Region 8AA basketball, tournament seeding will be decided at a coaches meeting. That North Half meeting will be held a week from tonight, Mon., Feb. 11, at Mahnomen.

It's guesswork on our part, but the seeding might go like this: 1. Moorhead; 2. Crookston; 3. Detroit Lakes; 4. Bemidji; 5. Thief River Falls; 6. East Grand Forks; 7. Fergus Falls; 8. Park Rapids.

A first round North Half Region 8AA tournament doubleheader Tues., Feb. 19, will feature No. 1 vs. No. 8 at 7 p.m. and No. 4 vs. No. 5 at 8:45.

To complete the first round quarterfinals on Thurs., Feb. 21, it'll be No. 2 vs. No. 7 at 7 p.m. and No. 3 vs. No. 6 at 8:45.

A semifinal doubleheader will be played Fri., Feb. 22, and the championship game will be played Sat., Feb. 23, at 7:30 p.m.

Moorhead is an obvious No. 1 seed. The Spuds already rate as heavy favorites to walk off with the title. For the No. 2 spot we go with Crookston over Detroit Lakes because the Pirates, even though they lost recently to the Lakers 57-56, played the Spuds tough earlier this year in losing only 54-49. Moorhead, on the other hand, had little trouble dealing Detroit Lakes an 80-64 shellacking the next night.

Bemidji gets the No. 4 spot because the Lumberjacks, while splitting with Thief River Falls, took the only meeting this year against East Grand Forks and also defeated Crookston. But they lost to Detroit Lakes and Fergus Falls and will have to face the Pirates again Friday.

Next spot goes to Thief River Falls since the Prowlers beat East Grand Forks 65-55 last Thursday, won at Bemidji 56-45 Friday and edged Fergus Falls 58-57 in three overtimes the week before that. But the Prowlers lost twice to Crookston and will have to face East Grand Forks again Friday.

East Grand Forks, in turn, knocked off Fergus Falls to probably get the edge for No. 6 over the Otters.

Park Rapids has won but one game all year, a recent 64-49 decision over Walker.

Thief River Falls will play three of its final four regular season games against North Half Region 8AA opponents, but only Friday's Northwest Athletic Conference game at East Grand Forks will affect the Prowlers' tournament seeding since they'll play Park Rapids and Detroit Lakes after the seeding meeting. Park Rapids will be here Thurs., Feb. 14, while the Prowlers close out the schedule the next night at Detroit Lakes.

North Half winner will face the South Half champion in the Region 8AA championship game Fri., Feb. 29, at St. Cloud State University. The 7:30 p.m. game will send its winner to the 1980 Class AA state basketball tournament, scheduled to start March 6 at the Met Sports Center in Bloomington, then switch to the St. Paul Civic Center for semifinals and finals March 7 and 8.

In the South Half of Region 8AA, it looks like a three-way struggling involving Cold Spring-Rocori, St. Cloud Apollo and St. Cloud Tech. Rest of the field includes Brainerd, Little Falls, Sauk Rapids, Melrose and Alexandria.

Northmen Eye MJCAA Tournament

Basketball coach Chet Engelman told the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club members Thursday that his Northland community college ball club will be appearing in the 1980 Minnesota junior college athletic association state tournament March 21-23 at Normandale community college in Bloomington.

He did not hedge when discussing the state tournament prospects of the Northmen who must finish first or second in the four-team Northwest Division to make the MJCAA field. "Not if, but when we get to the state tournament. . ." was Engelman's expression.

Northland took a big step toward reaching the tournament with key wins over Northwest Division rivals Crookston and Brainerd last week. The Northmen got the Trojans 93-84 Tuesday and knocked off the Red Raiders 85-72 Friday. Both games were played here, meaning Northland still must win on the road to pick off a state spot

What may be a Northwest Division title showdown will be played here Mon., Feb. 11, when Northland hosts Fergus Falls. Those two shared the Northwest Division title a year ago and the Spartans edged the Northmen 89-86 in their first meeting this winter. The regular season ends that week at Lake Region Tues., Feb. 12, and at Brainerd Fri., Feb. 15.

A favorable draw awaits Northland if the Northmen make that state tournament field. With the top two finishers in each of the four MJCAA divisions forming the state tournament, first round pairings will match Northwest No. 1 vs. Northeast No. 2; Northeast No. 1 vs. Northwest No. 2; Southern No. 1 vs. Central No. 2; Central No. 1 vs. Southern No. 2.

That means northern Minnesota teams can avoid the southern schools — who have dominated the ten previous state tournaments — until the finals. And despite losing to Northeast Division leaders Mesabi 81-74 and Vermilion 79-76 on the road earlier this year, Engelmen and the Northmen are confident they'll reverse the outcome the second time around. . .if they get the opportunity.

A strong Lake Region ball club out of Devils Lake, N.D. will be in Thief River Falls for a non-conference game Tuesday.

Miscellaneous

+ Congratulations to director Doug Engstrom and his Lincoln high school marching band for their outstanding halftime presentation Thursday in the third annual Band Night performance at the Thief River Falls vs. East Grand Forks basketball game. The event has become a highlight of the basketball season for the Thief River Falls sports fans.

Taking pride in the fact that his Lincoln high school basketball team defeated Northwest Athletic Conference rivals East Grand Forks 65-55 and Bemidji 56-45 in back-to-back outings Thursday and Friday, coach Glen Peters of the Prowlers said, "Right now we're a good ball club. It was a tremendous week for us to beat East Side and Bemidji back-to-back like that. It was a real challenge for our ball club and we met the challenge."

Peters was particularly happy with the Prowlers' play at Bemidji Friday as they reversed an earlier 83-71 home court loss to the Lumberjacks.

"We played extremely well," said Peters. "We played probably our best ball game of the year."

The wins over the Green Wave and Lumberjacks suddenly vaulted the Prowlers from last place to a share of first place in the close Northwest Athletic Conference point standings with a 3-3 record — good for four points in the NWAC title-deciding point system.

Instead of getting into another shoot-out with Bemidji, Peters decided to attack the Lumberjacks in a different manner Friday.

"We slowed it down," he explained. "We played patient basketball. We moved the ball around until we got a good shot."

Thief River Falls started with an 18-14 first quarter lead and carried a 31-24 edge into halftime. It was 41-36 after three quarters and Bemidji gained a tie at 43-43 midway through the fourth quarter.

But the Prowlers went into a four-corner offense; Bemidji was forced to foul; and Thief River Falls made the free throws.

"That's what won it for us at the end," noted Peters about the delay game that led to a 7-for-8 Thief River Falls effort at the free throw line in the fourth quarter.

Kyle Hams, who did most of his damage with 10 assists, broke the 43-43 tie with a couple of key baskets then teamed with Mark Schmitke to form a deadly combination at the free throw line at the end as Schmitke went 4-for-4 at the line and Hams was 2-for-2.

For the game, Thief River Falls was 14-for-17 from the free throw line where Bemidji was given just five chances, making but one free throw all night. From the field the Prowlers were 21-for-41 for 52 per cent and the Lumberjacks were 22-for-51 for 43 per cent. Thief River Falls outrebounded Bemidji 24-22 and the Prowlers held their turnovers down to 13. The Lumberjacks lost the ball ten times.

Schmitke and Todd Young led a balanced Thief River Falls offense with 12 points apiece while Hams and Greg Miller had 11 each. Miller also grabbed 10 rebounds. Rob Egersdorf, who scored 24 points in the Lumberjacks' win over the Prowlers back on Dec. 21, ran into first half foul trouble and finished with half that amount this time.

MOORHEAD GOALIE Kreg Korinek sat down on the ice after coming up with a save against Thief River Falls center Tom Bjorkman in the second period of Saturday's Section 8 high school hockey game played in the sports arena. Bjorkman scored the game's first goal just 1:49 into the first period, but the underdog Spuds held the Prowlers to a 6-6 overtime tie. Thief River Falls will be at Crookston Tuesday for a big four-point Section 8 game.

Spuds Register "Upset" In 6-6 Overtime Tie With Favored TRF

Add Thief River Falls to that ever-increasing list of upset victims in northwestern Minnesota high school hockey this winter. The Section 8-leading Prowlers, while not losing, struggled to a 6-6 overtime tie against unheralded Moorhead Saturday in the sports arena.

It wasn't supposed to happen. The Prowlers, while admittedly struggling with manpower problems, have been regarded as the top team in Section 8 and should have put away a Moorhead team that is lost in the middle of the pack.

"It was a very futile attempt on our part," said disappointed Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "We stood around in our end and embarrassed ourselves. If we're really the No. 1 team in Section 8 hockey we should not lose. . . or tie. . . against a team like Moorhead — particularly in our own rink. If you're a real good team you can have a bad night and still win. Now we have to go out and prove we're a real good team."

Things started about the way most observers thought they would as Thief River Falls took a 2-0 lead. Tom Bjorkman sent a long slap shot past goalie Kreg Korinek who had a crowd in front of him at 1:48 of the first period and Jeff Ulrich made it 2-0 when he stretched out across the goal mouth to reach the puck and put a backhand past Korinek at 7:18.

But apparent goals by Jim Thompson and Bjorkman less than a minute apart were taken away by the officials and instead of a 4-0 cushion the Prowlers found themselves in a 2-2 tie when Wayne Schultz and Reid Christopherson scored just 40 seconds apart. Schultz shoved the puck past Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury who came out to challenge him when his defenseman took Phil Ostlie on a 2-on-1 rush. Christopherson had a wide open net to shoot at on a rebound that came out to him on the right wing at 12:25.

The Prowlers, who used eight different forward line combinations in the absence of second line wing Paul Drees and the limited availability of Thompson, a key member of Thief River Falls' high scoring first line, fell behind 4-2 in the second period and had to scramble the rest of the way to avoid losing the game — worth four points in the Section 8 standings since the two teams meet just once this winter. Drees did not suit up for the game after suffering a shoulder injury in Tuesday's 4-2 win at East Grand Forks. Thompson was favoring a knee, that he injured during the football season.

But Grand wouldn't use their absence as an excuse. "It was just a poor effort, that's all," he said. "We had a terrible week of practice. We try to impress upon the kids that you play the way you practice, and that's what happened to us tonight."

A breakaway goal by Ulrich late in the second period and a goal by Thompson from a tough angle to the left of Korinek at 1:08 of the third period tied the game 4-4 and finally put some fire in the Prowlers.

But Shawn Anderson lifted a rebound up and over a prone Jury at 3:46. That goal in front of Korinek, then waited for what seemed like eternity before getting off a shot at an open net for a 5-5 tie.

However, Thief River Falls' only penalty of the game — a tripping call on Bob Fitzgerald — produced a Moorhead power play goal by Anderson who was allowed to come in on the right wing with no resistance and beat Jury from close range to the far side at 9:50.

Fitzgerald made amends by getting the game-tying goal on a blistering slap shot from long range less than a minute later.

The Prowlers, who put plenty of pressure on during the overtime, can thank Jury for the tie because the senior netminder stopped the Spuds on a pair of two-man breakaways near the end. He skated out to poke the puck away from John Manney and Mark Rice who couldn't quite get to the sliding piece of rubber that came shooting out of Thief River Falls' attacking zone in the final 10 seconds of regulation time; then held his ground when Schultz and Christopherson came bearing down on him with the puck and no defensemen in the final minutes of the eight-minute sudden death overtime period.

"If we would have played like this all year we'd have a fine hockey team," noted satisfied Moorhead coach Terry Shercliffe who was looking for Mooheard's first win ever over Thief River Falls; a feat the Spuds accomplished earlier this year for the first time in 14 tries against Bemidji — coached by Wendell's brother, Bryan. "Thief River Falls was our next goal," smiled Shercliffe.

Thief River Falls, now 10-3-1 will face a pair of key Section 8 games this week, going to Crookston Tuesday and hosting Roseau Saturday.

"We've got something to prove," said Grand, hoping the Prowlers can reassert themselves as the No. 1 team in Section 8.

SECOND OF THREE goals scored by Thief River Falls wing Jeff Ulrich came on this second period breakaway as he put a point-blank backhand past Moorhead goalie Kreg Korinek during Saturday's high school hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Despite Ulrich's hat trick the favored Prowlers could do no better than a 6-6 overtime tie against the Spuds.

NCC, Crookston Play Wednesday

Crookston scored four shorthanded goals Wednesday in beating Northland community college 15-6 in MJCAA hockey.

The defeat overshadowed a couple of major accomplishments by the visitors as Northland scored three goals in a 23-second span of the second period and Mark Koehn scored four goals in a five-point night.

It was a 2-2 game after one period, with Northland scoring on a power play goal by Scott Bergland and on the first of Koehn's four goals at 13:19.

Three of those Crookston shorthanded goals came in the second period as the Trojans opened up a 7-2 lead.

That's when Northland exploded, scoring four times in a 1:51 span.

Koehn started it on a power play at 17:29 and scored again at 17:40. Jay Kverno made it 7-5 at 17:52 and Koehn, a sophomore from Devils Lake, N.D., brought the Northmen to within 7-6 at 19:18.

But all of the Northland scoring was completed at that point as Crookston pulled away with eight unanswered goals in the third period, scoring two of them in a quick six-second span.

It was the third straight Wednesday night Crookston win over Northland. Those two northwestern Minnesota college rivals will complete their month-long series Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Brad Fowler came up with 34 saves in the Crookston nets, with exactly half of them coming during Northland's second period offensive surge.

Defending state champion Hibbing was an easy 15-4, 19-1 double winner over Northland in an MJCAA weekend hockey series played in Hibbing.

The losses stretched Northland's season-long losing streak to 13 games.

Crookston assured itself of a spot in the 1980 MJCAA state hockey tournament with a weekend sweep of Rochester, winning 6-3 Saturday and picking up a 7-2 decision Sunday. Those wins upped the Trojans' record to 5-11, with the three previous Crookston wins all registered over Northland.

That puts Hibbing, Mesabi, Rainy River and Crookston into the MJCAA state hockey tournament Feb. 23-24 at Hibbing.

Lincoln To Face Top Challengers

Thief River Falls lead in the unpredictable Section 8 high school point standings will be challenged this week when the first place Prowlers face Nos. 2 and 3 Roseau and Crookston.

A four-point game awaits the Prowlers Tuesday at Crookston, with the Pirates trying to bounce back from a 6-4 Thursday night upset loss to Bemidji and the Prowlers trying to rebound from an unexpected 6-6 tie with Moorhead Saturday. It's the only scheduled meeting of the year between the two teams — thus doubling its worth in the Section 8 standings where home-and-home games are worth two points each and single meetings have a four-point value.

On Saturday it'll be a Thief River Falls vs. Roseau matchup that should fill the sports arena here. The Rams, who skated to a 3-3 tie at Crookston last Tuesday, have been coming on strong since losing to Thief River Falls 4-0 last month. The addition of all-stater Mark Huglen, who missed most of the first part of the season because of illness and injury, has obviously helped the defending Section 8 champions.

With 18 and 16 points remaining, repsectively, Mount St. Benedict and Thief River Falls have the most points left to be played for in Section 8 play where the final regular season point standings determine post-season tournament positions. Meanwhile, Warroad, considered a title challenger at the start of the year, has just six points left on its schedule.

Elsner Wins Two Sno Pro Races Sunday

Bob Elsner of Team Arctic was a double winner Sunday in Sno Pro professional snowmobile racing at Portland, Maine.

Elsner placed in all three Sno Pro events as he won the 340 race, finished third in the 440 and came back for a victory in the 340-X feature.

In the 340 it was 1-2-3 Arctic Cat finish as Elsner, Steve Thorsen and Team Arctic's Jim Dimmerman picked off the top three places.

Thorsen took the 440, followed by Dimmerman and Elsner.

Elsner was a winner in the 340-X event, with Alan Decker placing second on a Ski-Doo and Dimmerman third.

LOOKING FOR the ball underneath, Thief River Falls center Todd Young was guarded closely by East Grand Forks defender Greg Swanson during Thursday's Northwest Athletic Conference basketball game played in the Lincoln high school gym. Young scored 13 points in the Prowlers' 65-55 win.

Northland 81, Brainerd 70. . .

Northmen Challenge For Northwest Division Lead

Northland community college basketball coach Chet Engelman figures he has himself a pretty good basketball team. It has to be good, he says, to play poorly and still come out an 81-70 winner over Brainerd Friday in a first place battle in the MJCAA Northwest Division; a division so closely bunched that every game at this late point in the 1979-80 season is a battle for first place.

"I'm happy that we can play as poorly as we did and still win," said Engelman after Friday's ragged ball. Our defensive play salvaged it for us."

The game's star attractions — Northland's Terry Harris and Vince Parker, along with Brainerd's Jeff Oliphant — produced just 26 points between them, and Harris got 18 of them. Going into the game Harris was averaging 30.5 points, Parker 22.8 and Oliphant 21.3. But Harris, the leading scorer in the MJCAA and tenth in the national NJCAA scoring charts, couldn't find his touch around the basket until the second half; Parker scored eight points in the first half and then didn't take a shot after intermission and left the game after injuring an ankle with 5:41 remaining; and Oliphant, a 6-6 sophomore, played only briefly in the first half after twisting an ankle in the opening moments of play. He did not score.

While those three were having their problems, Northland freshman Tony Smith, a 6-2 forward with no high school basketball background, stole the show by scoring 21 points and grabbing a bundle of rebounds.

"Tony Smith played a very good game for us," confirmed Engelman who also praised the floor play of freshman guard Dave Spilde and the board work done by 6-7 sophomore Chris Kneen.

"We're so used to seeing Parker and Harris scoring 70 points between them," noted Engelman. "But that's just not a normal situation. We had good balance tonight." Mike Carriere joined Smith and Harris in double figures with 13 points.

Without Oliphant, Brainerd never challenged for the lead. Northland led 40-23 at halftime and had things well in hand when Kneen went up in traffic to score from underneath for a 52-31 cushion with 16:16 remaining in the game.

But with 6-2 Dale Davies, the game's high scorer with 29 points, and 5-6 Warner Lewis leading the way, Brainerd did make a run at that point, outscoring the error-prone Northmen 18-6 over the next seven minutes to pull within 58-49 following a pair of Warner free throws with 8:44 left.

Regrouping, Northland scored seven of the next nine points in the next two minutes to put the game away, with Smith sinking two free throws then driving the base line to complete the surge that carried the Northmen to a 65-51 edge with 6:19 on the clock.

And when Brainerd tried to make a last ditch charge that brought the score down to 79-70 with 1:48 remaining, Smith was there to drop in two free throws to seal the decision.

In the shooting department, Northland was 34-for-79 from the field for 43 per cent and went 17-for-27 at the free throw line. Brainerd was 28-for-83 from the field for 34 per cent and 16-for-24 at the line.

Northland, 5-12 overall, will host a strong Lake Region ball club from Devils Lake, N.D. Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. The Northmen, 5-3 in the MJCAA, will be at Crookston Thursday for a key 8 p.m. Northwest Division showdown with the Trojans.

MJCAA Has 18 Title Contenders

With just two weeks of regular season play remaining, only four of the 22 Minnesota junior college athletic association basketball teams have been eliminated from post-season MJCAA state tournament consideration.

Tight races in all four MJCAA divisions will draw state-wide attention leading to the 1980 MJCAA state tournament, scheduled to be played February 21-23 at Normandale community college in Bloomington. Top two finishers in each of the four MJCAA divisions earn berths in the state tournament.

Itasca in the Northeast, Worthington and Austin in the Southern and Lakewood in the Central Division are the only teams still not in the running for one of the eight state tournament positions.

Three key Northwest Division games will be played this week, starting Tuesday when co-leaders Crookston and Fergus Falls meet at Crookston. A doubleheader Thursday will find Brainerd at Fergus Falls and Northland at Crookston.

Brainerd slipped last weekend when the Raiders lost 85-72 at Northland Friday and fell 92-84 at Crookston Saturday. Fergus Falls picked up an MJCAA-counting win over Itasca 88-53.

Looking at the tight Northwest Division race, Northland coach Chet Chet Engelman says, "I'm going to guess 8-3 will win it. That's because we're not going to lose any more games and that would put us at 8-3."

A CHARGING FOUL was called on Brainerd's Dale Davies as he ran over Northland's Vince Parker (5) on his way to the basket during Friday's MJCAA basketball game played in Thief River Falls. Terry Harris of Northland also defended on the play. Davies scored a game-high 29 points, but the Raiders lost the key Northwest Division contest 85-72.

Hams, Prowlers Handle East Grand Forks 65-55

Kyle Hams proved once again Thursday that he's the best guard in the Northwest Athletic Conference by scoring 20 points and handing out five assists in the Prowlers' 65-55 high school basketball win over East Grand Forks.

Hams had to leave quite an impression on the Green Wave as he burned them from every angle — swishing long range shots from the outside; driving through the middle for his distinctive mid-air push shots; and finding the open man underneath.

"I've said it before," explained Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters, "our team goes the way Kyle Hams goes. He played very well tonight and we played well as a team. He's one of the better ones around this part of the state for sure."

The outcome eliminated East Grand Forks from NWAC pennant consideration. And the Green Wave have themselves to blame as they embarrassed themselves with a poor 9-for-23 night at the free throw line.

A fast-paced first half was a stand-off. Thief River Falls took a 32-31 edge into band night intermission only because Kevin Tack failed to make his free throw when he was given a chance for a three-point play with 26 seconds remaining.

East Grand Forks' run-and-gun offense threatened to blow the host Prowlers out of theor own gym at the start of the second half when the Green Wave opened up a quick 37-32 lead. A fast break lay-up by Brian Nelson that produced a five-point edge also brought a hurried Thief River Falls time-out.

Whatever strategy was planned at that point worked for the Prowlers who outscored the Green Wave 10-1 over the next three minutes to go ahead 42-38. Todd Young started it with two free throws. Hams drove the base line, then fed Mark Schmitke underneath for a 38-38 tie. Jim Nyland hit a short turnaround jumper in traffic to break the tie and Hams, after pausing and finding everybody covered, let go with a long straightaway set shot that brought a quick response from East Grand Forks coach Ray Stinar — a time-out.

The Prowlers never relinquished that lead. It shrank to 44-43 when Nelson, the top Green Wave scorer with 16 points, followed a Thief River Falls turnover with a fast break and a three-point play with 42 seconds remaining in the third quarter.

But Hams surfaced again to make it 46-43 when he worked himself free for a jump shot at the free throw line with five seconds left.

The fourth quarter belonged to the Prowlers and Young, who for the second straight game was not in the starting line-up. But in the final eight minutes he was there to make the big plays, turning a 48-46 edge into a 51-46 cushion on a three-point play with 6:03 remaining; taking a 51-50 game and making it 53-50 by scoring on an offensive rebound with 5:23 left; and then starting a game-clinching run of eight straight Thief River Falls points by taking a feed from Hams and scoring on a short base line jumper with 2:30 to go.

That made it 57-52 and the Prowlers didn't stop until Hams, Nyland and Gregg Peterson all scored for a 63-52 gap with just 1:17 on the clock.

"We played better defense in the second half," mentioned Peters who was also happy with the way the Prowlers reacted in the face of East Grand Forks' full-court pressure defense. Plagued by turnovers all season, the Prowlers gave up the ball an allowable 13 times. "We handled their press very well, especially in the first half," said Peters. "The kids are starting to concentrate more when they face pressure."

Young finished with 13 points, while Schmitke, Nyland and Greg Miller all contributed with nine points apiece. Todd Selk and Tack joined Nelson in double figures for the Green Wave with 11 and 10 points, respectively.

Thief River Falls, not much better than East Grand Forks at the free throw line where the Prowlers were 11-for-20, hit 27 of 57 shots from the field and 47 per cent while East Grand Forks made 23 of 59 for 39 per cent. The Prowlers outrebounded the Green Wave 42-33 as Nyland grabbed 12 caroms and Peterson 10. East Grand Forks committed just seven turnovers.

Falcons Beat Prowlers 55-47

Janet Gullekson, a 5-9 senior, scored 18 points and pulled down 17 rebounds Friday to lead defending Region 8A champion Fertile-Beltrami to a 55-47 win over Thief River Falls in a girls high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym.

"We played pretty well," mentioned Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg, "but we got beat on the boards (44-31). We weren't blocking out; we were giving them two-three shots."

The Falcons took a 14-12 first quarter edge and turned it into a 31-23 halftime cushion. It was 45-35 after three quarters.

"They're really physical," pointed out Sjoberg. "They got the ball and went right to the basket."

Fertile-Beltrami had an edge in the shooting department as the Falcons shot at a 25-for-59, 42 per cent clip and the Prowlers shot at a 21-for-66, 32 per cent pace. From the free throw line the Falcons were 5-for-11 and the Prowlers went 5-for-13.

Snowmobile, Trapping Bill Is Introduced

State Representative Irv Anderson has introduced a bill allowing the use of snowmobiles for trapping in Koochiching county. The bill comes pursuant to a request by the Koochiching county board.

Anderson said upon introduction that a similar piece of legislation has already been enacted into law for Lake of the Woods county. "Strong argument can be made for the bill," said Anderson, "since seasons are set so late. Many times Snow may be of considerable depth while the trapping season is on. In addition, Koochiching county has large areas of isolated or wilderness tracts that are inaccessible except by snowmobile."

The bill has been referred to the committee on natural resources and Anderson hopes for passage this session.

Senate copies have been forwarded to Senator Bob Lessard for introduction in the Senate.

GRABBING A REBOUND brought a lot of attention to Brainerd's Willie Botz (24) during Friday's women's community college basketball game played in the Northland gym. Julie Easton (11), Jacki Nelson (45) and Julie Anderson of the Northwomen all went after Botz on the play. Brainerd won the game 45-35.

Women's College Basketball...

Brainerd Defense Stops NCC On Offense 45-35

Brainerd's defense shut down Northland's offense Friday and the visitors claimed a 45-35 victory in women's community college basketball.

While Northland stayed close to the Northwest Division leaders, the Northwomen could not muster an offensive threat to go along with a strong defensive effort.

"They shut us off in the middle," explained Northland coach Deb Jacobson, "and basically that's our offense.

Brainerd led 23-16 at halftime and was never in serious danger of losing that lead in the second half; owning a 33-22 cushion at the 10-minute mark.

Two free throws by Jacki Nelson with 3:35 remaining brought Northland to within 37-30, but that's as close as the Northwomen got. Julie Easton, Northland's leading scorer with 10 points, made it 43-35 when she scored on a rebound with 1:25 left, but while keeping Brainerd off the scoreboard, the next two possessions for the Northwomen produced a missed field goal and a turnover.

Brainerd's Colleen Kovall, the game's high scorer with 15 points, clinched it with a long set shot with 28 seconds to go.

"I'm not unhappy," mentioned Jacobson. "I was anticipating much more aggressive game out of Brainerd."

Northland shot poorly, hitting 13 of 58 field goal attempts for 22 per cent and sinking just nine of 21 free throws. Brainerd made 21 of 62 shots from the field for 33 per cent and connected on three of eight free throws.

"We rebounded well tonight," said Jacobson, "but we couldn't put it back in."

The defeat dropped Northland's season record to 3-12 and the Northwest Division mark fell to 2-6. The Northwomen are scheduled to be in Grand Forks tonight (Monday) for a 7:30 p.m. game against the University of North Dakota junior varsity. Northland will be at Crookston Thursday for a 6 p.m. Northwest Division game.

Heading west from Grand Targhee on the west slope of the Teton mountains we cross the edge of America's largest lava field. This is a vast area of razor sharp and irregular lava where neither man nor animal can walk. Here is the Crater of the Moon national monument — a fantastic place well worth visiting. They have ice caves in which the ice remains all summer.

Sun Valley, our destination, was one of America's first ski areas. Baldy is probably our nation's finest ski mountain. Sun Valley is elegant, except for the rock and roll room, which, properly, is near the boiler room. In the morning your pancakes are served with pure maple syrup.

The community of Ketchum is a colorful western town with excellent restaurants and stores for all a person's needs.

The skiing is classic with 3,400 feet of vertical from top to bottom. They now have snow making all the way to the top an excellent snow making all the way to the top on excellent runs. Novice to expert will find fine skiing here. Dollar Mountain near the ledge has beautiful novice—and—intermediate skiing with 600 feet of vertical elevation. Snow dressing is excellent with one of the largest fleets of machines in the country. You can see their lights as they manicure those runs at night.

When you stand on the top of Baldy, rugged and beautiful mountains ripple away to the horizon in every direction. Below you is a vertical 3,400 feet of some of the finest skiing anywhere. You are comfortable because the base elevation is only about 6,000 feet. There are many different runs in many bowls.

Remember, you should warm up on gentler runs. I recommend, as you face down the mountain, that you go to your far right, and come down Broadway, a skier's dream. Take the chair up to the Round House chalet and run down Round House, Olympic Lane, Olympic Ridge and River Run. Go back to the top again and go left. Ski down Upper College, Fly Squirrel and Warm Springs, then just have lots of fun skiing both sides of the mountain. Be sure in the late afternoon (after 3) you are on the same side of the mountain as your car. At the bottom they are a long ways apart.

Leaving one of America's great ski areas, Jackson Hole, at the Teton Village, Wyoming we drive south and west on U.S. 89. We pass several herd of elk, then enter the spectacular and rugged Grand Canyon of the Snake river. Last year in the section we were held up by two avalanches, blocking the road.

At Alpine, Wyoming, we turn south going up to the high, fertile Salt river valley. After going over two mountain passes we arrive at the north and west side of Bear lake. At about 6,000 feet elevation, about 7x20 miles and rimmed by mountains, it is one of our nation's major scenic areas on the southwest shore. Just south of U.S. 89 at Garden City is Sweetwater park, a condominium complex, where we have enjoyed staying. They have ski packages available and a shuttle bus to Beaver mountain, our next ski area.

In the morning it is a beautiful trip west from Bear lake up the high mountain rim. We go over a pass at 7,800 feet, and soon arrive at Beaver mountain. This area has been owned by the Selholzer family for many years and Ted is the manager. I enjoy talking to him because he really knows ski areas and their problems.

Beaver mountain is a particularly well run and friendly area for family skiing. There is a fine variety of runs with a vertical elevation of about 1,600 feet. Snow grooming is excellent. They have a good cafeteria and complete ski shop, ski school and rental service.

When beginning a day's skiing you should warm up on gentle slopes, then go to more challenging ones suited to your skills. At Beaver, when you stand on the top of the mountain, start with the run Gentle Ben, on your far left. This is a dandy with a little adventure at waterfall near the bottom. As you work to the right the runs become progressively more challenging and difficult. To the far right is an excellent novice area served by little Beaver chair.

Nordics, Skippers Battle For 2nd Place Tuesday

Second place in the North Border Conference and a postseason tournament seed opposite front-running Lake of the Woods will be at stake Tuesday when high school basketball rivals Marshall County Central and Middle River face each other on the Skippers' court.

Lake of the Woods ran its North Border Conference record to 10-0 Saturday with a 66-51 win over Marshall County Central at Newfolden. The Nordics beat Badger 43-32 in a make-up game Thursday to maintain its second place spot.

A Marshall County Central win Tuesday would lock up second place for the Nordics. A Middle River win tomorrow would vault the Skippers into second place, but they still have to face Lake of the Woods Friday at Baudette. A Middle River win over Marshall County Central, followed by a loss at Lake of the Woods would create a second place tie and necessitate a coin flip for post-season seeding.

The Nordics beat the Skippers 55-42 earlier this season.

Lake of the Woods jumped out to a 20-6 first quarter lead and never trailed by less than 10 points the rest of the way in beating Marshall County Central 66-51 Saturday at Newfolden.

The Bears led 38-20 at halftime and sat on a 52-36 third quarter lead.

"We couldn't make anything," said Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland about his team's first quarter shooting woes that saw the Nordics go just 1-for-6 from the field and miss several free throw opportunities besides.

John Oren led the Bears with 20 points and Todd Robinson added 18. Ray Kvalvog answered with 15 points for the Nordics.

The tall Lake of the Woods ball club out-rebounded Marshall County Central 37-14 and grabbed a bundle of offensive rebounds en route to a 32-for-54, 59 per cent shooting night from the field.

"We gave up some offensive boards inside," noted Ueland. "And we can't afford to do that against a team like that."

Marshall County Central shot 36 per cent from the field, hitting 20 of 55 shots. From the free throw line the Nordics were 11-for-21 and the Bears were 2-for-11.

Neither team shot well. Marshall County Central was 17-for-52 for 33 per cent from the field while Badger was 13-for-42 for 31 per cent.

IT WAS RULED a foul when Northland's Darryl Robinson reached out to grab the ball from Brainerd's Dick Henkemeyer Friday in the second half of the MJCAA Northwest Division basketball game played in the Northland community college gym. Dave Spilde of Northland (20) trailed the play. Northland beat Brainerd 85-72.

Goodridge Girls Beat Blue Wave By 58-55

Sophomore Mary Jo Kiesow put the ball up 36 times Thursday — 18 field goals and an equal number of three throws — and scored 21 points to lead Goodridge past Mount St. Benedict 58-55 in a girls high school basketball game played at Crookston.

Playing on a wing, the 5-9 Kiesow sank six of her 18 field goal attempts and connected on nine of 18 free throws as the Huskies ran their record to 9-3.

But she was only one of three Goodridge scorers in double figures as Sue Johnson scored 14 points and Judy Kiesow added 12. And Goodridge coach Susan Saurdiff was quick to point out, "We don't just depend on one person. They all work together really well."

Vicki Troska collected five assists as she set up the scoring opportunities for the Huskies who trailed 31-25 at halftime before out-scoring the Blue Wave 23-12 in the third quarter. Mary Biermaier scored a game-high 27 points for Mount St. Benedict.

Goodridge won it at the free throw line by sinking 16 of 29 gift tosses. Mount St. Benedict out-scored the visitors from the field, but made just five of 14 free throws. Goodridge was 21-for-52 for 40 per cent from the field.

The Huskies will be at Red Lake Falls Tuesday and will host Argyle Thursday.

Hallock 44
MCC 39

Poor shooting cost Marshall County Central a 44-39 decision at Hallock Thursday — just the second loss in 13 games for the Nordics who made only five of 13 free throw attempts and shot at 29 per cent, 17-for-58 clip from the field.

"We missed some free throws and we missed some shots," admitted Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde, "but Hallock has a good ball club."

Marshall County Central led at the beginning, owning a 14-9 first quarter edge and taking a 20-19 lead into halftime. But Hallock came out of the third quarter with a 33-28 lead.

Hallock shot 40 per cent from the field, hitting 19 of 47 shots, and went 6-for-11 at the free throw line, including a 5-for-6 effort at the charity stripe in the fourth quarter to ice the win.

Marshall County Central is scheduled to host Strandquist tonight (Monday).

I received a news letter from the East Polk Co. DAC center here which they reflected back the events and accomplishments during the year which were real rewarding. It's amazing the change in the life and the work these participants are doing now. They come to the center five days a week for schools but some are doing so well they only come one day a week and are employed part time and really enjoy it. Some of them can communicate much better now, and don't get so frustrated as they did before, as their needs or desires are more readily understood, and some use sign language. Many are busy working in their shop making things while others are enjoying working in their new apartment area in one of the rooms, complete for household duties, cleaning, cooking and even making a dish for the noon meal. Then there is the therapist working with the participants to improve their balance, relaxation, coordination, etc., to improve their skills.

They were also able to attend Bible school and Bible camp last summer and really enjoyed it.

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

State Revises Gas Tax Refund Plan

If you're one of the 55,000 farmers, boaters and others planning to get a cash refund for the nine-cent-a-gallon state tax you pay on gasoline this year, there's a change in store for you.

Beginning with gas bought since Jan. 1, 1980, there's a new way to get your refund. By law, the state gas tax is set aside for building and repairing public roads and highways.

Since farmers operating gas-fueled tractors and other farm equipment in their fields are not driving on public roads and highways, they can apply for a refund of the tax on each gallon of gas they use on the farm. Farmers are the greatest users of the refund program.

Many boaters also take advantage of the program. Others whose purchases of gasoline for off-the-road use make them eligible to apply for the refund are owners of gas-fueled industrial and construction equipment, such as forklifts, earth movers and bulldozers.

Technically, even the tax on gas used in equipment such as lawnmowers, snowblowers, generators and chain saws can be refunded. However, the law specifically says the tax on gas used in snowmobiles cannot be refunded.

This year there is a new method of getting a refund on your gas tax.

Starting this month, you'll have to keep records of the gas you use off the road during all of 1980.

Then you'll have to wait until you send in your next income tax return — that's the 1980 form you'll be filling out in early 1981 — to get your refund. Until January 1 of this year, the way to get your refund was by filling out and mailing a special form, together with your gas purchase receipts, to the petroleum division of the state revenue department.

There was no limit to the number of times a person could apply during the year under the old program, and farmers typically applied after the spring planting and again after the fall harvest.

Last year about 25,000 people applied more than once. The state received more than 80,000 applications from an estimated 55,000 applicants. The average amount refunded was $127 for each application.

Last year the state collected about $230 million in gas tax. More than $10 million — about five per cent — of that amount was refunded to people who used gas off the road.

Since the law allows you a year from the date you buy gas to apply for a refund, people who bought gas and used it off the road in 1979 should still follow the old method of applying to the petroleum division for a refund.

But, for the gas you buy this year, the way to get your refund is to list it as a credit on your 1980 income tax form.

This means that for gas bought this year you'll get your refund in early 1981 after you've sent in your income tax return.

If you wind up having to pay income tax to the state for 1980, the 1980 income tax form will be set up so that you will reduce the amount of income tax you owe by subtracting the gas tax you paid during the year.

If you have an income tax refund coming for 1980, as you complete the 1980 form you will add the total of your gas tax to the amount of your income tax refund. After you file your return, the income tax refund check you'll get back will include the amount of your gas tax refund.

Be sure to keep your receipts for all the gas you use off the road in 1980 so that you can figure the total when you fill out your 1980 income tax form.

You won't be asked to mail your receipts along with your income tax return, but you should keep them for at least three and one-half years. The revenue department has the authority to audit your return during that period, and may ask you to show proof of your purchases.

Starting this year, the only way to get a gas tax refund will be by filing an income tax return. If you haven't had to file a return recently, starting with the 1980 return you will have to file one in order to get the refund. This means that people who live in other states and spend vacations boating in Minnesota will have to file a return to get a refund of the tax they pay on gas for their boats.

If you buy diesel fuel, you may also be charged state gas tax. If so, starting with diesel fuel you buy this year for use off the public roads and highway, you can also apply for a refund on their income tax form.

The separate program for getting refunds on the state tax charged on aviation fuel has not changed.

Governor Says Road Funding Is Necessary

It was just six months ago that the department of transportation deferred $122 million in highway maintenance and construction projects due to lack of funds, notes Gov. Al Quie.

"Yet if nothing is done this legislative session to increase highway funds," he said, "the D.O.T. will have to postpone up to $150 million in additional projects because it won't be able to match federal funds. I do not want to see this happen. And for that reason I am proposing a highway maintenance and construction funding package to the 1980 legislature.

"The current shortage of highway funds has occurred because our existing funding mechanism has not kept pace with the rising costs of highway construction due to inflation and increased fuel costs.

"Two circumstances led to this. One, due to reduced gasoline consumption and a fixed cents per gallon gas tax, highway revenues have declined. And two-highway construction costs have skyrocketed; Gov. Quie added. "In 1978 highway construction costs rose 21 per cent, and through the third quarter of 1979 these costs increased by 17 per cent. This is due in part because bituminous products are petroleum based.

"My highway funding proposal is designed to assure that we can proceed with necessary highway construction and maintaining program. The three parts of my proposal are necessary to close the gap between highway costs and available highway funds. No one part by itself will solve the highway funding problem.

"Because of the unsatisfactory way in which the current gas tax has been meeting the needs of our highways, I am proposing to reduce the gas tax by two cents (from nine to seven cents; and add the four per cent sales tax to gasoline. Currently gasoline and diesel fuels are exempt from sales tax. By adding the sales tax and reducing the gas tax we would be creating a more inflation-sensitive funding mechanism," he said.

Estimated revenues from the sales tax and reduced gas tax would be approximately $70 million in fiscal year 1981.

"I also am proposing transferring the sales tax revenues received — from automobiles and trucks from the general fund to the highway fund. I believe we should transfer 25 per cent of this money annually, beginning July 1, 1981. Over four years the transfer would add approximately $320 million to the state highway fund," the governor said.

"And finally, I believe we should bond for the state's share of the interstate system. To receive federal funding for the interstate system the state must contribute 10 per cent of the funds.

"By bonding for our share of the interstate we would have more money available for construction and maintenance of our trunk highway system. I am proposing we bond up to $150 million over the next five years.

"I hope the Legislature will give these proposals careful consideration. My plan will provide for the only necessary highway construction and maintenance. With this money we should be able to correct hazardous roads, complete nearly all of the $122 million deferred projects and establish good farm-to-market and other essential roads.

"While it may be difficult for the legislators, in an election year, to support increased highway funding, I believe they will recognize the need to protect our $16 billion investment in our state road system and will provide adequate highway funding in 1980," he concluded.

New Eyes For The Needy Has Constant Need

Founded 47 years ago, New Eyes for the Needy is today an internationally known organization that provides eyeglasses for needy people with faulty vision in this country and abroad.

The organization has never asked for a penny in cash donations. The contributions it does ask for consist primarily of discarded eyeglasses — plus old watches, jewelry, silver or just about anything containing precious metals. As a result, the organization receives more than a million pairs of glasses and thousands of pounds of jewelry a year from donors.

From its New Jersey headquarters, New Eyes sends thousands of pairs of reusable, plastic-framed glasses — which cannot, by law, be redistributed in this country — to medical missions, hospitals, and clinics all over the world (with particular emphasis on Africa and India), for free distribution to the visually impaired.

Metal frames and other donated metals are sold to refiners, with the proceeds used to provide new prescription glasses — even artificial eyes — to the needy in the United States.

More than 250 volunteers, trained in such skills as operating complex optical equipment, carry on the work of the organization. Their pay comes in such comments as, from a clinic in Sierra Leone: "I hope you realize what an important ministry you render to people who long to see" — and, from a West Cameroon hospital: "Most of these people were totally blind, and thanks to your generosity they can now see."

This kind of grateful response underscores a statement frequently made by donors — that there is a special feeling generated by the sharing of sight.

Those interested in learning more about this work should write to New Eyes for the Needy, Inc., Short Hills, New Jersey 07078, requesting the organization's brochure.

State Terminal Elevators Ship Large Volume

Minnesota terminal elevators received a record 22.6 million tons and shipped out over 19.7 million tons of bulk grains and oilseeds during 1979, agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin reported this week.

The estimated farm value of the commodities shipped from Minnesota terminal elevators to domestic and overseas markets last year was over $2.2 billion.

While the volume received by terminal elevators was a new high, topping 1978 receipts by nearly 2.9 million tons or 15 per cent, both the volume and value of shipments to other markets dropped below the levels of the previous year.

Volume of 1979 shipments was nearly 1.15 million tons below 1978, and the 1979 farm value of terminal elevator shipments fell almost $123.5 million under the previous year.

Terminal elevators on the Mississippi river showed a three per cent increase in 1979 exports of grain and oilseeds, almost 10.3 million tons compared to just under 10 million tons in 1978. Farm value of river terminal elevator shipments in 1979 was over $1.1 billion, but was down by more than $62.3 million from 1978 shipments.

Duluth-Superior port terminal elevators reported 1979 shipments, primarily overseas exports, at over 9.4 million tons with a farm value of $1.1 billion. Volume dropped by almost 1.5 million tons and farm value by more than $61 million compared to 1978.

Commissioner Seetin said the indicated nearly 2.9 million tons carryover at the end of 1979, subtracting shipments from total receipts, underscores and supports earlier estimates on the backlog of farm commodities resulting from the 12 week grain handlers' strike that closed Duluth-Superior terminal elevators at the peak of the 1979 export shipping season on the St. Lawrence Seaway.

He noted that in 1978, Minnesota terminal elevators shipped out over 1.1 million tons more than received during the calendar year, and suggested that the record current carryover represents a continuing tight marketing and transportation situation until the state's two inland waterways, reopen to commerce this spring. Over 16.4 million ton or more than 83 per cent of Minnesota's 1979 grain and oilseeds were shipped out by water.

Falling prices on soybeans, sunflower seed and corn were a factor in lower farm values on the 1979 domestic and export shipments by Minnesota terminal elevators.

Soybeans were the hardest hit by the combination of strikes and lower prices. The farm value of Minnesota's 1979 soybean shipments at $314.7 million fell $231.6 million below the value of 1978 shipments.

Sunflower seeds also took a significant cut in farm value, due to a 25 per cent lower average farm market price in Minnesota last year. The $241.6 million farm value of 1979 sunflower seed shipments was down by over $78 million from the prior year.

Wheat shipments showed the biggest gain in value due to a nearly 24 per cent increase in average Minnesota farm price in 1979 over 1978. The farm value of the 285.4 million bushels of wheat shipped out last year by Minnesota terminal elevators was $1 billion, $47.3 million, higher than 1978 by $133.5 million although the volume shipped was below 1978 by nearly eight per cent.

Corn shipments also showed a farm value gain last year, at $458.9 million for the nearly 224 million bushels shipped, 11 per cent more volume than in 1978. That was a $45.2 million gain in value over prior year corn shipments.

Barley shipments totaled 55.9 million bushels with a farm value of $125.8 million. Oats shipments totaled 21.2 million bushels with a farm value of $26.5 million. Rye shipments totaled over six million bushels with a farm value of $13.3 million. Flaxseed shipments totaled nearly two million bushels with a farm value of $11.8 million.

Arctic President Meets With Employees Today

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Ken Severinson, new president and chief executive officer of Arctic Enterprises, Inc., is meeting with employees of the company in Thief River Falls at three separate meetings scheduled for 3, 3:30 and 4 p.m. today in the wake of manpower reductions in the city's largest private industry.

Named to the top executive post last Friday to succeed John Penn, Arctic president who was relieved of his responsibilities as president by the board of directors after seven years in that position, Severinson said he feels it is most important to meet with his people to discuss the future of the firm.

While much of the street and coffeeshop talk in the community in recent days has been speculative and pessimistic, Severinson preferred to look on the optimistic side in an interview granted this morning.

He said that the difficulties affecting the snowmobile industry this year — lack of snow in the prime snowbelt sales area, economic conditions, uncertain world situations and others — have had an adverse impact on all companies which manufacture snowmobiles or are in the winter recreation business.

"Arctic Enterprises still remains a strong leader in the industry," Severinson said, "and I intend to convey that information at our employee meetings this afternoon. I am honored to be placed in the challenging position of president of this company and I am happy to be back with Arctic and in Thief River Falls.

"I am confident that with the help of our employees, bankers, vendors, customers, dealers and — very importantly — the community of Thief River Falls, we're going to be able to address our current challenges in due course and chart a progressive future.

"Many important decisions have had to be made in the past weeks by the staff of Arctic Enterprises. I have found it necessary to continue this process of reassessing and realigning our organization. It's a darn difficult task when it involves people, families and careers in the town. The process is basically complete. It might be necessary in the coming weeks to further clarify our structure, but in view of where we are, I am announcing three new changes in our staff."

Listed as having new responsibilities and positions with the company are the following: Ralph Loehr will serve as executive vice president responsible for the marine operations including Lund, Silverline and Larson boat companies and the Spirit Marine division. He will assist Severinson in making the transition by which all snowmobile manufacturing and engineering operations will report to the new president.

Grant Oppegaard has been named executive vice president in charge of all snowmobile sales, marketing and distribution areas, including Arctic Sports Products and Nero equipment as well as the parts, garments and accessories division and product services area.

Don Nicholson will join Arctic shortly as vice president of finance and chief financial officer. He will be responsible for finance, data processing and related areas. Now a senior audit manager for Arthur Andersen and associates, Nicholson has been very involved in past Arctic audits and is thoroughly familiar with the company.

Severinson said he will ask the employees this afternoon for their support as the company moves ahead and assure them that the company will make every effort to communicate with them on facts as they occur within the organization.

"As we look to the future of the company," he said, "I think it is important to emphasize that we still have the management benefits of people like Bill Ness, Edgar Hetteen, Lowell Swenson, Art Tranby — people who have long-standing association with the company and who are continuing in their present positions."

In response to questions, Severinson stated that lay-offs were made as necessary adjustment in manpower overhead relative to production and sales. Management of manpower costs is a part of business just as management of other controllable factors is a part of doing business, he said, and while the task is extremely sensitive and difficult, it is a necessity.

"There are unsold snowmobiles here and in dealer inventory and this condition will reduce our prospects for 1981 model production," Severinson said. "We have had to bite the bullet — just as we did back in 1973 and 1974 — on our overhead. It's not just people. As times in an industry get tougher, we have to make more and more difficult decisions."

The personnel cutbacks were begun several weeks ago, he said, and it has been his intention to expedite the

CAB Lists Guarantees On Air Service For T. R. Falls

Thief River Falls is among 11 Minnesota cities for which initial determinations of federally guaranteed essential air service through 1988 were issued Friday by the civil aeronautics board (CAB) in Washington, D.C.

In announcing the Minnesota determinations, the CAB's bureau of domestic aviation said that this service level guarantee — made under provisions of the small communities program of the airline deregulation act of 1978 — is a base level from which the air carriers will be able to expand their operations in response to consumer demand. The guarantee provides for a federal subsidy, if necessary.

For Brainerd and Thief River Falls, the bureau of domestic aviation will require at least two daily round trips to Minneapolis-St. Paul with 136 seats — 68 in each direction. Nonstop service will be required from Brainerd and no more than two stops will be allowed from Thief River Falls.

For Bemidji and Chisholm-Hibbing, the bureau will require a minimum of two daily round trips to Minneapolis-St. Paul with 160 seats — 80 in each direction. One stop or nonstop service is optional to Minneapolis-St. Paul from both points.

All of the Minnesota airports which have scheduled air service are served by Republic airlines, and all except Winona are on three linear routings. One route involves Minneapolis-St. Paul to Brainerd, Bemidji and Thief River Falls; another goes from the Twin Cities to Duluth-Superior, Chisholm-Hibbing and International Falls; and a third from Minneapolis-St. Paul to Mankato, Fairmont and Worthington.

Under the small communities program of the 1978 airline deregulation act, the federal government guarantees that any community receiving certificated service or whose service had been suspended on Oct. 24, 1978, will be guaranteed essential service at least through 1988. The act also provides for additional communities that have lost air service since July of 1968 to be considered for the essential air service program after January of 1980.

The CAB's essential air service determinations in
